OFFICERS CHOSEN.

DEMOCRATS IN CONVENTION.

The Marshfield Convention is Marked by the Utmost Harmony and a Good Ticket is Put Up

The democrats met at Marshfield on Friday and nominated a full county ticket and member of assembly. The county was well represented at the convention and there was the utmost harmony prevailing throughout the entire meeting.

The meeting was called to order by L. M. Nash, chairman of the county committee, who stated the object of the meeting, then a chairman of the convention was elected in the person of Geo. W. Baker. L. E. Colvin of Pittsville was elected as secretary and the work of making nominations was proceeded with.

For member of assembly the only name proposed was that of W. E. Wheelan and he was nominated unanimously.

There were two aspirants for the office of sheriff, they being Richard Scheibe of Nekoosa and Mike Vincent of this city. Only two ballots were necessary to make a choice, Mr. Vincent receiving a majority of all the votes cast at the second ballot.

John Juno of Marshfield was nominated to the office of county treasurer.

For district attorney C. B. Andrews of Marshfield was the choice of the convention, this nomination also being unanimous.

For clerk of court the convention nominated A. B. Sutor of this city. John Jarvis of Port Edwards for coroner, Michael Kriugs for surveyor and Miss Mayme Maloney of Marshfield for superintendent of schools.

The convention then elected L. M. Nash of this city for chairman of the county committee. Mr. Nash had tendered his resignation as chairman and did not want to accept the office again, but there was such a demand for his services that at last he succumbed to the wishes of the delegates and accepted the honor conferred upon him. H. E. Fitch was elected secretary of the county committee. A member of the county committee was elected from each election precinct in the county, they being:

Arpin, John Domnity; Auburndale town, Ed Kennedy; Auburndale village, Al. Van Rizen; Cary, to be selected; Dexter, Wm. Downing; Grand Rapids, 1st ward, Louis Schroeder; 2nd ward, Henry Kline; 3d ward, Will Gross; 4th ward, Albert Bunde; 5th ward, Joseph Lucascheski; 6th ward, O. D. Conway; 7th ward, P. Mulroy; 8th ward, G. W. Mason; Grand Rapids town, John Herron; Hansen, Leo Reusch; Hiles, to be selected; Lincoln, Lambert Michaels; Marshfield, 1st ward, Henry Kalshed; 2nd ward, John Brackendorf; 3d ward, John P. Hume; 4th ward, John Hoffman; 5th ward, Mat Wright; 6th ward, William Kamps; Marshfield town, John Wolf; Milladore, George Hooper; Nekoosa village, M. McStrack; Pittsville, 1st ward, L. E. Colvin; 2nd ward, Joseph Applebaker; 3rd ward, W. A. Dawes; Port Edwards town, Casper Gartler; Port Edwards village, John R. Jarvis; Remington, L. Ward; Richfield, Wm. Zenner; Rock, Herman Theil; Rudolph, Winfield Scott; Saratoga, M. Mathews; Seneca, Anton Kreger; Sherry, Frank Laroux; Sigel, F. C. Hanke; Vesper, Joseph Z. Arpin; Wood, Gotfredz Sowatzke.

The democrats are to be congratulated on having nominated so able a set of officers to take charge of the affairs of the county, especially as there are indications that they will be called on by the people to fill the offices to which they were nominated The men are all energetic persons who if elected will do their best to give the people good service, while Miss Maloney, who was nominated for the position of superintendent of schools is a most estimable lady and eminently qualified to fill the position in which her friends wish to place her

Among those present at the convention was Burt Williams of Ashland, democratic nominee for member of congress from this district. Mr. Williams was called on for an address and although he had made no preparation for anything of the kind, he gave those present a most pleasant talk and made friends of all who heard him. Mr. Williams is a very entertaining talker and never fails to carry the crowd with him when he appears before the public. Mr. Wheelan was also called on and made a short address before the convention, thanking those present for the honor conferred on him and also saying a few words on the subject before the convention.

Edward Lynch for Senator.

At the senatorial convention held at Plainfield on Tuesday Edward Lynch of this city was chosen by the democrats to represent them in the state senate from this district, which comprises the counties of Wood, Marquette, Waushara and Adams. The Tribune heartily endorses the nomination of Mr. Lynch and there is no doubt that if he is elected he will give the people of the ninth senatorial district the best representation they have ever had in the state senate.

Death of Daniel Preston.

Daniel Preston, the three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Saul Preston, died on Sunday morning after an illness of five days. The little fellow was afflicted with quinsy. The funeral occurred on Tuesday from the house. The parents have the sympathy of all in their affliction.

GRAND RAPIDS vs STEVENS POINT

The Normal Team Wins Over Our High School Eleven by 11 to 6

The high school football team played their first game of the season at Stevens Point last Saturday with the first team of the normal school. All the circumstances considered it was a game of which we may all feel proud. The normal school team averaged much heavier than our boys, probably fifteen to twenty pounds each, and have had besides the advantage of regular coaching. The game was played on a muddy field in the rain, where greater weight told.

This lack of practice was evident in the playing of our boys, though the fact that they played a good game is evident from the way in which they held the heavy normal team. It proves, too, that with additional practice we have one of the best football teams in the valley.

Bandelin and Brennan were the stars in the game. The former played his end so effectually that no gains were made in that quarter, and he also assisted the opposite end. Brennan was good for gains through the heavy lines even when gains in that direction seemed impossible.

Grand Rapids kicked off to Stevens Point. For several minutes the ball was pushed back and forth in the center of the field with but small gains. Finally Brennan made a long run and scored the first touchdown. Kelley kicked the goal.

The normals then kicked off to Grand Rapids who lost the ball on a fumble. Finally Daws broke through the line for a touchdown, but Stevens Point failed to kick the goal. The first half closed 6 to 5 in favor of Grand Rapids.

In the second half the normals succeeded in making two touchdowns, the last a quarter of a minute before time was called, but they failed to kick goal in either instance, and the game closed 11 to 6 in favor of Stevens Point.

Our boys have nothing but praise for the treatment accorded them by the Stevens Pointers and they feel that their time was well spent both on account of the practice received and the time they enjoyed while the guests of the normal team. Following is the lineup:

Stevens Point.		Grand Rapids
Gelmer	center	Kruger
Ayer	right guard	Potter
Dworak	right tackle	Kelley
O'Connell	right end	Wood
Christensen	quarter	Horton
Reid	right half	Corcoran
Mallory	full back	Brennan
Prof. F. N. Spindler, officials		W. L. Oswald
Prof. Collins	timekeepers.	Supt. H. S. Vouker
Murat	linesmen	Lester

On Saturday, the 18th instant, the high school team will play with Stevens Point high school in this city and on the 25th they will play Wausau high school at Wausau. It is possible that other games will be arranged for, and if possible one will be scheduled for next Saturday.

Killed With Dynamite.

The body of William Budreau was brought to this city on Saturday of last week and interred in the Catholic cemetery. The body came from Bruce, where Mr. Budreau had met his death from an explosion of dynamite.

Mr. Budreau had been blasting out some stumps with the use of dynamite, and was going to the field on Friday morning, carrying some dynamite, fuse and caps in a tin pail. Just why the explosion occurred will probably never be known, but the man was smoking as he proceeded on his way and it is supposed that a spark from his pipe fell into the pail and exploded one of the caps and this caused the dynamite to explode. There was a terrific explosion and Mr. Budreau was hurled several feet and his body about the abdomen was terribly torn, killing him instantly.

A companion who was with him was also stunned by the explosion, although he was about sixteen feet distant at the time, and as a consequence he was not able to give any idea of how the accident occurred.

The deceased was 41 years of age and leaves a wife and eight children to mourn his death. He was a brother-in-law of Herman Smith of this city, having married Mr. Smith's sister, and was a cousin of Messrs. Arpin. He had charge of a large farm belonging to the Arpins at Bruce. Mr. Budreau was formerly a resident of this city, but left here some ten years ago.

Found a Monstrosity.

One of the most remarkable natural curiosities ever discovered in this country was unearthed in the town of Lincoln this week, and will be exhibited here during the carnival. The anomalous animal is a cross between a sheep and a hog, showing some of characteristics of each, and has been named by the present owners a Schaf-Schwein. The curiosity was raised by John Anderson on his farm six miles west of the city and is a year old. It resembles a sheep more than a hog in build, but is much larger than the ordinary sheep, weighing about 300 pounds. The animal is healthy and lively, has the body of a sheep and the head and limbs of a hog and grunts like a hog, though covered with a heavy coat of wool. The Schaf-Schwein is now in the hands of a Marshfield syndicate and will be exhibited in a tent as one of the star attractions of the fair.—Marshfield Times.

COURT ON MONDAY.

NOT A VERY LENGTHY TERM.

Only Six Criminal Cases to be Tried at This Term.—Other News Items of Interest.

Circuit court convenes in this city next Monday, Judge Chas. M. Webb presiding. The term this session does not promise to be a very long one as there are only six criminal cases on the calendar, and none of them are such as would be likely to take up much time. The criminal cases are as follows:

State of Wisconsin vs. Anton Kupsch, rape.

Mary Carter vs. Silas Wright.

Anna Lyon vs. the City of Grand Rapids.

John Rothenberger vs. Michael Schmidt.

Michael Griffin vs. Wilhelmina Hoerl.

Wm. Jungbluth and Lydia Jungbluth vs. Phillippina Winkel.

Frank Hopkinson vs. Charles Lowe.

Verner Anderson vs. Chris Dabel.

There are several other cases to be tried before the court, mostly from outside, and of very little interest to parties here, as well as several divorce cases. These will be tried at the conclusion of the jury cases.

Still in Progress.—Although we have not heard much concerning the waterworks of late, still the work is progressing and it has reached such a stage of completion that it is expected to have it finished the latter part of this week or the first of next. This is providing everything holds when the final test is made. The standpipe contractors were here this week and put a few bolts into that part of the system and stopped some leaks that had developed, and the only thing that remains now that is not satisfactory to the inspecting engineer is the pipe that leads across the river. This still leaks and will continue to do so until a diver is brought here and the defective places repaired.

Lost His Money.—The Wausau Herald is authority for the following: Wilbur Kellner, a student at the Wausau Business college, was the victim of a holdup on Monday night. He was going from down town to his boarding place at 517 Adams street and while walking along 5th street near the railroad crossing, a man stepped out from behind a lumber pile and, pushing a revolver into his face, demanded his money. Mr. Kellner lost no time in handing over all he had, $12, and was then allowed to proceed on his way. As he did not report the holdup to the police until next morning the robber had ample time to make his escape.

Marriage Licenses.—The following marriage licenses wese issued by the county clerk during the past week: Frank Kubisiak and Mary Cepress, both of Sigel; Stephen Sucowske and Mary Latus, both of Grand Rapids; Felix Smolarek and Jennie Stusherk, both of Sigel; Wm. L. Becker and Essie Cattanach, both of the town of Lincoln; Charles H. Pratt of Athens and May Anderson of Hanover, Ill.; Albert Buboiz and Annie Wepfer, both of Marshfield; Charles Ewer of Richfield and Minerva Wood of Lincoln.

Drove too Fast.—The police picked up a man on Thursday evening who was driving across the bridge faster than is stipulated in the ordinance on the subject. When arrested the man stated that he would not pay the fine, but later the same evening he changed his mind and going before Justice Crotteau paid the fine and costs and was released. People driving over the bridge should be careful to observe this ordinance as in its present condition there is no need of subjecting it to unnecessary strain.

—During the past few weeks furniture has made quite a jump in price among wholesale dealers and as a consequence retailers will have to advance their price proportionately. During the past week Geo. W. Baker & Son received a carload of bedroom suits which they were fortunate in having ordered before the advance, and they intend to give their customers the advantage of their good luck. Better see them for furniture.

Baseball at Nekoosa.—Two games of baseball were played at Nekoosa on Sunday, one being between the Nekoosa team and the Tomah Indians and the other between the Grand Rapids team and the Tomah Indians. The Indians were victorious in both games, beating the Nekoosas by a score of 6 to 2 and the Grand Rapids team by 4 to 2. The game with Grand Rapids was only five innings, but the other game was nine innings.

Lost in the Woods.—A dispatch from Eau Claire says: "John G. Faulds, formerly city editor of an Eau Claire newspaper and recently employed on the Grantsburg Journal, is lost in the woods in Burnett county and is probably dead. His three children are with grandparents at Alma." Mr. Faulds was formerly a resident of Grand Rapids, having occupied a position on one of the papers here.

Sunday Train Stopped.—The Sunday excursion train that has been run over the Green Bay & Western road between this city and Green Bay during the past summer has been discontinued. This train was probably the most popular Sunday train that was ever run from this place, and many took advantage of the chance to visit some points along the line every Sunday.

W. F. M. S. Officers.—At the last meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary society the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. A. D. Hill; first vice president, Mrs. William Scott; second vice president, Mrs. T. J. Cooper; secretary, Miss Fannie Palmer; corresponding secretary; Mrs A. L. Ridgman; treasurer, Mrs. R. A. McDonald.

Buying Corn Shredders.—John Klug, who is agent for the Plano people, last week sold two cord shredders, one to Casper Brothers of Rudolph, and the other to Matt Hemis of Mehan. The corn shredder has been used a great deal by farmers further south, but as yet it has not gained much of a foothold in this part of the country.

Will Open a Branch.—E. A. Weeks, of Plainfield, one of the proprietors of the Plainfield Marble works, was in the city for several days last week looking over the place with a view to opening a branch works here. He found a suitable place and the company expect to have their plant in operation here within a few weeks.

A Good Show.—Those who attended the production of the gamekeeper on Friday evening last report that the play was a good one and that it was well rendered by the company that produced it. There was plenty of fun and Irish wit with good acting to make it interesting for all. A fair crowd greeted the show.

Went to Marshfield.—About one hundred people went to Marshfield on Thursday and Friday to take in the street fair, democratic convention, etc. Although the weather was anything but pleasant on Friday, all who went managed to find something to amuse themselves with during their stay there.

—George Baker & Son the furniture men have just received a carload of bedroom suits which they got at a very low price on account of buying a large quantity and they intend to sell them very cheap. If you need anything of the kind it will stand you in hand to look over their stock.

Held to Circuit Court.—George Taylor, the man who was charged with horse stealing, had his hearing before Justice Getts on Tuesday and the young fellow was bound over to appear at the next term of circuit court.

Settled the Case.—The case against the LaCrosse Mutual Aid association brought by Burt Brown was settled on Wednesday by the defendent paying Mr. Brown $15 and half the costs already incurred in the suit.

A Powerful Play.

—One of the most powerful plays ever seen in this city will be produced at the Grand Opera House Saturday night when the clever company that have been receiving unlimited praise from press and public in other cities will be seen here in the successful play, "Sheridan Keene, Detective." This is one of the most interesting plays ever written, and it contains a very pretty story cleverly told, plenty of good healthful comedy, and lots of startling situations. The scenery and mechanical equipments are superb, and the production is in many respects, equal to any seen on the metropolitan stage.

Goes Like Hot Cakes.

"The fastest selling article I have in my store," writes druggist C. T. Smith of Davis, Ky., "Is Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Coughs and Colds, because it always cures. In my six years of sales it has never failed. I have known it to save sufferers from Throat and Lung diseases, who could get no help from doctors or any other remedy." Mothers rely on it, best physicians prescribe it, and John E. Daly guarantees satisfaction or refund price. Trial bottle free. Reg. sizes, 50c and $1.

BODY IN FURNACE.

New York, Sept. 27.—The headless and nude body of a man was found today at 28 West Twenty-ninth street, a building occupied by a Chinese restaurant. Six arrests have been made.

According to the police, some persons went to the station house nearest the place this morning and complained of a bad smell from the building. They said that there was a terrible odor. Several detectives traced the odor to the basement of the building and found the body. The head was in a furnace. Blood was all over the place. Close by under a pile of lumber Thomas Tobin, a waiter, was found feigning sleep, according to the police. There was a fire in the furnace which the police say was extinguished with a few pails of water. Then with a long bar they pulled the charred head of a man out. Tobin is under arrest.

Police Captain Sheehan went to the upper part of the building, which is known as the Empire hotel, and arrested four men and a woman witness. The building is a three-story, shabby-looking brown stone structure close to Broadway.

It is said that a suit of clothes, a vest, with a mackintosh and a shoe, were found in the furnace.

Blood stains were found in the cellar, which lead to the belief that a murder was committed there and the body taken to the furnace, which is near.

It is said that one of the men arrested as witnesses, named McAnerny, has given the police some valuable information and has hinted that he saw part of the tragedy. The dead man is said to have been a patron of the place.

The odor of the burning flesh was perceptible, it is said, a block away.

Result of a Quarrel.

According to Capt. Sheehan, McAnerney is the bartender in the place. The captain says McAnerney told him that Tobin, the dead man, who was known about the place as Capt. Jim of Long Island, a woman known as Turner and he, McAnerney, were sitting in a room drinking at about 2 o'clock this morning when Tobin and "Capt. Jim" had a quarrel. Their trouble became very bitter and Tobin left the room, returning in a few minutes with a cleaver with which he struck Capt. Jim on the head, after which he dragged the man downstairs to the cellar, where he hacked the body to pieces. Capt. Sheehan did not learn the cause of the trouble.

The murdered man is believed by the police to be James B. Craft of Glen Cove, L. I. A dispatch from that place says Craft lived on a farm there. He was supposed to be well-to-do.

KILLED HIS WIFE.

New York, Sept. 27.—Harry Rose, stage manager at the Garrick Theater, shot and instantly killed his wife at their apartments in the Royal on West Thirty-third street today. After committing the murder Rose walked to a station, and handing the revolver he had used to the sergeant said: "I have shot my wife."

The woman was formerly an actress, her stage name having been Belle Berger. Rose admitted that the crime was the result of jealousy. He told the police that he had been married fourteen years.

"Three days ago," he said, "I came home and found a man with my wife. It was the first time I had ever suspected her in all our married life.

"This man is a rich man," he went on. "She admitted to me this morning that she loved him and had ceased to love me. Now I am square."

A colored servant in the employ of the couple made the following statement:

"There was no one in the flat with Mrs. Rose last night. Mr. Rose stayed out all night. Mrs. Rose retired early, but a little later than I did.

"This morning Mrs. Rose had her breakfast in bed about 8 o'clock. Mr. Rose came in at half past 8. He had a few words with Mrs. Rose and then went out, banging the door after him as if in anger. When Mrs. Rose was dressing ready to go out, Mr. Rose came back. I was in the kitchen. After a few minutes I heard Mrs. Rose half shrieking say:

"'You would not harm me, Harry, would you?', and Mr. Rose answered: 'No.' Then there was quiet for twenty or thirty seconds, followed by four reports from a revolver. Mr. Rose left the flat and I went in and found Mrs. Rose lying on the floor."

Coroner Scholer was notified of the murder and he went to the Royal. There he found Mr. and Mrs. Charles Zimmerman. Mr. Zimmerman is a partner in the Philadelphia firm of Nixon & Zimmerman.

Mrs. Zimmerman is the sister of the dead woman. The man mentioned by Rose in the case is known to the Zimmermans, but they say they knew nothing of his relations with Mrs. Rose. Mr. Zimmerman said he understood his sister-in-law had met the man at the Saratoga races this summer. To the coroner, Rose told practically the same story he had before told.

Coroner Scholes held him without bail. Rose said his wife's right name before marriage was Lizzie Berger and that her mother lives in this city. Rose was born in Chicago and is 40 years of age.

MESSMER'S NAME NO LONGER CONSIDERD.

Rome, Sept. 27.—The candidature of Rt. Rev. Sebastian G. Mehmer, bishop of Green Bay, Wis., for the archbishopric of Manila, is, it is asserted in Vatican circles, no longer being considered, because of his hostility to the negotiations between Gov. Taft and the Vatican on Philippine matters. The Vatican is in receipt of numerous protests against the anti-Catholic propaganda in the Philippines. It is claimed that the Catholics ought to be allowed entire freedom of religious teaching among a community whose only form of worship is Catholic.

The Cocoanut Crop.

Cocoanut trees grow in profusion on the Philippine islands. Despite the fact that the crop is periodically affected by heavy typhoons, the trade has increased immensely in the last twelve years. There are by careful computation about 300,000,000 cocoanut palms in the world in full bearing.

WILL REOPEN THE MINES

Reading Company to Resume Operations in Schuylkill County.

TO BREAK THE STRIKE.

Expect that Strikers will be Kept Quiet by Soldiers and that Move will be Successful.

Philadelphia, Sept. 26.—The Philadelphia & Reading Company is expected to resume operations at all its anthracite mines in Schuylkill county this week. A number of mines will be opened in a day or two. This would be a big entering wedge, and if the Schuylkill mines can be opened and operated successfully the backbone of the strike will be broken.

It is said upon authority that a conference was held in the Reading Terminal building between President Baer and Judge Campbell, counsel for the Reading Company, and after the interview Brig. Gen. Schall, commanding the First brigade of the National Guard, which is expecting orders to go to the mine region, was acquainted by telephone with the results of the conference. The troops are in readiness to move and can start for the mines at a moment's notice. The moment the order to move comes special trains will be found in readiness at the terminal station of the Reading railroad.

Expects to Succeed.

At the general offices of the Philadelphia & Reading Company no authorized statement could be procured as to the intentions of the company. An official connected with the general management of the mines, however, gave assurance that the company will have no difficulty in resuming work in the Schuylkill mines with practically a full force of men, and added that, as the men are ready to go to work, they will be given the opportunity this week.

"We have assured ourselves," said he, "that the men throughout the Schuylkill valley are tired of this enforced idleness and are really anxious to resume work before cold weather sets in. Two things prevents these men from following their inclinations. First, the liability to injury to themselves, and second, the indignities those who are depending upon them may be subjected to.

"The presence of state troops in the anthracite region has had a quieting effect upon those who are inclined to tyrannize over other men, and gradually the strike is disintegrating, and the more this is manifested the greater will be efforts of the lawless element to check it.

"State troops alone can be relied upon to check this, and it is gratifying to notice that many of the soldiers, while absolutely in accord with the strikers, are loyal to their oath to the state."

Will Not Declare Martial Law.

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 26.—Gov. Stone was asked if he would declare martial law in the coal regions. He said:

"Without discussing the power of the governor to declare martial law, it will be wholly unnecessary to resort to that remedy.

"The National Guard has been sent into the coal regions to suppress tumults, riots and mobs where the civil authorities are unable to suppress them.

"There is now a surplus in the treasury and the state is prepared to maintain a large army in the field for an indefinite time."

No Sign of Settlement.

Lebanon, Pa., Sept. 26.—There is no sign of settlement of the strike at the American Iron and Steel Company's plant. The modified offer of the striking employes includes the discharge of the Southern negroes brought here to take their places and to this President Sternberg has so far refused to accede. It is rumored that Pinkerton detectives have arrived to investigate the promiscuous shooting. There are now about 1250 men and boys at work at the plant.

The men who remain out number about 800. Soldiers are guarding the works and all is quiet.

Quiet in Lackawanna Region.

Scranton, Pa., Sept. 26.—Quiet reigns in the Lackawanna region today. There was no repitition of yesterday's disturbances. As an effect of yesterday's rioting twenty-five of the nonunion men employed at the Delaware & Hudson Company's Grassy Island, Eddy Creek and Olyphant No. 2 colleries quit work today. Twenty-one men employed at Johnson No. 2 colliery of the Ontario & Western Company also quit. They told their foremen that they were afraid to continue working.

FURTHER INDICTMENTS.

Final Session of the St. Louis Grand Jury—Rottenness in Municipal Assembly.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 26.—The June grand jury met this afternoon for its final session, several witnesses being present to testify.

It is said that the report of the body will be sent to the court next Monday and several indictments are expected as a result of the findings.

The investigations of the jury, aided by Delegates J. K. Murrell's disclosures, have resulted in the indictment of nineteen delegates and former delegates, and the arrest of all but six of the number who are fugitives from justice.

MARRY COUPLES GRATIS.

Hammond, Ind., Mayor Has Novel Matrimonial Scheme.

Hammond, Ind., Sept. 26.—For the next thirty days the mayor of this city, A. F. Knotts, will marry Hammond young men free of charge. He will also give them every other help that lies within his means to start a home for themselves. He makes no conditions save that the men must live in Hammond. Their brides may come from any part of the country. He has made special office hours for the ceremony, but is uncertain as to whether his proclamation may do more than shame Hammond's bachelors into matrimony. This novel matrimonial plan is in line with other ideas that the mayor has received from his studies in social economy. Ministers and judges do not believe that his scheme will be successful.

BREWER SEVERELY BURNED.

Supreme Court Justice Hurt by Igniting Brush with Gasoline.

Burlington, Vt., Sept. 26.—Justice David J. Brewer of the United States supreme court was severely burned about the face and hands at his summer home at Thompson's Point. Justice Brewer lingered longer at the point than the other cottagers and was cleaning up some brush about his cottage, Liberty hall. He used a small amount of gasoline to make the brush burn better, and was in the act of lighting the pile with a match when the accident occurred. His wounds were promptly attended to, and with good nursing he hopes to be out in a few days without scars.

RAILROAD WRECKS.

Paris, Sept. 27.—Twenty-six persons have been killed and a score of people have been injured as the result of an accident to an express train running from Lille to Paris. The train left the rails while crossing the switch at Arleux, where it did not stop, and while going at great speed.

The locomotive and tender were upset and the carriages were piled up and smashed to pieces. The bodies of sixteen men, two women and two girls, all French, were taken out of the wreck. About fifty persons were injured and many of them who are suffering from broken limbs and fractured skulls are not likely to survive.

Airbrakes Would Not Work.

Rawlins, Wyo., Sept. 27.—At least four and perhaps several other persons were killed by a freight wreck in the Union Pacific yards at this place shortly after 1 o'clock this morning. The names of the dead so far as now known are:

PAUL W. DAYTON, coal passer, residence not known.
JAMES WELSH, fireman, Rawlins.
JOHN PATNOE, engineer, Rawlins.

The bodies of the first three have been recovered, but that of Engineer Patnoe is still under his engine. The engineer was pinned down by the end of the tank resting on his legs, and for several hours he was conscious and carried on a conversation with members of the rescuing party, but he was finally overcome by heat from the engine and the burning cars about him. It will be necessary to raise both the tank and the locomotive to get at his body.

It is known that several tramps were aboard the ill-fated train and as none have been seen about the wreckage it is feared they were either killed outright or were burned to death.

The Rawlins fire department succeeded in extinguishing the fire and saved about one-half of the fourteen cars that were piled up.

The accident was caused by the failure of the airbrakes to work on the east-bound fruit special and no one is held responsible.

The train came into the yards at lightning speed and crashed into a switch engine before the crew of the latter had time to get out of the way.

Ties on the Track.

Sioux City, Ia., Sept. 27.—The lives of several hundred passengers were endangered in Union county, South Dakota, by two attempts to wreck Milwaukee excursion trains. These trains left Sioux City thirty minutes apart, and were crowded with passengers. Four miles east of Elk Point the special for Canton struck a pile of ties. No damage was done and the train proceeded. The special for Mitchell, thirty minutes later, struck another pile of ties at almost the same place, and one tie was wedged in the pilot. No motive is known for the act and there is no trace of the miscreants.

Goes Over an Embankment.

Washington, Ind., Sept. 27.—A work train on the Southern Indiana railway with fifty-three men on board was wrecked one mile northwest of Elnora last night. The locomotive, tender, coach and caboose turned over an embankment six feet high. None of them was killed outright but seven are badly injured.

Locomotive Runs Wild.

Livingston, Mont., Sept. 27.—With the engineer gone and the fireman sleeping in his cab, a lone wild Northern Pacific engine tore down the mountain side a mile west of here yesterday and at the foot of the hill struck another engine with terrific force. Engineer Owen, in charge of the latter, was so badly injured that he died eight hours afterward. His fireman, James Hose, lies at the point of death. The sleeping fireman of the runaway was not awakened until thrown from the cab by the collision.

KIDNAPED DAUGHTER.

Herman Deahl Recovers His Child from Illinois Industrial Training School.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 27.—A 10-year-old girl was kidnaped from the Illinois Industrial Training School for Girls at Evanston by her father yesterday. A search of six months for the girl, a dash away from the institution and a long chase by the Evanston police were features of the affair. The parents of the child had been divorced and the mother took her to Evanston secretly to prevent the father gaining possession of her.

The girl was Edythe Deahl, and her parents are said to be wealthy people living in Ohio. Her mother obtained a divorce from her father, Herman Deahl, in March, and was given possession of the child. Fearing that the father would kidnap the girl, Mrs. Deahl took her to Evanston and placed her in the training school. Then the father began a search to locate his daughter. He learned of her presence in Evanston a few days ago, and late yesterday appeared at the office of the school. He told the matron who he was and asked to see the girl. The girl was brought to him in the parlor, while the matron kept watch over the pair from a room across the hall. Suddenly Deahl picked the girl up in his arms, dashed out of the door and started away with her. The matron telephoned to the police and a patrol filled with policemen started after Deahl. After a long chase Deahl jumped into a buggy and made his escape with the girl.

WHITECAPS BEAT WOMEN.

Gov. Durbin Orders Summary Action Against Lawless Gang.

Nashville, Ind., Sept. 27.—Edna Colson and Elizabeth Rush were brutally beaten at Maple Heights, near Bloomington, by a gang of self-styled "regulators," who have whitecapped twenty-four persons in Brown and Monroe counties within the past year. The governor and other state officers have taken notice of the outrages and are taking steps to furnish protection and break the gang up.

The attorney general said he had written to a former victim who had appealed to him for protection, that if he was threatened again to shoot and shoot to kill and he would defend the shooter from the charge of murder.

RENTS HAWARDEN INN.

Well-Known Hostelry at Gladstone, Mich., in New Hands.

Gladstone, Mich., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Hawarden Inn, a Gladstone hostelry known throughout the peninsula, has been rented for a term of five years by L. E. Granger of Lansing, Mich., a hotel man of experience. The inn is being remodeled throughout and will now have a barber shop, bar-room and news stand in connection, besides a Turkish cafe. Particular effort will be made to cater to summer resort patrons.

UNTIL THE MINERS WIN.

Strike Leaders Say that Struggle will Continue Indefinitely.

MEETING AT PITTSBURG

President Mitchell Declares Cause of the Anthracite Workers will be Sustained to the End.

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 27.—President James Mitchell and Secretary-Treasurer W. B. Wilson of the United Mine Workers of America arrived in this city shortly before 9 o'clock today and went at once into conference at the Hotel Henry. President Mitchell stated that nothing of importance would be transacted at the meeting. "We are here to go over routine business only," he said.

When asked if other parties would take part in the meeting he said: "No. We will probably be here until tomorrow evening, unless we get through before."

Concluding, he said: "The cause of the strike in the anthracite mines will be sustained until the end. If I have anything to say it will be given out later."

Secretary-Treasurer Wilson said: "The strike has been on for twenty weeks, and will be continued until the miners win."

It is reported here that the meeting will be more important that the officers will admit, and further, that a number of labor leaders will be in the conference before it is over.

Negotiations Futile.

Lebanon, Pa., Sept. 27.—The strike at the plant of the American Iron & Steel Company was not settled today as was expected. The men submitted modified terms to the company. These were considered at a meeting of this company in Reading until late last night, after which General Manager Lord returned to Lebanon. He met a committee of the men today and told them their proposition had been neither rejected nor accepted. The modified demands of the men were as follows: "That the negroes be withdrawn; that puddlers be paid $4.50 a ton; an increase of 3 per cent. be given to the men in the finishing department; no discrimination to be made against any former employes."

Nonunionists Chased Away from Work.

Shenandoah, Pa., Sept. 27.—A mob of several hundred people at Centralia this morning intercepted the men who have been going to work at Mount Carmel by trolley. The men all returned to their homes. A little while later a Lehigh Valley passenger train pulled into the station and the mob crowded into the cars looking for nonunion men. A few who were waiting at the station for the train to take them to work at Packer No. 2 colliery were chased home.

Held Up Coal Train.

Shenandoah, Pa., Sept. 27.—About midnight last night it was reported to Gen. Gobin that the strikers held up a coal train that was being taken away from Pott's colliery at Locustdale and drove off the engineering crew. Today the general sent a company of infantry to the colliery under command of Provost Marshal Farquhar and with the soldiers to protect it the train was taken away without interference.

Plan Big Coal Convention.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 27.—The common council adopted resolutions inviting the people of all the cities and towns depending upon the Pennsylvania fields for their coal supplies to appoint representatives to meet in this city to consider ways and means to force a resumption of the coal production, either by pressure of public opinion or by government intervention, which should be demanded if other measures fail.

Try to Buy Unions.

Scranton, Pa., Sept. 27.—District President Nichols issued a statement in which he charges that an ex-mine foreman named Michael Grimes is "at the head of a movement inaugurated by the coal companies to bribe a number of Mine Workers' locals for $2500 apiece to vote to return to work." Mr. Nichols declares at the close of his statement that his "informants stand ready to prove their assertions in court." Mr. Grimes denies the Nichols statement, and the coal companies also say it is not true.

Water in the Mines.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 27.—An investigation by Capt. Baird, in charge of the state, war and navy department buildings, has resulted in the discovery that the largest anthracite mines are from one-half to seven-eights full of water, and that it will take three months to pump them out and have them in full operation after the strike is ended. So certain are the government officials that it will be impossible to obtain an adequate supply of anthracite coal for the coming winter that special permission has been obtained from the law officers to purchase soft coal.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 27.—General Manager Luther says it is true that several of the Reading's collieries are flooded, but these have been abandoned for a time at least. The officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad's anthracite companies report that their mines are in such condition that were the miners to go back to work on Monday the collieries would be able to produce three-fourths of their normal output, and that within a week they would be in perfect shape.

PILLARS OVERWEIGHTED.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 27.—The front portion of the nine-story office building under construction for Henry S. Willard on Fourteenth street, opposite the new Willard hotel, collapsed shortly after 8 o'clock this morning and a large crowd of people passing on their way to business had a miraculous escape from death or injury. The accident was caused by overweighting the two iron column supports for the front wall, the pillars being insufficient to sustain the weight of the 800 and 1000 pound stones which were being piled as a sill coping on the sixth floor. These immense stones and a part of the iron framework fell to the ground, but fortunately the noise of the crash warned the workmen and the people in the street.

SEARCH FOR LOST WEALTH.

Fifty Thousand Dollars in Government Bonds Have Disappeared.

Belleville, Ill., Sept. 27.—Simultaneously with the death of Bartley Toomy of East St. Louis $50,000 in United States government bonds, his property, disappeared. Twenty years ago Toomy secured a patent upon a monkey wrench. He sold his rights for $75,000, and invested $50,000 in government bonds, which have since given him support. Being taken suddenly ill he was removed to the hospital, dying there of "palpitation of the heart." Friends instituted a search for the bonds, but they were nowhere to be found.

SHERIFF WOULD NOT TEAR HIM FROM ALTAR.

Houghton, Mich., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Refusing to be dismissed by the bishop of the diocese, Rev. Father Sperlein, pastor of the Greenland and Rockland parishes in Ontonagon county, has hurled defiance and avers he will not be removed so summarily without a hearing. In replay to threat that if necessary a sheriff would be employed to dispossess him, the priest declares that when the officer arrives he will not dare to remove a priest, who will be found at the altar clad in his sacerdotal vestments. The parishioners are with Father Sperlein, who vows he will carry his case to the highest ecclesiastical authority before complying with the bishop's mandate.

Trouble arose about a month ago. At that time Father Sperlein left his charges to receive treatment in a Milwaukee hospital. He did not await to be relieved, but simply sent word to the Rt. Rev. Frederic Eis of Marquette, bishop of the diocese, that he had gone. This is contrary to the rules of the church, so the bishop sent Father Becker to take charge, at the same time informing Father Sperlein he had been dismissed. Father Sperlein refused to be dismissed and said that since possession is nine-tenths of the law he would return to his own as soon as the state of his health would permit. He not only went back to Rockland, but continued his duties as the priest of the parishes. Father Becker gave up the fight and returned to report to Bishop Eis, Father Sperlein continuing to hold the fort.

RULE RAILWAY SUPPLIES.

Forty-Million Dollar Trust in Process of Formation, with Q. & C. Company at the Head.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 27.—A $45,000,000 trust, including the manufacturers of practically all patented articles of railway equipment from car roofs to springs, doors and brake shoes and beams, is being formed through the efforts of Charles F. Quincy of this city, president of the Q. & C. Company, manufacturers of railway equipments, and a brother of President W. B. Leeds of the Rock Island road.

Q. & C. Company, Chicago.
Jones Car Door Company, Chicago.
American Brake Shoe and Foundry Company, New York.
Railway Steel Spring Company, New York.
Standard Railway Equipment Company, St. Louis.

The total amount of the six companies' annual output is in the neighborhood of $25,000,000, and the consolidation will be by far the most important, from a railway standpoint, ever effected in the country.

BOWLDERS HURLED TO A GREAT HEIGHT.

Output of Crater Falls Into Sea Two Miles Away—Hundreds of Victims Drowned.

London, Sept. 27.—A special dispatch from Rome, after confirming the reports that Stromboli has been in full eruption for some time, says:

"The night scene was grand, but terrifying. Lava streamed down the mountain sides seawards, whilst huge boulders were hurled from the crater to a great height, falling into the sea fully two and a half miles from shore.

"The director of the observatory at Mount Etna says there has been no earthquake in Sicily, but that probably there has been a submarine eruption between Stromboli and Sicily.

"One hundred and fifty corpses have been recovered at Modica. Hundreds of victims were drowned in the open country."

ACCUSED OF ARSON.

Proprietor and Two Other Men Arrested in Connection with $10,000 Fire at Stanwood, Mich.

Houghton, Mich., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—James McLaughlin, owner of a general store which burned at Stanwood several weeks ago, his brother, John McLaughlin, and William Warner of Red Bridge have been arrested, charged with arson. They were arraigned before Judge Brandt and their preliminary examination postponed.

The arrests are the culmination of an investigation of the origin of the fire. J. S. Carver of Detroit, special agent for the insurance companies involved, caused the arrests to be made. The insurance losses aggregated $10,000. Warner is alleged to have confessed that he was to get $100 for setting the fire and sensational testimony is expected at the trial.

MICHIPICOTEN GOLD FIELDS.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Sept. 27.—Interest in the Michipicoten gold district, about which little had been heard in the last three years, was revived when it was made public that one of the properties upon which exploration had been in progress several month had developed a marvelous showing.

This strike was made on the Mariposa location on the South Wawa lake, in which gold was found in several places. The company controls 400 acres of land on which are located seven claims. It is believed it will develop into one of the greatest gold mines in America. It is asserted that the gold bearing vein found on the Mariposa property is the mother vein of Michipicoten district. The ore is free milling and is easily mined. In close proximity to the Mariposa location is the Grace gold mine, owned by F. H. Clergue, which is also very rich.

SHAW'S OFFER DECLINED.

New York Brokers Get Better Price for Government Bonds.

New York, Sept. 27.—Secretary Shaw's offer to purchase government 5 per cent. bonds at 105 has thus far evoked no response at this center.

Bond brokers continue to offer 105¼ and one house bought $50,000 at that price today. Deducting the ⅛ of 1 per cent. commission charged by the broker, the amount paid the seller was 62.50 more than the government would have paid him.

"We offer 105¼ for those bonds because we can find purchasers at a better price," said the broker who bought the $50,000 lot.

Discomforts of Submarine Vessels.

Men going down in the new submarines for the first two or three times become almost stupefied by the strong fumes of the gasoline used in propelling the vessels.

INDIA'S MENDICANT ARMY.

Three Million Fakirs Who are Fed as Holy Men.

India is the mendicant's paradise, for there they are regarded as holy instead of being considered a nuisance. The penances of these beggars take many and strange forms, one of the severest being the passing of the devotee's life in an iron cage, bound with fetters so heavy as to prevent him standing upright. Others hold one arm above their heads till it becomes withered, while others bind ropes and chains so tightly round their bodies that the bonds grow into the flesh and cannot be removed. A form of penance which savors of the ridiculous is that in which the fakir ties his hands and feet together and rolls head over heels for long distances; in some cases, it is said, thousands of miles are traveled in this way. Although there are over 3,000,000 fakirs in India alone, a beggar never starves, except voluntarily in self-punishment, so afraid are the natives of incurring the wrath of their multitudinous gods if the holy men are not cared for.—Exchange.

Magnetic Islands.

Sailors have long told tales of magnetic islands which lure ships on to wreck by affecting their compasses. An island not far away from civilization, near the coast of Europe, and known for centuries to the geographers, has been discovered to have this quality. This is the island of Bornholm, which belongs to Denmark, and lies in the Baltic sea near the shore of Prussia. The power of attraction which comes from this island alters considerably the reading of compasses on passing ships. It is in effect a vast magnet, whose influence is perceptible for a distance of about ten miles.

FETTERED BY FATE

In all her life Carol Richmond had never seen such an expression of wild, ungovernable joy as swept over the features of Mrs. Randall when she uttered those four words, so simple, and yet containing a wonderful amount of knowledge of the poor lady.

First of all she could trace amazement and incredulity upon the face of the widow, but this quickly gave way to other feelings as her mind began to comprehend the true state of affairs.

Then a cry broke from her lips, a cry so full of delirious joy that it pierced Carol's heart, and she realized then what was the relationship between them.

"My child! my child! Oh, how could they be so cruel as to tell me all had died? I see it now! He would not let me have even one little grain of comfort and hope, but must doom me to complete despair. But the Comforter came—he could not keep Him away—and I found peace. You have looked on your mother as dead, and few there are who know different, but she stands before you, Carol, seeking your pity, your love. Will you come to me, or have you learned to hate the mother that bore you? Speak to me, my child; my heart trembles in anticipation. Heaven help me."

There was not the least hesitation. With a low, exultant cry of "My mother," Carol sprang forward and clasped her arms about the neck of the widow. The strange feelings she had experienced at sight of Mrs. Randall were all explained now, and could be accounted for on very natural grounds.

They embraced with all the fervor of those who loved, though they had been parted so long that it was as if Carol had never seen her mother.

Then they sat down to talk, first of the strange chain of fate that had led to this meeting, and then of the past. Carol heard her mother's story as told in the simplest manner, and then she found no blame could be attached to her. That her father had been blinded by jealousy there could not be the least doubt in the world.

Of late Carol had begun to see her father in a new light that was not as agreeable as it might have been. Formerly she had loved him, and been petted by him as one would expect an only child to be, but all had changed on that day when he found her seated by the side of Roger Darrel in the forest.

He had then shown what an ungovernable temper he possessed, and this had not improved since. Then had come his strange conduct in relation to her marriage with Captain Grant, who also had a hold upon him for some act done in the past.

Last of all she now heard of his contemptible conduct in the past, and her sympathy was wholly with her mother, whom she exonerated from all blame.

These two had each looked on the other as dead for many years back, and to think of their meeting here and recognizing one another by means of the picture of him who should have been the connecting link between them, but who, instead, was the source of misery and discard!

The world would never again look so dreary to the lonely woman, and Carol had found one whom she could confide in, now that even her father had turned against her.

The time passed quickly, and midnight had come almost before they were aware of it. They were still talking about the past and present, and even the future, when they were astonished by a knock at the door.

Instantly all was alarm, for they could conjecture nothing else than that pursuit had been made by the enraged bridegroom and some of the wedding guests, and that they had finally come to the very place where the missing bride had been hidden away.

The elder lady proved herself fully equal to the emergency. She sprang up and hastily placed a large crock over the candle. Then Carol felt herself hurried into a closet.

A minute later she heard the widow boldly open the front door. Before doing so the lady had armed herself with a pistol, for she knew not what desperate need there might be.

The moon had arisen since the time of their arrival at the mill, being in its last quarter, and it was easy to see the figure of a young man standing outside.

"Well, sir, what is it you wish?" demanded the widow, with some severity, and at the same time managing to show the weapon with which she was armed, without appearing to do so intentionally.

The other seemed in no wise abashed, and but for the fact that the moon was at his back she might have seen the smile upon his face, as though he readily recognized the little device so extremely feminine.

"I seek Carol Richmond, but do not think I come from her father. I have no love for him in the first place, for he bitterly wronged my father, though my mother paid him back in full, and made him curse her name. I am not what I seem. Will you tell Carol that Nora Warner is here, and would speak with her."

"Nora Warner? Surely I should know that name; and are you her child? Will strange things never cease? Never mind who I am or what I know, but your mother was once a bosom friend of mine. How did you know Carol was here?"

"That matters not at present. I knew it, and I must see her upon matters of vital importance concerning her happiness. Since last I met her I have found out many things that will alter the whole of her life, and probably bring peace and happiness where wretched sorrow now lives. Do not keep me from her, I entreat you, madam. That fiend has set the hounds from the asylum on my track again, and at any minute they may spring upon me. Then it would be too late, and she must suffer."

There was wild entreaty in the tones of the girl, and, although the reference to the asylum had startled the lady for a moment, she believed the other to be sincere, and turning, took several steps toward the closet in which Carol had been shut.

At this juncture her ears were saluted with savage oaths and a cry of alarm from the disguised girl, followed by the sharp report of a pistol.

Two brutal looking men had sprung from the neighboring bushes upon her.

They were the keepers of the mad house.

CHAPTER XI.

After his duel with the wife he had so foully wronged, Captain Grant had written to Doctor Grim, and in answer the madhouse doctor had gone, with a couple of his men, to recapture the patient who had so miraculously escaped, and whose flight fortune had undertaken to hide in several ways, for the very girl with whom she exchanged clothes either committed suicide or else was accidentally drowned.

Nora Warner had hastily drawn a pistol and fired, but her aim was rendered uncertain owing to the excitement and the deceptive moonlight, so that her bullet only inflicted a flesh wound upon one of the men's arms instead of ending his life. Before she could do more they were upon her, like a couple of mad panthers.

Both of them were brutal men, as might be expected from the business they carried on. They knew that the person against whom they were pitted was but a weak woman, yet their orders had not been of a merciful nature, and in the bushes near by stood a gaunt figure clad in a long cloak and slouched hat—the infamous mad-house doctor himself—who would discharge a man from his employ should he show a sign of mercy when he had received no orders in that line.

When, therefore, Nora Warner struggled in their fierce grasp, as though she would break away, the men used violent measures. One of them clutched her delicate throat in a fiendish manner. Her hat had come off, and the long ringlets, which had been suffered to remain on her head during her long confinement in the asylum, blew about in the night breeze.

"Carol, where is Carol?" she huskily cried; "I must see her before they take me away—see her and tell her."

"Shut up!" cried one of the keepers.

"I am here, Nora Warner. What would you say to me?" she asked, eagerly.

"I came to see you—to tell you that it was all—that he—Roger Dar—good—find out. Help me—I am choking—dying!"

"In the name of heaven take your hand from her throat, you wretch. Don't you see you are killing her? Help! help!" and in her excitement Carol sprang at the keeper, seeking to release the one whom he was choking into insensibility.

"Keep back!" he roared, thrusting her aside, "and thank your lucky stars it ain't you we've come after."

By this time Nora Warner had completely lost her senses, and lay like a log in the arms of the keeper.

Both Carol and her mother were too much horrified to say a word more. Doctor Grim now advanced.

He was one of your smooth-tongued villains—a scoundrel of the first water—and yet he was always pretending to be so tender hearted that he often deceived those who did not know him.

It was second nature with him, and, while torturing the poor souls committed to his fiendish care, he was wont to apologize to them because the red-hot iron was so cold, the end of the lash worn off a trifle, the thumb screws aged, and all such cold-blooded attempts at ferocious wit.

This was the wretch who stood before the two women, and suavely begged their pardon for their having witnessed such a spectacle.

"My men have generally to deal with such desperate madmen that they dare not give one-half a chance for fear of their lives. They know, also, that this woman is a desperate character. Perhaps they have gone a little too far, but better that than that she should have been struck upon the head, which is the way we often have to deal with them."

"But Nora Warner is not mad. By what right do you drag her away from here?" demanded Carol, recovering her voice when she found she had at least a polished scoundrel to deal with.

"You are no judge of that, Miss. Learned men have so decided. These insane creatures could deceive anybody. They have deceived me for fully three weeks at a time, but in the fourth, at the full of the moon, they proved themselves as mad as March hares. I would stake something that this one now has been gaining your sympathy by relating a long rigmarole about a cruel husband. There, I can see by your face that it is the truth. She tells every one that, when in truth she has the best of husbands, who provides her a princely home and all the comforts of life. But I must tear myself away, ladies. There is my card. If ever you should wish a place of retirement for some poor demented relative who is better there than in the world, remember yours sincerely, Timothy Grim, M. D."

He turned to his men, and gave them some hurried orders, upon which they picked up the senseless form of Nora Warner and strode away.

The affable doctor lifted his hat to the ladies, and Carol responded by tearing his card in halves and hurling it from her, which was a plain way of showing her dislike of the doctor, who smiled in his grim way.

She and her mother went in again, and the door was barred. The young girl was lost again in a new whirl of amazement and nameless horror. Was Nora Warner really insane, as the doctor had said? Somehow or other she could not believe it, even though many things seemed to point that way.

Even if Roger Darrel were ignorant of the cruel, heartless manner in which his wife was treated, would that lessen his responsibility any?

He must surely have been aware of the nature of the place in which she had been put, and even a simple mind ought to be able to read the character of the villainous mad-house doctor.

Neither of them seemed to think of rest, and it was near dawn when some noise in the unoccupied part of the ruined mill reached their ears.

A few minutes later, while they stood listening, in dread suspense, and half suspecting that the insane asylum doctor had returned to bear them away to his den of infamy, so as to hide all evidence of his iniquity, the widow drew Carol to the window.

There they could plainly see a man walking rapidly away from the mill. What had he been doing there? Once he turned and looked back, but they had no light in the room, and, besides, his attention seemed directed toward the main part of the old mill.

Carol recognized Captain Grant, and her heart beat rapidly as she wondered whether he sought her.

Whatever mysterious errand brought the duelist captain to the mill at that strange hour, he had no idea how close he had been to his missing bride.

CHAPTER XII.

Had he been given any chance to stake his belief to the others, he would have sworn that the soldier duelist would come back no more; that his words of parting and promise to be with them again in a few minutes after he had convinced the foreign detective—if such the stranger was—of the mistake he had made were but empty braggadocio, and that in reality he was in the power of a man who had hunted long for him, and would not be apt to have the wool pulled over his eyes by his game.

Fancy the old man's consternation and amazement, therefore, when, after the lapse of a short time, the adventurer coolly stepped through the open window leading out upon the veranda.

There was a look upon his face that none of them could fathom, for it seemed to be a mixture of triumph, cunning and dread.

"You see I convinced the fool he had made a big mistake, as I told you I would, and he has gone on to Richmond. Some one misled him, but it is all right now," said the Captain.

Lawrence Richmond noticed several things that excited his curiosity. In the first place the Captain was whiter than he had ever seen him before, and seemed to be trembling somewhat. Then again he had a handkerchief bound around his left hand, and it seemed to have been bleeding too much for him to have scratched it on a thorn in passing.

The Captain did not seem disposed to renew his assault upon the old man. Indeed, what had passed since then seemed to have quieted his spirits in a wonderful manner, and he was even ready to believe the story of Lawrence Richmond in regard to his suspicion that Roger Darrel had been the one who had committed this daring abduction.

The news seemed to affect the Captain, for apparently he hated Roger with an intensity such as is given by the tiger for its prey or its foe, but he did not remain at the house more than a couple of hours.

"There is no use of our lingering here, crying over spilt milk. When we are ready for the ceremony again we will meet once more," and with this the valiant Captain left the house.

An Apt Retort.

George Thompson was an Englishman, and a leader in the movement for the emancipation of the slaves in the West Indies. In telling of his visit to America in 1834-5, Samuel J. May says in his "Recollections" that Thompson was often insulted in the streets by persons who held opposite opinions to his own, and was subjected to many indignities, most of which he bore with equanimity.

Meetings at which he spoke, or at which he was expected to speak, were broken up by mobs. Rewards were offered for his person or his life. All this he endured for the most part with fortitude and sweet serenity. He seemed less apprehensive of his danger than his friends were. Sometimes he overawed the men who were sent to take him by his dignified, heroic bearing, and at other times dispelled their evil intentions by his pertinent wit, one instance of which will suffice.

At one of the last meetings he addressed in Boston, some Southerners who chanced to be present cried out:

"We wish we had you at the South! We would cut your ears off, if not your head!"

"Would you?" Mr. Thompson replied, promptly. "Then would I cry out all the louder, 'He that hath ears to hear, let him hear!'"

Didn't Even Hesitate.

A well-known actor who had been visiting out-of-town friends over Sunday, not long ago, hurried down to the little station on Monday morning, with the intention of taking a certain train into the city. After making a few inquiries of the colored porter who was attending to his duties about the platform, he finished by saying:

"Yes, suh, de very nex' train stops at dis place fo' shuh, suh," was the answer, at which the actor sat down contentedly to read his morning paper. A few minutes later the distant shriek of a train whistle was heard and he jumped up, grasped his satchel and stood ready to board the approaching train. To his surprise and annoyance, the train, which was a fast express, rushed by through a cloud of whirling dust. He looked after the disappearing train through his dust-filled eyes, then turning to the darky, who stood close by with mouth and eyes big and round with astonishment, he exclaimed:

"Well, that train didn't stop here, did it?"

First Domestication of Fowls.

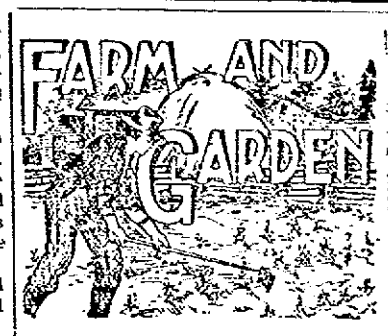
During the reign of Charles I. of England everybody wore boots and spurs, whether he ever mounted a horse or not.

Without hearts there is no home.—Byron.



Mustard in Grain Fields.

The plant referred to scarcely needs description, as it is so common, although the accompanying illustration will impress the reader with its identity. The flowers are yellow and the leaves soft, somewhat resembling those of rape, cabbage, turnips, etc.; in fact mustard belongs to the same family of plants as those named. It is one of the most serious of all the weed pests. This is due to the fact that it ripens its seed before most of the cereals, so that the ground is again seeded down for another year. But this is not all. The seeds are so oily in their nature that they have been known to remain in the ground for a period of twenty-five years when buried so deeply as to prevent germination, and yet after this time have grown vigorously. It is because of this characteristic that it is specially important to prevent wild mustard from seeding. In fields where the plants are few in number the labor expended by way of pulling them up by root would be most profitable.

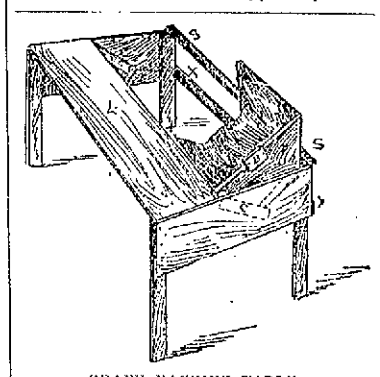
Where it is not practical to pull out mustard, owing to the large amount present, it may be advisable to make the cereal crop into hay rather than allow it to ripen. If some such plan as this is not adopted where fields are badly infested with mustard it may be necessary in the near future to allow the land to lie idle and adopt the summer fallow system in order to get rid of the pest. This would be an instance where an ounce of remedy would be worth many pounds of cure.—Iowa Homestead.

Table for Handling Grapes.

I have seen large, heavy tables for this work in many grapehouses, upon which the grapes were emptied from the trays to be sorted, trimmed and packed into baskets. I do not favor this method of treating grapes. I think the less they are handled the better. The packing table shown makes it possible to take the grapes out of the tray stem by stem as wanted by the packer and thus avoid the emptying out of the grapes. The table is so constructed that a tray fits into it tipped up sufficiently to make it convenient to take the clusters from it. In the illustration half of the tray is cut away in order that the construction of the table may appear more plainly.



GRAPE PACKING TABLE.

The little block (B) on the headpiece of the tray answers a twofold purpose—it serves as a handle in place of the hand holes and it keeps the trays from dropping off one from the other when they are being piled up in the storeroom or when hauling on the wagon sled.—F. Grenier, in Farm and Fireside.

Sowing Clover in Corn.

The farmer who sows clover and finds in the spring that it was winter killed considers that he has lost time, labor and the value of the seed. This is not so, for the growth the clover makes during the late summer and fall has added enough fertility to the soil to materially assist in paying for the time and labor involved. As a matter of fact, there ought not to be much labor spent in seeding the clover beyond the work of putting in the seed, particularly if the work is done at the last cultivation of the corn. Under almost any weather conditions, except severe and prolonged drouth, it may be considered wise to make a seeding of clover, crimson or red, at the last cultivation of the corn. If it goes through the winter, one adds so greatly to the fertility of the soil that they can afford to take some chances.

Shows Lack of Phosphate.

When cattle chew leather, wood or old bones it indicates a lack of phosphate or lime in their food, which is required to supply bone material. A teaspoonful of bone meal given daily with their grain will correct the habit and supply the deficiency which induces it. If the disposition to eat bones is indulged in when cows are in grass the deficiency then evidently exists in the soil, and the pasture will be greatly benefited by a top dressing of bone dust. Two or three hundred pounds to the acre, sown broadcast, will repay attending expenses in a better yield and in quality of milk and butter.

The Farmer's Telephone.

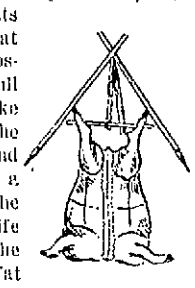
A surprising thing is the development of the telephone system among the farmers here on the prairies, says a correspondent in Nebraska. An independent telephone company has been extending its lines from town to town and village to village. The result is that farmers living from five to ten miles from town are connected and within speaking communication with doctor, storekeeper, bank, grain buyer, etc. Farmers telephone into town in the morning for the price of grain, and if they like it they drive in with a load or two. For their telephones the farmers pay from $1 to $1.50 a month, and as time-savers they are said to be worth from ten to twenty times their cost. At the rate the telephone system is now being developed it will not be more than a couple of years till nearly every farmer in Nebraska is on the wire. With cheap telephones, rural free delivery and consolidation of district schools into central buildings, where there are several rooms, as many teachers and grading pupils, modern life in the rural regions is not what it once was.

Evaporated or Dried Potatoes.

"Dried potatoes" is the name of a new product evolved by the South Carolina Agricultural Experiment Station. The potatoes are boiled, peeled and evaporated in a cannery, and will remain in perfect condition for years. The preserved potato becomes fit for eating after being soaked in warm water for an hour. Like many other new ideas, this promises to be a big thing, and its development may have a great effect on the vast potato fields of northern Maine. It is reported that an acre of potatoes yielded 357 bushels, which made 105 bushels of the dried product, nearly a pound to 3½ pounds of the raw product. Although the report we have does not say anything about it, probably the sweet potatoes can be subjected to the same process.—American Cultivator.

Cutting Up a Hog.

After the hog has been killed and cleaned, cut down on each side of the backbone with a sharp hatchet, then with a few cuts with the knife at the lower part, loosen the leaf lard, pull it upward and take it out. Begin at the breast bone, and with the aid of a knife take out the ribs. Run a knife down between the lean and the fat meat of the backbone. By the aid of splits spread the hog to its full width and allow it to hang until it has thoroughly cooled. The accompanying diagram will show just how the carcass is cut. If the animal is a very heavy one, cut the sides apart, then take off the shoulder, then the side meat and finally the ham. By taking it down in pieces in this manner I can handle a heavy hog myself.—E. Esterley, in Farm and Home.



Plowing by Steam.

An exchange tells of an experiment in plowing by steam near Lenawa Junction. The field was about eighty rods long, containing a little over thirty acres. The engine was attached to a four-gang plow, which turned furrows about sixteen inches wide and seven inches deep, and it laid them over very even and smoothly. It took just seven minutes to make the trip of eighty rods, with one short stop. The outfit is claimed to turn over an acre in an hour, and uses one hundred pounds of soft coal to the acre.—Exchange.

Farm Notes.

If you do not have enough manure for a large field use it on a small plot, and endeavor to make as much as possible by concentrating the manure and work to a limited area. Manure may be wasted by attempting to make it do service on a larger space than it will profitably cover, as well as entailing more labor than the crop can compensate for.

Sheep are one of the best kinds of stocks to keep in orchards. After a little practice they will pick up fallen fruit quicker than hogs; and this is often very important, as the codling moth worm generally leaves the apple soon after it drops. But, with either sheep or hogs, sufficient food must be supplied or the trees will be barked. The food thus given goes, however, where it will do the most good, in the production of the largest and best fruit.

There is quite a difference in the advantages of budding and grafting. The proper time for budding is any period when good buds can be procured and the bark will run on the stocks. Peaches and roses are always budded, but grafting is used on apples, pears and grapes. Budding is sometimes done in order to change the tops of quite young fruit trees. Dry weather is not favorable to budding, and as a rule budding is not as successful as grafting.

Bones may be dissolved by the use of unleached wood ashes, especially if they are broken or ground. The proportions for a fertilizer, used by some farmers, are one barrel of raw bone flour, three barrels dry wood ashes, fifty pounds of gypsum and ten gallons of water. The materials are placed in a heap upon the floor and stirred with a hoe while the water is added. The mass is kept moist, and in two or three weeks will be ready for use. Five barrels of this mixture is considered an efficient and cheap dressing for an acre of ground.

WILL NOT RESIGN.

Secretary of the Treasury Shaw Has No Intention of Quitting His Post.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26.—Secretary Shaw has not resigned and has no intention of resigning. The President said to the secretary yesterday morning:

"I see by the papers that you and I do not agree upon financial questions. But we can't disagree, for you are my financial physician, and I leave the treasury to you, as I leave my lame leg to the surgeons. If there is necessary an operation for the financial boil the papers are talking about you are the man to decide what is necessary. I rely implicitly on your judgment and leave that situation entirely in your hands. I know nothing about it. But I hope you won't give up the case and resign."

The secretary of the treasury replied that he had no intention of quitting his post, and feeling the President's pulse, remarked that it was as steady as the money market, which he regarded as satisfactory.

Money Stringency Relieved.

New York, Sept. 26.—Secretary Shaw further relieved the money stringency of the country to the possible extent of $20,650,000 by deciding to anticipate the payment on government bonds of interest maturing between October 1 and the end of the fiscal year.

If the situation demands Secretary Shaw may place an additional $20,000,000 in government depositories to cover the difference between the par value and the market value of the government bonds given as security for deposits. This will be done only as a last resort.

Treasury Circular Issued.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26.—Secretary Shaw today issued the following circular carrying out his announcement of yesterday regarding the prepayment of the interest on bonds of the United States:

In pursuance of authority contained in Sec. 3699 of the revised statutes of the United States, public notice is hereby given that the interest maturing on the several interest dates between and including November 1, 1902, and July 1, 1903, on the registered and coupon bonds of the United States will be prepaid with a rebate of two-tenths of 1 per cent. per month on the amount prepaid under the following conditions:

Owners of registered bonds desiring prepayment must present their bonds to the treasurer or some assistant treasurer of the United States, who will stamp upon the face of the bonds the fact of such prepayment, and return them to the owners with the interest for the periods above mentioned, less the rebate. National banks owning bonds deposited with the treasurer of the United States to secure circulation or deposit may obtain prepayment upon application to the treasurer of the United States. The bonds so held upon which interest is so prepaid will be stamped as above indicated. Coupons maturing upon the dates included in this circular may be presented for payment at the office of the treasurer of the United States or any assistant treasurer. In calculating the amount of rebate to be allowed any fractional part of a month will be reckoned as a full month and the rebate for such fractional part of a month calculated as a full month will be retained by the United States. Prepayment under this circular will begin Wednesday, October 1, 1902, and continue until November 30, 1902, but prepayment of interest on registered bonds of the loans of 1904, 1908 and 1925 will not be made while the books of those loans are closed.

The secretary of the treasury has made public announcement that he will buy 5 per cent. bonds of 1904 at 105. But. There are $19,400,000 of these bonds outstanding.

Secretary Shaw believes that 105, the price he offers to pay for government 5s of 1904, is reasonable and just, and that, although the current quotations are slightly in excess of that figure, he said today that he regarded such excess to be the result of inflation. At the price he offers a private investor would realize about 1.75 per cent. for the time the bonds have yet to run.

The amount of 5s of 1904 now outstanding is $19,410,350.

WOUND IS HEALING.

President Sits on a Lounge and Attends to Executive Business.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26.—The condition of President Roosevelt's injured limb is considered satisfactory by his physicians. There has been no appreciable variation in his temperature since yesterday, and after the examination of the wound this morning by Drs. Rixey and Lung it was announced that the President was progressing favorably. The inflammation around the wound is slowly subsiding. This morning the President sat up on a lounge in his room, read the papers and attended to some executive business.

None of the members of the cabinet called before noon and no visitors were admitted to his room. The President is obeying strictly the injunctions of the physicians for absolute rest and quiet, although the inactivity is exceedingly irksome to him.

Much of the time of Secretary Cortelyou and the white house force is employed in explaining to committees in the places which the President was to have visited on his Western trip the keen regret which the President experienced on being obliged to abandon his journey. To some of these letters the President is giving his personal attention.

Dreary, rainy weather outside yesterday and today has in no wise affected the President's spirits and he is as cheerful as possible in his enforced confinement.

CENSUS OF PHILIPPINES.

President Roosevelt Signs Order Pursuant to Act Passed by Congress.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 28.—President Roosevelt has signed the order providing for taking a census of the Philippines in accordance with the terms of the Philippine act passed at the last session of Congress and upon the certificate of the Philippine commission that the insurrection has been suppressed.

INDICTED FOR MURDER.

Disbrow Accused of Killing Clarence Foster—Pleads Not Guilty.

New York, Sept. 26.—That Louis A. Disbrow will have to stand trial was definitely settled when the Suffolk county grand jury presented an indictment charging the prisoner with murder in the first degree. Disbrow is accused of the murder of Clarence Foster, but no mention is made of the death of Miss Sarah Lawrence. Disbrow was arraigned. "I plead not guilty," he said, in a loud, clear voice.

Camps in Huron Bay District.

Houghton, Mich., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—Several lumber camps have been established in the Huron bay district, near L'Anse. Wall Bros. have opened two camps there and will cut 10,000,000 feet of timber this winter. Morrison & Williams also have started camps in that region and will get out several million feet of timber.

Marshfield's Street Fair.

The street fair given at Marshfield last week was a great success as long as the weather was at all favorable, that is in point of attendance, as there was a large crowd both Thursday and Friday. On Friday it was estimated that there were eight thousand strangers in the city, the streets being crowded with the merry makers from early morning until late at night.

The lady balloonist gave two fine ascensions on Thursday and Friday, the air being very still and favorable for events of this kind. The ascensions were something like 5,000 feet in height so far as could be judged.

There were some fine exhibits of fruit and vegetables in booths on the streets, probably as nice as could be found in any town in the state. Besides these there were the usual street attractions in the way of tent shows, which were well attended at all times.

The parade given on Friday was one of the finest things of the kind ever seen in the city of Marshfield and would rival anything of the kind usually given in much larger cities. The people seemed to take an especial pride in this feature, and vied with each other to see which could turn out the most handsome equipage. This feature of the fair received much praise from out of town people, and all seemed to appreciate that they were seeing something out of the ordinary.

The second regiment band was on deck at all times to furnish music, and this organization did its share toward livening up the occasion. Besides this there were numerous other musical organizations on hand at the different attractions that lent their mite to the general disturbance.

But notwithstanding that there was a large crowd in attendance at all times and everybody seemed to enjoy himself to the utmost, the merchants, the men who staked the whole affair, reaped very little benefit. The trade at the stores was nothing unusual and some said hardly as great as customary, so that outside of what a street fair does to advertize a town there can be said to be no benefit. And taken all together, the advertising amounts to very little, as the class of people that attend street fairs are not the kind that are looking for business openings or farms. If the merchants of a city are willing to put up several thousand dollars for the sake of giving the people a roaring good time, it cannot be done in any better way than by a street fair. It is simply a three day Fourth of July celebration without the fireworks.

Strenuous Buzz Saws.

A correspondent of one of our exchanges gives the following lucid and interesting description of the pleasures of northern Michigan:

"Northern Michigan is where they yank a big wet log into a mill and saw it into dollars as quick as a railroad man can draw his salary out of the pay car. The log is held on the carriage by means of iron dogs, while it is being worked into lumber. These dogs are not like those we see women holding on their laps; they are another breed of dogs.

"The managing editor of the mill lays out the log in his own mind and works in the shingles and stuff so as to use the goods to the best advantage. At one of these mills not long ago a man backed up to get away from the carriage and thoughtlessly backed against a large saw that was revolving at the rate of 2000 times a minute. The saw took a large chew of tobacco from the plug he had in his pistol pocket, and then began on him. They gathered him out of the sawdust and put him into a nail keg and carried him away; he did not speak again. Life was extinct. Whether it was the nervous shock or concussion of the cold saw against his liver that killed him no one ever knew. We should never lean on a buzz saw when as it says in the scriptures, "it moveth itself aright."

High School Notes.

Last Wednesday morning the pupils of the Howe High school were favored with an address on "The Use of Good English—Its Value and How to Acquire It," by Theo. W. Brazeau. This was an unusually helpful and inspiring talk and was much appreciated by all. The practical value of good English was forcibly illustrated by examples of legal difficulties which constantly arise on account of inaccuracies in the wording of legal documents. The value of using good English in everyday life was also discussed—as a mark of culture—as a stamp of good breeding and education. A number of ways in which the use of good English both in speaking and in writing were discussed. The value of forming the habit of using the dictionary to learn the meaning of a word which is unfamiliar and not to lazily pass it by without making the effort to find out its meaning was emphasized. The importance of habitually using words which are appropriate and really express what we mean, and avoiding words which exaggerate was illustrated by examples

Miss McKercher has prepared a list of forty-two works by the best authors as a reading course for the junior and senior classes. Each member is expected to read a book each semi-term, or six books for the entire year. A course of library readings has also been prepared for all the grades from the 6th on. This is to encourage outside reading of a good class of literature.

The Misses Fern and Beulah Miller and Miss Susie Granger, members of class of 1902, were among the visitors this week. Miss Fern and Miss Susie have their schools engaged for the coming year, and will commence teaching in about a week.

The senior class held their monthly meeting on Wednesday and elected the following officers: President, Fred Roenius; vice president, Bernice Johnson; secretary, Lacy Horton; treasurer, Anna Johnson.

Miss Marion Urquhart of Medford, who will attend the state university this year, and Miss Lizzie McCamley of this city were high school visitors last week.

Miss Grace Mundt of Green Bay and Miss Martha Gattslaff of this city visited the high school Monday afternoon.

John Brennan was absent from school three days last week on account of sickness.

Twice a week news topics on current events are given by the pupils.

A Trip to the Dells.

Following is the log kept by a valiant crew of sailors who recently completed a trip to the Dells. A careful perusal will show that they encountered many hairbreadth escapes and had withal a very enjoyable trip. The personnel of the crew was as follows: Captain, E. H. Loomer; pilot Joseph Whitney; common seamen, Ira Bassett, J. Menier, H. Differt.

Tuesday. Started Sept. 15, 1902. Left Nekoosa at 8 o'clock. Passed Wakely's ferry at 8:30. Took water at the Seven Mile creek. At 9:30 Pilot Whitney caught a fish near Lynn creek. Passed the Ten Mile creek. Couldn't find a landing here, so camped about one and one-half miles below and had dinner. Caught a bass near camp. Broke camp at 1:30. By 2:30 we passed the Bayou. Stopped at Lewis' bend and bought some eggs, potatoes, milk and water. Passed Fourteen Mile creek at 4 o'clock. A large muscallonge caught at the Yellow banks by Capt. Loomer, who fell in and was pulled out by Pilot Whitney. Camped for the night.

Wednesday. Got up at 4 o'clock. Mr. Menier sucked a rotten egg. By cooking coffee Capt. Loomer burned the snoot and handle off the coffeepot. Rained at 5:30. Pilot Whitney caught two pike after breakfast. Started at 8 o'clock. Bass caught near Goodness' bend and at Bass prairie by Pilot Whitney. Mr. Bassett caught bass near Barnum. Stopped at Barnum while Capt. Loomer mailed a letter. Had dinner 2½ miles below Barnum where Pilot Whitney killed a bear thirty years ago. Started at 1:15. Passed Slab slough and the Yellow banks by 3:15. Camped near Spring creek at 6 o'clock.

Thursday. Mr. Bassett stepped in the eggs and was scolded by Capt. Loomer who was cook. In order not to waste the eggs he sucked them. Had breakfast at 5:30. Started at 6:30. Stopped at Petenwell rock. Capt. Loomer mailed letter at Necedah. Mr. Bassett, Mr. Menier and Mr. Differt climbed the rock. Had dinner near the bridge which crosses the river near the Petenwell rock. Started again at 12:30. Passed Roche a Cri creek and Roche a Cri rocks at 4 o'clock. Camped near Germantown at 5 o'clock.

Friday. Had coffee at 4 o'clock in the morning. Two bass caught after breakfast by Mr. Differt. Started at 7 o'clock. Passed the Yellow river and White creek slough at 10 o'clock; Castle rock and White creek at 10:30; Pine Bluff at 11:30. Had dinner at Lemonweir creek, which is near the head of the Big Dells. Left at 1:15. Dutchman's rapids was filled up so we passed through the Dutchman's slough at 2:30. Sighted the McOwen rock at 3:30. Camped at the head of Little Dells at 4:30.

Saturday. Nobody drowned so far, crew all safe. Coffee at 5 o'clock. Passed through Witches' Gulch by 8 o'clock. Passed Steamboat rock at 8:30. Stopped at the Cold Water canon and had picture taken. Passed Nudge rock and Devil's Elbow at 10:15. Passed the ruins of the old Dells House. Dinner at Drinker's sawmill. Packed up our goods and shipped them. Capt. Loomer sold his boat. Stayed in Kilbourn about two hours and then left for home. Pilot Whitney, Mr. Menier and Mr. Bassett went back to Grand Rapids while Capt. Loomer and Mr. Differt went to Milwaukee.

OUR GLOVE SALE!

September 29 to October 4, 1902.

Which we advertised for last week we were obliged to postpone on account of our manufacturer disappointing us, by not shipping the goods as promised. We now however have received the goods and have a display of them in our show window. Also samples of the skins from which they are manufactured. This is the greatest opportunity for buying high class Kid Gloves ever offered in the city, and are goods which have a guarantee behind them. All we say to you is to call and see the line while we have them here (as explained last week there is several hundred dollars worth of these goods sent to us for a short time on consignment) and we can only keep them a few days.

OUR NEW FALL STOCK.

In addition we wish to say that our Fall Stock of goods are open and ready for inspection We have gotten together the finest line of Winter goods ever opened in the city. This being our First Fall Opening we want to make it a memorable one to everyone who calls on us and we have spared no pains to make this store the most attractive of any in the city, not alone in appearance but in the quality and styles of all lines of merchandise, See!

CLOAKS and JACKETS

Our Ladies' "ready to wear" garment department has no pier. Jackets, Capes, Raglans, Skirts, Shirtwaists, Collarettes, Boa's, Scarfs, Wrappers, and Flannelette Night Robes.

Our line of Dress Goods, the Ladies tell us is the finest in the city. To this we just added this week, the most beautiful line of fancy Fall Waistings the market affords. We have them in all colors and grades, ranging in price from $1.25 to per yard down to 15c. Our new line of Ladies' Suitings in five yard lengths are the proper things in fancy mixtures and diagonal weaves, from $1.25 per yard to $2.00. Only one suit of a kinc in this lot.

Fine Wool Blankets from $2.50 to $8.00 a pair in white and colors. Also have the cheaper grades

Just received our second shipment of Zebalines and Venetian Suitings 40 inch goods, all wool at 50c per yard.

Remember, we are exclusive agents for the celebrated P. N. Corsets which are noted for fit and Style. Give us a call.

Respectfully Yours,

Man and His Horse.

Every man should, (for himself, his family and his horse) keep on hand some antiseptic healing dressing that will quickly relieve pain; subdue local inflammation; heal scratches, chafes, chaps, cuts and open wounds; cure bruises, burns, scalds, frostbite, galls and sores; relieve strains, sprains, swellings, muscle soreness, stiff or lame back or neck, rheumatism, neuralgia, the little hurts of childhood, and the accidents and ills of every day life.

Such a remedy is Greene's Infallible Liniment, an honest medicine made to sell on its real merits and give such satisfaction as to make friends and keep them. It is equally good for man or beast. Once introduced into the home, the stable, the gymnasium or the training quarters, it becomes a standby to be used with confidence. A bottle of it is its own best advertisement and all the proof of its utility and merit required. All who use it speak well of it.

"Greene's Infallible Liniment has done me a world of good. I shall always have a supply on hand for use." W. A. Lange, ex-leader C. B. B. Club.

"I consider Greene's Liniment valuable for muscle soreness, sprains, bruises, wounds, galls and scratches. It is economical because only a little is required. My experience justifies me in giving it strong endorsement." Albert H. Merrill.

Mr. Wm. R. Wylie, Supt. Caton Stock Farm, Will County, Ill., writes:—"I have used nearly every liniment on the market but find yours is in a class by itself. It does all you claim for it."

Mr. Judd E. Bisbey, Chicago, says:—"I have kept your liniment in my house; it has in all instances proven satisfactory to my family and myself."

"I have used Greene's Liniment on my horses and find it excellent." E. A. Lord, Chicago, Ill.

"Has given far better results than any liniment we ever used." W. H. Flagg, Palatine, Ill.

"I have used Greene's Liniment and like it. It will remove soreness and help lame horses." Vance Nuckols, Glenville, Ohio.

"There is no better article for general use than Greene's Liniment." George E. Mason, Chicago, Ill.

"I have used Greene's Infallible Liniment on sore tendons, wind puff and scratches with the very best results. I consider it one of the best liniments made and recommend it to all horsemen." J. H. Miller, LaCrosse, Wis.

Druggists keep it or will get it for you if you ask them to. Accept no substitute. There is no liniment that will take its place and do its work. Another like it or "just as good." The makers, J. W. Greene & Co., 17 Van Buren St., Chicago, Ills., to prove its worth, will send a large free sample in return for this advertisement and 10c. to cover cost of mailing. The regular price is 25cts., 50cts. and $1.00 a bottle.

Some of the democratic papers have been so mean as to intimate that the president's sore knee was merely an invention of the fertile imagination of some of the republican bosses as an excuse to get him off the track and put a stop to those speeches that were not exactly in accordance with the ideas of the republican party. We understand that the president had five doctors attending him and consider that he was mighty lucky to escape with his life.

in their hats before starting out to slaughter; "The supreme court has ruled that no person has the right to go upon the land of another against the latter's will or to so intrude upon the right of such other to the exclusive use of lands for any purpose merely because he possesses a state license to hunt."

—Among the salient points of merit possessed by "Sheridan Keene, Detective," which Managers Davidson and Loveland will present at the Grand Opera House, Saturday, Oct. 4 are the excellence of its scenic equipment, its brilliancy of dialogue, stirring situations and its technical accuracy; each scene being a photographically correct representation of its particular locality. The play itself is a literary gem of "purest ray serene" and must be seen to be appreciated.

Just now a large number of the republican sheets are devoting the greater part of their spare space to telling what a bold, bad man Dave Rose is. They don't say anything about their own candidate, but probably they think that everybody knows what he is without any thing said one way or another. Well, maybe they do. Still, he has proven quite a conundrum to a number of the members of his own party, and it might not be out of place to tell something about him.

During the past week the Grand Rapids lumber company sent several carloads of slabs to Berlin where the stuff is to be used for fuel, and the parties that purchased it reported that if the stuff proved satisfactory they would take a large quantity of the material. This certainly begins to look as if wood was going to soar heavenward in price along with anthracite coal and that the poor man would have to burn a mighty poor quality of fuel the coming winter and very little of that. The fact that the coal barons are losing several hundred dollars a day by the coal strike does not seem to be benefiting the poor people to any great extent.

The postoffice department has issued a new order to go into effect on Oct. 1st, with regard to the rural mail routes throughout the country. The most important sections of the order are as follows: Each box must be erected by the roadside, so that the the carrier can easily obtain access to it without dismounting from his vehicle. The same box must not be used for more than one family, except in case of near relatives or those residing in the same house. Persons neglecting or refusing to comply with these conditions will be regarded as not desiring rural free delivery and the carrier will be directed not to serve them.

There is little doubt in the minds of all that the dog belonging to Clark Lyon, that caused such a sensation last week by running about the street and biting other dogs, was affected with rabies. The dog died on Thursday night and as no one saw him at the time it cannot be told whether he exhibited any of the symptoms of a dog dying with hydrophobia. The head of the animal was sent to Madison in order to discover if possible just what ailed the dog. During the past week some valuable bird dogs that were bitten were shot by their owners, among the number being dogs of W. G. Scott, Chas. Briere, Walter Dixon, Ed. Hayes and numerous others.

STRANGE CRIME AT NASH.

Locked Door May Prove Innocence of Accused Woman.

A MURDER MYSTERY.

Washburn, Wis., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—On Tuesday the examination of Emma Thomas, know in Ashland as Mrs. Cassody, charged with the murder of Michael Miller, superintendent of the Ashland & Siskiwit Railway and Lumber Company, will be held. The evidence against the woman is only circumstantial and there is much doubt as to whether the state will be able to hold her. She is in jail and cries continually that she wants to die. She denies her guilt and says that she is grieving for the dead man, whom she claims was the only person in the world she cared for. A locked door will probably prove the means of clearing the woman of the murder charge.

Found Dead in Bed.

Miller was accustomed to sleeping in the rear of the office of the company at Nash, near here. Some of his friends left him at 9 o'clock Sunday night. In the morning one of the employes of the company went to his room, and called to Miller to get up, but he did not respond. The door was broken in and Miller was found. A hasty examination revealed the tragedy. The community was aroused over the mysterious affair, and an examination was started. As a result of circumstances that seemed to surround the affair Emma Thomas was charged with the murder and was arrested.

Woman's Handkerchief Gives Clue.

When found Miller was lying in bed, undressed and on his stomach, with arms crossed beneath him, and a bullet hole just behind the left ear. There were no signs of a scuffle, and the bed was undisturbed. The door of the room he occupied was locked, and there appeared to have been no way in which anyone could have gained access to the room. For this reason the suicide theory was at first advanced. A woman's handkerchief, with nothing to indicate the owner, and a revolver which was afterwards identified as belonging to the Thomas woman, was found on the side of the bed.

Had Threatened to Kill Him.

Further investigation brought out the information that Miller had previously gone with the Thomas woman a good deal, and for the last year or two had endeavored to free himself from the woman's society, but she was persistent, and insisted that Miller should show her attention. Letters were found from the woman to Miller, and in one of them she threatened to kill him. A woman's footprint was also found leading from the office, and it was also learned that a carriage drove through Nash about 10 or 11 o'clock at night with a woman in it. At Ashland it was learned that the Thomas woman had hired a rig from the Anne livery at about 9 o'clock at night, and had returned it to the barn at 12 o'clock or thereabouts. Miss Thomas claims she can prove an alibi.

Locked Door May Clear Her.

Just how the person who committed the murder could have gotten in and out of the room occupied by the victim is a mystery. When the door was forced it was locked and the window was closed and locked. The sheriff thinks that Miller admitted the woman to his room and that when he had gone to sleep she killed him and then opened the door and passed out of the room, the spring lock closing as she retreated. Another theory is that the woman had a key to the room and entered by the use of it while the victim slept and then fired the shot and retreated.

Since being brought to the jail Miss Thomas has been suffering from nervous prostration, and is in a very weak condition. She persistently refuses to touch food, and is melancholy and wants to die. She is being closely guarded.

PLAN A NEW LINE.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—An electric railway line to run from this city northeast to Oshkosh, Fond du Lac, Berlin and intervening points is planned by a company which filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state today. The incorporators are mainly men living along the projected route, but the real backer of the enterprise is Henry Knox of Chicago, manager of the Janesville, Beloit & Rockford electric line, and the road is to become part of the system which is expected to cover Southeastern Wisconsin. The name of the company incorporated today is the Madison & Northeastern Railroad Company, and the route proposed is from Madison via Sun Prairie, Columbus and Beaver Dam to Waupun, with lines from Waupun to Fond du Lac, Waupun to Oshkosh via Rosendale, Waupun to Berlin via Ripon and Dartford—a total of about 130 miles. The capital stock is $25,000 and the incorporators named are Charles Schericker, Sun Prairie; Frank Stegerwald, East Bristol; H. E. Kipler, Sun Prairie; George C. Holtz, H. R. Cook, Henry J. Hopp, Columbus; R. Bailey, Waupaca; A. L. Hutchinson, Weyauwega.

TWO NEW BANKS FORMED.

Depere, Wis., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—A national bank with a capital stock of $50,000 is being organized here by A. G. Wells, C. G. Wilcox, B. F. Smith and C. W. Jackson of the city and H. S. Smith of Appleton.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—The State Bank of Reeseville, Dodge county, filed articles for examination with the state treasurer. Bank Examiner Bergh has given his approval. The bank is capitalized at $25,000 and is to open for business October 1. The incorporators are F. J. Venie, M. F. Venie, A. C. Baker and L. J. Bennett.

Many of the Men Employed by Beldenville Hardwood Lumber Company Demand Higher Wages.

Apollonia, Wis., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—A strike of fifty men, including trackmen, section crews, two log loading crews and one train crew, was consummated this morning at this place on the Beldenville Hardwood Lumber Company's railway. The men went out for higher wages and shorter hours. The works are at a complete standstill.

WEST SUPERIOR JEWS DEMAND JUSTICE.

They Claim They are Being Persecuted and an Organization is Formed to Protect Themselves.

West Superior, Wis., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—The Hebrews of this city will band together to demand justice from the Gentiles. Recently there has been considerable litigation in which Hebrews have been prosecuted, and they claim it is a matter of persecution largely. One of the rabbis said today that his people had stood the persecutions and the insults of the Gentiles as long as they could without retaliating and now they will mass their numbers to give strength to their plea. The Hebrew voters here number nearly 300 and this leverage will be the first one brought to bear.

KENOSHA FARMER BECOMES MILLIONAIRE.

Kenosha, Wis., Sept. 27.—From an obscure farmer to a rich landlord is the story of the past week in the life of James O'Brien of the town of Brighton, in this county, who sailed yesterday for Ireland accompanied by an American attorney to take possession of property left to him by his uncle, John O'Brien. It is said that the property is worth $8,000,000. James O'Brien is a member of one of the oldest families in Kenosha county. Carney O'Brien, his father, came to this county in 1842. He left behind in Ireland one brother, John O'Brien, who started in life with a little estate in the county of Cork, which had come to him from his father. He lived frugally and acquired a large fortune.

SAFES ARE BLOWN OPEN

Two Offices at Racine Entered by Bold Cracksmen.

THEY GET BUT LITTLE.

Racine, Wis., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—Safe blowers were active in this city yesterday morning. Two places were broken into and the safes were opened with nitro glycerine. At one place the entire office and building was badly wrecked by the explosion.

The Gunther sauerkraut factory in the southern portion of the city was entered at about 2 o'clock. The safe was blown open with a large charge of nitro-glycerin. People in the neighborhood were awakened by the explosion and saw two men running away. The men secured $30 in cash and a draft for $102. The front of the building was wrecked and the office was set on fire and badly damaged. The loss will amount to $1000.

Some time between midnight and 6 o'clock this morning burglars entered the office of the Standard Oil Company in the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway yards and blew open the safe. They found no money and got nothing for their trouble.

ASKS MORE ALIMONY.

Mrs. Clotilde Von Trott is Pushing Suit Against Her Former Husband.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—Mrs. Clotilde von Trott of Milwaukee applied to the supreme court today, through her attorney, W. B. Rubin, for an allowance of temporary alimony, which will enable her to carry her appeal from the judgment in Judge Tarrant's court in her divorce suit against her husband, August von Trott, a well-known Milwaukee druggist. She secured her divorce and a judgment for permanent alimony which, with the allowance for attorney fees and costs, together with furniture, amounts to about $4100. The value of his estate is fixed by the court at $14,000 and his income from his drug business and rent of a flat building at $1000 per year. She is not satisfied with the amount allowed her, and her appeal to the supreme court is for a larger judgment, and in the meantime she asks for a temporary allowance which will enable her to fight the case in the supreme court.

George E. Williams opposed the motion for Mr. Von Trott. The court took the motion under advisement.

HIGH PRICE FOR BARLEY.

Chilton, Wis., Sept. 26.—As a result of competition between Knauf & Tesch of this city and William Rahr & Sons of Manitowoc, who control the malt houses here, Calumet county barley is commanding a higher price in Chilton than can be obtained for it in Milwaukee. The price was buoyed up to nearly 60 cents a bushel.

Over 13,000 bushels were brought in yesterday. Of this quantity Knauf & Tesch bought 5000 bushels and the malt house obtained 8000 bushels.

VICTORY FOR BREWERS.

West Superior Loses Action in Which Effort Was Made to Force Local License Payment.

West Superior, Wis., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—If the city wants to force brewers having local agencies here to pay local license it must have recourse to the city ordinances rather than the state laws. That is the decision of Judge Haily of the municipal court. The Schlitz Brewing Company's agent was arrested here early in August, together with agents for several other brewing companies.

NEARLY BLEEDS TO DEATH.

Blood Poisoning Contracted from Working in Iron Foundry.

Racine, Wis., Sept. 26.—A peculiar case of blood poisoning, which puzzles the medical profession, was brought to the attention of Dr. Hahn a few days ago. Dr. Hahn was summoned to the home of J. W. Burke, who was suffering from nose bleeding. The man had become so weak from the loss of blood that he was compelled to give up his position in the boiler shops of the Case Company. Yesterday it was found that blood poisoning had set in in the man's head and the only way of saving his life would be by an operation. The cause of the frequency of the bleeding has been assigned to a tenderness caused by the growth of a small tumor in the nose and poisoning contracted from the iron around which Burke constantly worked.

HAS HER HUSBAND ARRESTED.

Charges Made by Mrs. Brunschweiler Cause a Sensation.

Appleton, Wis., Sept. 26.—The arrest of George W. Brunschweiler, proprietor of the Appleton Paper Box Factory and a prominent insurance man, on a charge of assault and battery preferred by his wife, Ida S. Brunschweiler, caused a sensation in the city. The defendant gave bonds for his appearance later. Brunschweiler was formerly active in the work of the Congregational Church here. He and his wife have been living apart lately.

GIRLS ROUT BURGLARS.

Servants Save ex-Senator Levi Withee's Valuables.

La Crosse, Wis., Sept. 26.—The bravery of two servant girls prevented the theft of several thousand dollars worth of valuables from ex-Senator Levi Withee's palatial residence by burglars. Two men were ransacking the house when the girls rushed down stairs with a loud clatter. One was armed with a poker and the other with a knife. Both men fled and escaped. Four accomplices guarded the house outside.

LOAD BUILDING ONTO SCOW.

Structure to be Moved from Menominee to Green Bay.

Menominee, Mich., Sept. 26.—Hill Bros.' steamboat line has purchased the building formerly used by the Kirby Carpenter Lumber Company of this city from Paul Keenie of Marinette, who purchased a number of the company's buildings, and will move it to Green Bay, Wis., on a scow. There it will be used as a warehouse on the steamboat company's dock.

GIRL'S HORRIBLE DEATH.

Miss Katherine Leiberlich of Kaukauna Dies of Blood Poisoning.

Kaukauna, Wis., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—A case of blood poison of the most baffling nature, which engaged the attention of the whole medical profession here, ended yesterday in the death of a beautiful young girl, Miss Katherine Leiberlich. Miss Leiberlich, aged 19 years, who was strong and apparently healthy in every respect, called to see a local physician with what appeared to be a common sore mouth, but which rapidly developed alarming symptoms and which could in no respect be alleviated in the least degree, death coming in less than two weeks in a horrible form.

SOMMERER DIES OF INJURIES.

Jefferson, Wis., Sept. 26.—Andrew Sommerer, one of the best known residents of this city, died yesterday as the result of internal injuries received in a fall from a ladder while pruning shade trees several days ago. Milwaukee physicians were called in consultation. Mr. Sommerer was 55 years old and is survived by his wife and two children.

SECURES A CENT A MILE RATE.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 26.—Department Commander James H. Azen of the Grand Army of the Republic issued a special circular in which he announces that he has succeeded in securing a one-cent-a-mile rate from all points in Wisconsin to the national encampment at Washington, October 7 to 10.

Baraboo, Wis., Sept. 26.—Miss Alice Morrow, aged 33 years, died yesterday. It is thought she was poisoned by eating canned fruit.

BOY SAVES SIX LIVES.

HIS PRESENCE OF MIND

Lad Realized Danger and Brought Boat to a Stop Just in Nick of Time.

Oshkosh, Wis., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—John Tolman, a 13-year-old lad, saved the lives of five persons besides himself by his presence of mind. Had he not quickly realized the situation before him and taken action, in a few seconds more W. W. Tolman's gasoline launch, Lucy F., would have been crushed beneath the seven cars of a freight train on the Wisconsin Central railroad that were backed off the railroad bridge Sunday evening while the draw was open to allow the Tolman yacht to pass through. Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Hasbrouck, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Tolman, Miss Lucy F. Tolman and the captain, John Tolman, were in the launch. Lacking its regular engineer Mr. Tolman, owner of the boat, operated the engine and the wheel was entrusted to his 13-year-old son. The bridge had opened to let the launch pass, when Master Tolman saw the freight train backing up the north approach. In another moment the cars would have landed on the yacht, but the boy signaled for the reverse of the engine. The boat stopped within 100 feet of the bridge and in another instance the cars came tumbling into the river.

HEROINE SURPRISES FRIENDS BY MARRYING

Kenosha, Wis., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Miss Sarah Bacon and Arthur S. Higley were married yesterday. The wedding was a great surprise to all. Miss Bacon is the best known school teacher in Kenosha county, and she gained renown a few months ago by saving her children from a burning schoolhouse. At the time of the accident to the school a hard storm came up and the little school was struck by lightning. The teacher, with great presence of mind, carried the little children from the house and all escaped serious injury. Since that time the services of Miss Bacon have been in great demand and she has been offered schools in several parts of the state. She consented to accept a position at Paddocks Lake, and was to have taken her examination yesterday. When she came to town, however, she announced that she would not accept the position, and a few moments later a court order was issued for the marriage of the young woman to Mr. Higley. Mr. and Mrs. Higley will make their home at the village of Salem.

GREEKS TO ATTEND EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Special Services Arranged for Them by Rev. Mr. Frank of Sheboygan.

Sheboygan, Wis., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—The Greeks of this city will participate in Sunday service hereafter. The Sheboygan colony numbers about 250, and Rev. Edward Frank, rector of Grace Episcopal Church, will celebrate mass for them every Sunday morning at 6 o'clock at this church. St. Margaret's hall will be used by the Greeks as a night school, where the common English branches are to be taught.

CHURCH WINS CASE.

Free Will Baptist Will Recover Note for $4800.

Monticello, Wis., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—The Wisconsin yearly meeting of the Free Will Baptists has reason to rejoice over the recent decision of the supreme court in an action brought by the society against Albrecht Babler to recover a note and real estate mortgage for $4800, which J. F. Sears, deceased, cashier of the Bank of Monticello, sold to Babler a few weeks prior to his death. Babler is a retired farmer living at Monticello and claimed to be an innocent purchaser. Judge Dunwiddie held against him in the circuit court, and the supreme court affirms that decision.

TRAIN NEARLY WRECKED.

Freight Engine Jumps Track at Racine Junction.

Racine, Wis., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—A train wreck was narrowly averted at Racine Junction this morning. A freight engine jumped the track and came within a foot of crashing into a passenger train which was going north. The engineer of the freight train and, with the fireman, jumped. The engine went into the ditch.

IMITATED A SNAKE EATER.

Sheboygan Boy Swallows Worms and Has to be Operated Upon.

Sheboygan, Wis., Sept. 25.—Physicians were called today to operate upon the tongue of a Third ward boy who ate angle and other worms in imitation of a "snake eater" he had seen at a circus. The boy's tongue was enlarged so that it almost filled his mouth.

SOLD FOR $500,000.

Big Land Deal Closed in Bayfield County by Ohio Parties.

Bayfield, Wis., Sept. 25.—The Dexter Land Company of this city has sold its entire holdings in Bayfield to Ohio parties. The deal involves in the neighborhood of $500,000.

Did Not Enter His Name.

Racine, Wis., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Dr. R. A. Kitto, a well known physician of this city, gave out a statement to the press this morning that some enemy of his had entered his name in one of the matrimonial agencies in Chicago, raided yesterday by the police. He says that he was victimized two years ago by an advertising agency in which his name had been entered by some unknown person.

Burglar Knows Latin.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 25.—A burglar entered the Y. M. C. A. house some time during the night and after taking $9 from the desk of the secretary left a note in Latin and signed "Tramp." The note reads, "Cis dat qui cito dat" (He give twice who gives quickly).

Laborer Killed by a Train.

La Crosse, Wis., Sept. 25.—While returning home from his night's work Vaicutine Konetchny, a laborer, was struck by a Burlington road train. His body, mangled beyond all possible recognition, was found beside the track.

ATTENDANCE LARGE.

More Than 3000 Students will be Enrolled at the University of Wisconsin.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—The attendance at the Wisconsin University this year will be greater than ever before, but definite information as to the number of students is not yet obtainable. Register Hiestand's estimates that the increase in attendance will be about 10 per cent. over last year, which means about 2400 students at the opening. The agricultural students, who come later, will swell the total to over 3000.

Little will be done in class work this week beyond the assignment of lessons.

The chief anxiety is among students who have not yet made up the "conds" resulting from the spring examinations, which stand in the way of their promotion to another class and which have not yet been made up. A few of the football candidates are, according to report, included in this number, but none of the stars are in danger, according to report.

Frat Men Busy Rushing.

The busiest students this week are the "frat." men, who are appointed to look out for new material for their respective societies. Parties of half a dozen from each fraternity will meet all incoming trains with stylish rigs in which the prospective members are given a ride around town and to the fraternity house, where he is duly impressed with the advantages of the particular society which has caught him. Wealth, social standing or athletic ability are the chief gifts which make the candidate sought for.

Annual "Walk Around" at Lawrence.

Appleton, Wis., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—The annual "walk around," an event which has been a feature in Lawrence University social circles during the past twenty-five years, will take place at the Alexander gymnasium next Friday evening. At this affair it is aimed that every student in the institution shall become personally acquainted with the other.

Lawrence will Publish Book.

At a meeting of the junior class of Lawrence University held yesterday afternoon it was decided that a year book be published this year. Paul R. Benjamin was elected as editor-in-chief and Ray W. Ketchum elected as business manager.

Large Attendance at Beloit.

Beloit, Wis., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Beloit College reopened with chapel exercises yesterday afternoon. The registration of students has not been completed, but a larger attendance than last year is assured. The freshman class will number nearly ninety.

President Eaton Back.

President Eaton is back after a year's absence. He addressed the students yesterday and expressed his pleasure at again being in charge of the institution.

Prof. C. W. Person has returned from a three months' stay in Berlin, where he went to study, and T. L. Wright, who was acting dean last year, arrived today from Europe. R. B. Woods of the college class of 1901 will have charge of the library this year.

NEW ROAD FOR STATE.

Chicago & Grand Trunk will Build Line Across Wisconsin Into Minnesota.

New York, Sept. 25.—The Chicago & Grand Trunk has very comprehensive plans for making that line a transcontinental system. Charles M. Hays, general manager of the road, has been quietly perfecting a programme of extension to the West since he left the service of the Southern Pacific and resumed his old place with the Grand Trunk system. Mr. Hays returned four weeks ago from London, where his plans were submitted to the Grand Trunk board, and it is said that they have received the approval of the plan to extend the Grand Trunk through Wisconsin and Minnesota to St. Paul, thence northwest into Manitoba, and from there practically paralleling the Canadian Pacific. The manner in which the new line in Wisconsin is going to make its way across that state is not apparent.

CHARGED WITH ASSAULT.

Prominent Farmers of Racine County Have Been Arrested.

Racine, Wis., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—John Kosterman and his son John Kosterman, Jr., were today arrested charged with assaulting, with intent to do great bodily harm, Herman Eggert, who is now in a local hospital in a serious condition, is the complainant. All of the parties are prominent farmers of this county, and it is alleged that they got into a fierce fight over the pasturage of some cattle. The Kostermans have been held in $500 bonds.

OBITUARY MENTION.

Mrs. Charles Butters, Waldo.

Waldo, Wis., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Mrs. Charles Butters died at her home two miles south of here yesterday, aged 69. She leaves a husband, two sons and two daughters. Mrs. Butters came to Wisconsin from Putnam county, N. Y., with her parents in 1849. She was the oldest daughter of Betsy R. Mead, who is 93 years old and in good health.

Mrs. Aurelia Van Valen, Janesville.

Janesville, Wis., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Mrs. Aurelia Van Valen, 82 years old, a pioneer resident, was found dead in her bed. Death was the result of a stroke of paralysis sustained a year ago.

Charles Butlakier, Wales.

Fear Spread of Diphtheria.

Arena, Wis., Sept. 25.—It is feared by physicians that with the approach of cold weather another epidemic of diphtheria such as was experienced here last winter will occur. Two cases are in quarantine now, the patients being R. H. Hamilton, a prominent merchant, and Miss Phoebe Hodgson, daughter of Marshal Benjamin Hodgson.

German Colony Near Florence.

Florence, Wis., Sept. 25.—Supt. Felix Vogel of the Florence mine is in New York in conference with the officials of the bureau of immigration relative to the establishment of a German colony on the mining company's lands near this place.

Wants $10,000 for Breach of Promise.

Stanley, Wis., Sept. 23.—Kate Eggerer, an employe, has begun suit for $10,000 against John J. Nicholson, proprietor of the Stanley house, for breach of promise.

Huge Army of Laborers.

Since 1899 the great Nile dam at Assouan has given steady employment to from 19,000 to 20,000 Italian and Egyptian laborers.

Farmer Commits Suicide.

Radium for X-Rays.

Radium, the most active of the three new elements emitting invisible radiations, has been proved by Prof. George F. Parker to be a cheap and efficient substitute for X-ray apparatus for photographing internal parts of the body. When the hand was placed between the metal and the sensitive plate a picture showing the bones was taken in half a minute. Aside from this valuable property radium rays act like Roentgen rays in producing phosphorescence and discharged electrified bodies. Radium is one of the greatest puzzles on account of its anomalous expenditure of energy without appearing to lose any or to receive any from the sunlight or any other source.

Unredeemed Coin.

Of the big copper cents issued many years ago 119,000,000 have not been redeemed by the government. About 2,000,000 of the nicked three-cent pieces are not accounted for.

GOOD RHYMES GONE WRONG.

When the English tongue we speak
Why is "break" not rhymed with "freak?"
Will you tell me why it's true
We say "sew" but likewise few;
And the maker of a verse
Cannot cap his "horse" with "worse?"
"Beard" sounds not the same as "heard;"
"Cord" is different from "word;"
"Cow" is cow, but "low" is low;
"Shoe" is never rhymed with "foe."
Think of "hose" and "dose" and "lose;"
And of "goose"—and yet of "choose."
Think of "comb" and "tomb" and "bomb;"
"Doll" and "roll;" and "home" and "some"
And since "pay" is rhymed with "say,"
Why not "paid" with "said," I pray?
We have "blood" and "food" and "good;"
"Mould" is not pronounced like "could."
Wherefore "done," but "gone" and "lone?"
Is there any reason known?
And, in short, it seems to me
Sound and letters disagree.

A gentleman whose liberality in no way corresponded to his means found out one day that there was some ale in his cellar almost spoiling, and decided to get rid of it without delay.

The next morning when he was rambling over his estate he came across a party of workmen. Addressing the man in charge, he ostentatiously presented the ale to the men, and said they could go and fetch it as they liked.

A few days afterward he happened to meet the foreman again and immediately proceeded to extract from him in some way a suitable acknowledgment of the bounty recently bestowed.

"Well, Williams," said the donor, with the air of a man who had granted an unspeakable favor, "did you and your men have that ale?"

"Oh, yes sir, thank you, we had it," was the reply.

"That's right, and how did you like it?"

"Oh, sir, it was just the thing for us," was the vague response.

"Ha, that'll do then. But what do you mean by 'just the thing?'"

"Well, sir," said William, "if it 'ad been a little better we shouldn't a 'ad it, and if it 'ad been a little worse we couldn't adrinked it."—New Yorker.

During a voyage, on the sudden stoppage of the machinery, the vessel having run aground, considerable alarm took place, especially among the female passengers.

"What is the matter? What is the matter? For heaven's sake, tell me the worst!" exclaimed one more anxious than the rest.

After a short pause a hoarse voice from the deck replied:

Rev. R. Perry Bush of Chelsea, who was present in a ministerial capacity at the opening of the convention of the Massachusetts Embalmers' Association at the Quincy house last Wednesday, consented, in the absence of Mayor Collins, who was to address the body, to speak a few words of greeting. He related an instance of a stuffy undertaker and a funeral.

"As I entered the church," said Mr. Bush, "I was greeted by the undertaker in charge of the funeral, who said: I want you to stand there,' pointing to half-way up the pulpit steps.

"'I prefer to stand either at the top or the bottom,' I replied. 'Then I can see my audience.'

"'You stand where I tell you,' was the retort. 'I am running this funeral.'

"'But you are not running me,' I answered, 'and I will give you just one minute to withdraw your order or get another minister.' And I took out my watch and commenced to count off the seconds. At the thirtieth he said: 'Well, stand where you darn please!'

'And I did," exclaimed Mr. Bush.—Boston Herald.

It was Harriette's seventh birthday and she had been promised a party, but as her mother was sick on that day all the company she had was two little girls of her own size. One of her presents was a birthday cake with seven candles on it. After the children had eaten all the cake Harriette went very quietly to her mother and said:

"Mamma, when is it time to eat the candles?"—Cecelia Colby in Little Chronicle.

The Night Before Christmas, in The Darkest Hour, A Contented Woman In Old Kentucky, being desirous of going to the theater, called on her friend, Sis Hopkins, whereupon the two decided to visit Rudolph and Adolph with a view to inducing them to accompany them.

As they were about to leave the house there was a rap at the door and in walked Francesca da Rimini, Irwin's Majesties and the Utopians, who had been at the Palm Garden, and also had dropped in for a friendly visit.

"Let's organize a party and all go together," said Francesca da Rimini, after the intentions of the others had been made known to the newcomers.

"Very well," acquiesced A Contented Woman, apparently satisfied with any arrangement which might please the others, "where shall we go?"

They talked the matter over, naming the various attractions, but could arrive at no decision.

"I have it," finally spoke up Sis Hopkins, "let's go to see A Modern Magdalen 'Way Down East!"

And they did.

"Oh, Arthur!" she cried, throwing her arms about his neck, appealingly, "you certainly ought to; nobody else in town will."—New York Daily News.

District Attorney Reeves of Los Angeles, Cal., appreciates a good story and tells one of an Irishman that will bear repeating.

"Some people object to releasing prisoners on a bonier because of the fact that the renegades are turned loose upon other communities. That reminds me of the Irishman who, after reaching America, was full of homesick brag in which nothing in America even approached things of a similar variety in Ireland. In speaking of the bees of the ould sod he grew especially roseate and said:

"'Whoy, the baze in that counthry is twice as big as in this. Indade, they're bigger than that. They're as big as th' shape ye have in this counthry.'

"'Bees as big as sheep?' said his incredulous listener. 'Why, what kind of hives do they have to keep them in?'

"'No bigger than the ones in this counthry,' was the reply.

"'Then how do the bees get into the hives?' he was asked.

"'Well, replied the Irishman, "that's their own dom lookout.'"

The carriage builders of London are now ending what has proved to be the most prosperous season they have ever known. Nearly every coroneted coachhouse required to be refurnished with a state coach, so long had it been since any great pageant had been performed. A state coach is rather an affair of crochets in any case; and some curious letters have passed between peers and their carriage builders in regard, among other things, to the size of the emblazonings on the panels. The raciest letter, however, quoted as in the possession of one coach builder, refers to an ordinary carriage. It was written on behalf of a great lady by an aide-de-camp: "Lady ——— will be much obliged if you will kindly varnish her. She thinks only one side wants doing, but will be glad if you will send and see." He had merely omitted the important word "carriage."—London Chronicle.

An attorney from Houston, Tex.,—J. D. Bryant—tells this story of Judge Roy Bean, justice of the peace in the Lone Star state, who is known better as "The Law West of the Pecos River:"

He held a coroner's inquest on a Mexican who had been found dead near the Pecos river. The jury brought in a verdict of accidental death. The crowd was dispersing when the judge called them back.

"There is another matter to attend to," he said. "On this man's body was found $50 and a six-shooter. It is contrary to the laws of Texas and to the peace and dignity of the state to carry concealed weapons. Therefore I confiscate the revolver and fine the deceased $1. A good story is related of Henry Clay Dean, the famous orator of a generation or so ago. Mr. Dean was generally referred to as "Henry Clay Dean of Iowa," even long after he had established a home in Missouri. He explained his change of habitation in this way: "You see, they passed a nefarious prohibition law in Iowa, and there's your whisky gone. Then they abolished capital punishment, and there's your hanging gone. And now the whole population seems to be drifting toward Universalism, and there's your hell gone. THE ACCOMPANYING NOTE.

How Gardener Made Embarrassing Situation for Patron.

A young man, whose gallantry was largely in excess of his pecuniary means, sought to remedy this defect and to save the money required for the purchase of expensive flowers by arranging with a gardener to let him have a bouquet from time to time in return for his cast-off clothes. So it happened that one day he received a bunch of the most beautiful roses, which he at once dispatched to his lady love. In sure anticipation of a friendly welcome, he called at the house of the young woman the same evening, and was not a little surprised at a frosty reception.

After a pause the young woman remarked in the most frigid tones: "You sent me a note today."

"A note—I?"

"Certainly, along with the flowers."

"To be sure, I sent you flowers; but"—

"And this note was with the bouquet. Do you mean to deny it?"

A Catch in the Back.

Grand View, Iowa, Sept. 29th.—Mrs. Lydia Parker, of this place, says:

"I was troubled with backache all the time for years. When I would stoop over a catch would take me in the back and I could not straighten up for some time.

"I tried everything I could think of but got no relief till I sent and got Doan's Kidney Pills.

"I used one box and part of another before the trouble all left me, but now I am well and strong and I have not been troubled with my back for some months.

"I believe my cure is a permanent one and I am very grateful indeed to Doan's Kidney Pills for what they have done for me.

"I would most heartily recommend them to anyone suffering with lame back, for I believe they will cure any case of this kind."

Sacred Birds.

This involves no irreverence to sport, but merely recapitulates a few of the birds which in different countries have been and are invested with a sort of popular reverence. In Paris the sparrow, all objections notwithstanding, remains the pet of the populace, and legislative protection is only just beginning to safeguard the swallow. In Alsace, Basle and Germany the stork sits enshrined in popular respect, not to say superstition, while in Egypt the sparrow-hawk holds sway and atones for his predatory instincts by acting as a licensed scavenger.—Paris Nature.

A Hard Struggle.

When you have a bad back, a back that's lame, weak or aching, it's a hard struggle sometimes to find relief and cure, but it's a harder struggle when the dangers beset you of urinary disorders, too frequent urination, retention of the urine with all the subsequent pains, annoyances and suffering. There are many medicines that relieve these conditions, but you want a remedy—a cure. Read this statement; it tells of a cure that lasted:

Veteran Josiah Heller, place of residence 706 South Walnut street, Urbana, Ill., says: "In the fall of 1880 I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Cunningham's drug store in Champaign, and after taking the remedy conscientiously I made a public statement of the results. I told how Doan's Kidney Pills relieved me of kidney trouble, disposed of my lame back and the pains across my loins, beneath the shoulder blades, etc. During the interval which has elapsed I have had occasion at times to resort to Doan's Kidney Pills when I noticed warnings of another attack, and on each and every occasion the result obtained was just as satisfactory as when the pills were first brought to my notice. At this time I just as emphatically endorse the preparation as I did several years ago."

A FREE TRIAL of this great Kidney medicine which cured Mr. Heller will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, price 50 cents per box.

Eccentricities of the Ostrich.

At the ostrich farm at Coronado, Cal., it takes a bale of alfalfa hay cut up and a sack of barley to feed fifty-three birds. The chicks are as inquisitive as a monkey, and will snap a button off your coat if an opportunity offers. The old males are fighters and can split fenceboards with a kick; but when they get real mad they lie down and twist their necks and flap their wings like a skirt dancer. Young chicks a few weeks old are worth in the market $25 each.

New Use for Old Shoes.

In France old shoes are bought up in quantities by rag dealers and sold to factories, where they are taken apart and submitted to long processes which turn them into paste, from which the material is transformed into an imitation leather, appearing much like the finest morocco. Upon this material stylish designs are stamped and wall papers, trunk coverings and similar articles are manufactured from it.

For High-Speed Railway Trains.

FOR IRRITATIONS OF THE SKIN, RASHES, Heat Perspiration, Lameness, and Soreness incidental to Canoeing, Riding, Cycling, Tennis, or any Athletics, no other application so soothing, cooling, and refreshing as a bath with CUTICURA SOAP, followed by gentle anointings with CUTICURA, the Great Skin Cure.

Millions of Women use CUTICURA SOAP for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and soothing red, rough, and sore hands, for baby rashes and chaffings, in the form of baths for annoying irritations and inflammations of women, or too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes for ulcerative weaknesses, and many sanative, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves, as well as for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. CUTICURA SOAP combines delicate emollient properties derived from CUTICURA, the great skin cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients and the most refreshing of flower odours. Nothing can induce those who have once used these great skin purifiers and beautifiers to use any others.

RUDOLPH.

Last Friday night a number of people gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Close to celebrate their wooden wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Close received many useful presents. Refreshments were served and all reported a jolly time.

Thomas Sharkey has sold his farm of one hundred and twenty acres to a party from abroad and it is Mr. Sharkey's intention to go to Alberta, British America, in the near future where he expects to make his future home.

Chris Hassell recently sold several acres of land to parties from Winona and we understand they intend to erect a planing mill and run a lumber yard thereon. Rudolph certainly is coming right to the front.

Albert Scott, who is working in the woods at Mosinee, was home the latter part of last week, returning on Sunday. While here he was the guest of his best girl.

Mrs. Shadduck, who has been at Merrill taking care of her sister, Mrs. C. Crotteau, who has been seriously ill, returned home last week.

Mrs. Fred Phillips of Milwaukee arrived last Thursday to take care of her mother, Mrs. P. Keyzers, who is very ill.

Miss Josie Morgan and Louis LeBreche were guests of Miss Morgan's parents over Sunday.

Mrs. John Dagle is in Merrill this week, the guest of her sister and other relatives.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies. All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record. For sale by Johnson & Hill Co. and Wood County Drug Co.

BABCOCK.

There were several couples of our young people attended the show and dance at Pittsville on Saturday evening. Among those who went were Messrs. Desper, Griffith and Sullivan and Misses Lina Griffith, Meda Lombard and Maud Gardner.

There was a very enjoyable dancing party at the home of E. O. Warren on Friday night. It was a surprise party but Mr. and Mrs. Warren were equal to the occasion, and no one could complain with the way that they were entertained.

M. F. Ward has sold his stock of general merchandise to a Mr. Good, a new comer in this vicinity. While we shall miss Merritt, we predict a large trade for his successor.

Ethel O'Reilley spent Saturday and Sunday with her friend Gertie O'Leary who has recently moved to Tomah.

Miss Mabel Sullivan returned on Saturday from Lindon, where she had been visiting for two weeks.

Amos Griffith and Misses MacDaniels and Eva Miller were Grand Rapids visitors on Saturday.

Miss May Lombard will leave today for a two weeks' visit with friends at Tomah.

Husband and Wife Disagree.

Husband and wife often disagree about some matter that concerns each other and frequently the husband finds that his wife's judgment is the best, the case of Mr. John W. Young of Lincoln, Ill., is however an exception, he says: "My wife and I both had a severe cold and we decided to get some kind of medicine. I bought for myself a bottle of Harts' Honey and Horehound and taking it as directed was well in a short time. She wanted another kind and with the result that she still has a bad cough. I advised her to take Harts' Honey and Horehound and think she will have to do so if she gets well this winter." Sold by Sam Church Druggist.

SHERRY.

Jake Drollinger, who spent a few months in North Dakota, returned home last week. He says Wisconsin is good enough for him.

A bright little girl has come to adorn the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Parks, born on Tuesday, Sept. 30.

Old People Have Their Troubles.

Mr. Francis Little of Benton Harbor, Mich., is over eighty years of age. Since 1865 he has been troubled more or less with indigestion and constipation and has tried almost everything in use for those ailments. Last August he began using Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablers and was soon feeling much better. In a recent letter he says, "I have used three boxes of the Tablets and now think I am well." These Tablets improve the appetite and invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. For sale by Johnson & Hill Co. and Wood County Drug Co.

OFFICERS CHOSEN.

DEMOCRATS IN CONVENTION.

The Marshfield Convention is Marked by the Utmost Harmony and a Good Ticket is Put Up

The democrats met at Marshfield on Friday and nominated a full county ticket and member of assembly. The county was well represented at the convention and there was the utmost harmony prevailing throughout the entire meeting.

The meeting was called to order by L. M. Nash, chairman of the county committee, who stated the object of the meeting, then a chairman of the convention was elected in the person of Geo. W. Baker. L. E. Colvin of Pittsville was elected as secretary and the work of making nominations was proceeded with.

For member of assembly the only name proposed was that of W. E. Wheelan and he was nominated unanimously.

There were two aspirants for the office of sheriff, they being Richard Scheibe of Nekoosa and Mike Vincent of this city. Only two ballots were necessary to make a choice, Mr. Vincent receiving a majority of all the votes cast at the second ballot.

John Juno of Marshfield was nominated to the office of county treasurer.

For district attorney C. B. Andrews of Marshfield was the choice of the convention, this nomination also being unanimous.

For clerk of court the convention nominated A. B. Sutor of this city. John Jarvis of Port Edwards for coroner. Michael Krings for surveyor and Miss Mayme Maloney of Marshfield for superintendent of schools.

The convention then elected L. M. Nash of this city for chairman of the county committee. Mr. Nash had tendered his resignation as chairman and did not want to accept the office again, but there was such a demand for his services that at last he succumbed to the wishes of the delegates and accepted the honor conferred upon him. H. E. Fitch was elected secretary of the county committee. A member of the county committee was elected from each election precinct in the county, they being:

Arpin, John Domnitz; Auburndale town, Ed Kennedy; Auburndale village, Al. Van Rizen; Cary, to be selected; Dexter, Wm. Downing; Grand Rapids, 1st ward, Louis Schroeder; 2nd ward, Henry Kline; 3d ward, Will Gross; 4th ward, Albert Bunde; 5th ward, Joseph Lucascheski; 6th ward, D. D. Conway; 7th ward, P. Mulroy; 8th ward, G. W. Mason; Grand Rapids town, John Herron; Hansen, Leo Reusch; Hiles, to be selected; Lincoln, Lambert Michaels; Marshfield, 1st ward, Henry Kalshed; 2nd ward, John Brackendorf; 3d ward, John P. Hume; 4th ward, John Hoffman; 5th ward, Mat Wright; 6th ward, William Kamps; Marshfield town, John Wolf; Milladore, George Hooper; Nekoosa village, M. McStrack; Pittsville, 1st ward, L. E. Colvin; 2nd ward, Joseph Applebaker; 3rd ward, W. A. Dawes; Port Edwards town, Casper Gurtler; Port Edwards village, John R. Jarvis; Remington, L. Ward; Richfield, Wm. Zenner; Rock, Herman Theil; Rudolph, Winfield Scott; Saratoga, M. Mathews; Seneca, Anton Kreger; Sherry, Frank Laroux; Sigel, F. C. Hanke; Vesper, Joseph Z. Arpin; Wood, Gotfredz Sowatzke.

The democrats are to be congratulated on having nominated so able a set of officers to take charge of the affairs of the county, especially as there are indications that they will be called on by the people to fill the offices to which they were nominated. The men are all energetic persons who if elected will do their best to give the people good service, while Miss Maloney, who was nominated for the position of superintendent of schools is a most estimable lady and eminently qualified to fill the position in which her friends wish to place her.

Among those present at the convention was Burt Williams of Ashland, democratic nominee for member of congress from this district. Mr. Williams was called on for an address and although he had made no preparation for anything of the kind, he gave those present a most pleasant talk and made friends of all who heard him. Mr. Williams is a very entertaining talker and never fails to carry the crowd with him when he appears before the public. Mr. Wheelan was also called on and made a short address before the convention, thanking those present for the honor conferred on him and also saying a few words on the subject before the convention.

Edward Lynch for Senator.

At the senatorial convention held at Plainfield on Tuesday Edward Lynch of this city was chosen by the democrats to represent them in the state senate from this district, which comprises the counties of Wood, Marquette, Waushara and Adams. The Tribune heartily endorses the nomination of Mr. Lynch and there is no doubt that if he is elected he will give the people of the ninth senatorial district the best representation they have ever had in the state senate.

Death of Daniel Preston.

GRAND RAPIDS vs STEVENS POINT

The Normal Team Wins Over Our High School Eleven by 11 to 6

The high school football team played their first game of the season at Stevens Point last Saturday with the first team of the normal school. All the circumstances considered it was a game of which we may all feel proud. The normal school team averaged much heavier than our boys, probably fifteen to twenty pounds each, and have had besides the advantage of regular coaching. The game was played on a muddy field in the rain, where greater weight told.

This lack of practice was evident in the playing of our boys, though the fact that they played a good game is evident from the way in which they held the heavy normal team. It proves, too, that with additional practice we have one of the best football teams in the valley.

Bandelin and Brennan were the stars in the game. The former played his end so effectually that no gains were made in that quarter, and he also assisted the opposite end. Brennan was good for gains through the heavy lines even when gains in that direction seemed impossible.

Grand Rapids kicked off to Stevens Point. For several minutes the ball was pushed back and forth in the center of the field with but small gains. Finally Brennan made a long run and scored the first touchdown. Kelley kicked the goal.

The normals then kicked off to Grand Rapids who lost the ball on a fumble. Finally Daws broke through the line for a touchdown, but Stevens Point failed to kick the goal. The first half closed 6 to 5 in favor of Grand Rapids.

In the second half the normals succeeded in making two touchdowns, the last a quarter of a minute before time was called, but they failed to kick goal in either instance, and the game closed 11 to 6 in favor of Stevens Point.

Our boys have nothing but praise for the treatment accorded them by the Stevens Pointers and they feel that their time was well spent both on account of the practice received and the time they enjoyed while the guests of the normal team. Following is the lineup:

Stevens Point.		Grand Rapids
Geimer	center	Kruger
Aver	right guard	Potter
O'Connell	right end	Wood
Christensen	quarter	Horton
Reid	right half	Corcoran
Prof. F. N. Spindler	officials	W. L. Oswald
Prof. Collins	timekeepers	Supt. H. S. Youker
Murat	linesmen	Lester

Time of halves—20 and 15 minutes.

Touchdowns—Brennan 1, Davis 1, Reed 2.

On Saturday, the 18th instant, the high school team will play with Stevens Boint high school in this city and on the 25th they will play Wausau high school at Wausau. It is possible that other games will be arranged for, and if possible one will be scheduled for next Saturday.

Killed With Dynamite.

The body of William Budreau was brought to this city on Saturday of last week and interred in the Catholic cemetery. The body came from Bruce, where Mr. Budreau had met his death from an explosion of dynamite.

Mr. Budreau had been blasting out some stumps with the use of dynamite, and was going to the field on Friday morning, carrying some dynamite, fuse and caps in a tin pail. Just why the explosion occurred will probably never be known, but the man was smoking as he proceeded on his way and it is supposed that a spark from his pipe fell into the pail and exploded one of the caps and this caused the dynamite to explode. There was a terrific explosion and Mr. Budreau was hurled several feet and his body about the abdomen was terribly torn, killing him instantly.

A companion who was with him was also stunned by the explosion, although he was about sixteen feet distant at the time, and as a consequence he was not able to give any idea of how the accident occurred.

The deceased was 41 years of age and leaves a wife and eight children to mourn his death. He was a brother-in-law of Herman Smith of this city, having married Mr. Smith's sister, and was a cousin of Messrs. Arpin. He had charge of a large farm belonging to the Arpins at Bruce. Mr. Budreau was formerly a resident of this city, but left here some ten years ago.

Found a Monstrosity.

One of the most remarkable natural curiosities ever discovered in this country was unearthed in the town of Lincoln this week, and will be exhibited here during the carnival. The anomalous animal is a cross between a sheep and a hog, showing some of characteristics of each, and has been named by the present owners a Schaf-Schwein. The curiosity was raised by John Anderson on his farm six miles west of the city and is a year old. It resembles a sheep more than a hog in build, but is much larger than the ordinary sheep, weighing about 300 pounds. The animal is healthy and lively, has the body of a sheep and the head and limbs of a hog and grunts like a hog, though covered with a heavy coat of wool. The Schaf-Schwein is now in the hands of a Marshfield syndicate and will be exhibited in a tent as one of the star attractions of the fair.—Marshfield Times.

COURT ON MONDAY.

NOT A VERY LENGTHY TERM.

Only Six Criminal Cases to be Tried at This Term.—Other News Items of Interest.

Circuit court convenes in this city next Monday, Judge Chas. M. Webb presiding. The term this session does not promise to be a very long one as there are only six criminal cases on the calendar, and none of them are such as would be likely to take up much time. The criminal cases are as follows:

State of Wisconsin vs. Anton Kupsch, rape.

Mary Carter vs. Silas Wright.

John Rothenberger vs. Michael Schmidt.

Michael Griffin vs. Wilhelmina Hoerl.

Wm. Jungbluth and Lydia Jungbluth vs. Pilllippina Winkel.

There are several other cases to be tried before the court, mostly from outside, and of very little interest to parties here, as well as several divorce cases. These will be tried at the conclusion of the jury cases.

Still in Progress.—Although we have not heard much concerning the waterworks of late, still the work is progressing and it has reached such a stage of completion that it is expected to have it finished the latter part of this week or the first of next. This is providing everything holds when the final test is made. The standpipe contractors were here this week and put a few bolts into that part of the system and stopped some leaks that had developed, and the only thing that remains now that is not satisfactory to the inspecting engineer is the pipe that leads across the river. This still leaks and will continue to do so until a diver is brought here and the defective places repaired.

Lost His Money.—The Wausau Herald is authority for the following: Wilbur Kellner, a student at the Wausau Business college, was the victim of a holdup on Monday night. He was going from down town to his boarding place at 517 Adams street and while walking along 5th street near the railroad crossing, a man stepped out from behind a lumber pile and, pushing a revolver into his face, demanded his money. Mr. Kellner lost no time in handing over all he had, $12, and was then allowed to proceed on his way. As he did not report the holdup to the police until next morning the robber had ample time to make his escape.

Marriage Licenses.—The following marriage licenses wese issued by the county clerk during the past week: Frank Kubisiak and Mary Cepress, both of Sigel; Stephen Sucowske and Mary Latus, both of Grand Rapids; Felix Smolarek and Jennie Stusherk, both of Sigel; Wm. L. Becker and Essie Cattanach, both of the town of Lincoln; Charles H. Pratt of Athens and May Anderson of Hanover, Ill.; Albert Buboiz and Annie Wepfer, both of Marshfield; Charles Ewer of Richfield and Minerva Wood of Lincoln.

Drove too Fast.—The police picked up a man on Thursday evening who was driving across the bridge faster than is stipulated in the ordinance on the subject. When arrested the man stated that he would not pay the fine, but later the same evening he changed his mind and going before Justice Crotteau paid the fine and costs and was released. People driving over the bridge should be careful to observe this ordinance as in its present condition there is no need of subjecting it to unnecessary strain.

—During the past few weeks furniture has made quite a jump in price among wholesale dealers and as a consequence retailers will have to advance their price proportionately. During the past week Geo. W. Baker & Son received a carload of bedroom suits which they were fortunate in having ordered before the advance, and they intend to give their customers the advantage of their good luck. Better see them for furniture.

Baseball at Nekoosa.—Two games of baseball were played at Nekoosa on Sunday, one being between the Nekoosa team and the Tomah Indians and the other between the Grand Rapids team and the Tomah Indians. The Indians were victorious in both games, beating the Nekoosas by a score of 6 to 2 and the Grand Rapids team by 4 to 2. The game with Grand Rapids was only five innings, but the other game was nine innings.

Lost in the Woods.—A dispatch from Eau Claire says: "John G. Faulds, formerly city editor of an Eau Claire newspaper and recently employed on the Grantsburg Journal, is lost in the woods in Burnett county and is probably dead. His three children are with grandparents at Alma." Mr. Fauids was formerly a resident of Grand Rapids, having occupied a position on one of the papers here.

Sunday Train Stopped.—The Sunday excursion train that has been run over the Green Bay & Western road between this city and Green Bay during the past summer has been discontinued. This train was probably the most popular Sunday train that was ever run from this place, and many took advantage of the chance to visit some points along the line every Sunday.

W. F. M. S. Officers.—At the last meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary society the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. A. D. Hill; first vice president, Mrs. William Scott; second vice president, Mrs. T. J. Cooper; secretary, Miss Fannie Palmer; corresponding secretary, Mrs A. L. Ridgman; treasurer, Mrs. R. A. McDonald.

Buying Corn Shredders.—John Klug, who is agent for the Plano people, last week sold two cord shredders, one to Casper Brothers of Rudolph, and the other to Matt Hemis of Mehan. The corn shredder has been used a great deal by farmers further south, but as yet it has not gained much of a foothold in this part of the country.

Will Open a Branch.—E. A. Weeks, of Plainfield, one of the proprietors of the Plainfield Marble works, was in the city for several days last week looking over the place with a view to opening a branch works here. He found a suitable place and the company expect to have their plant in operation here within a few weeks.

A Good Show.—Those who attended the production of the gamekeeper on Friday evening last report that the play was a good one and that it was well rendered by the company that produced it. There was plenty of fun and Irish wit with good acting to make it interesting for all. A fair crowd greeted the show.

Went to Marshfield.—About one hundred people went to Marshfield on Thursday and Friday to take in the street fair, democratic convention, etc. Although the weather was anything but pleasant on Friday, all who went managed to find something to amuse themselves with during their stay there.

—George Baker & Son the furniture men have just received a carload of bedroom suits which they got at a very low price on account of buying a large quantity and they intend to sell them very cheap. If you need anything of the kind it will stand you in hand to look over their stock.

Held to Circuit Court.—George Taylor, the man who was charged with horse stealing, had his hearing before Justice Getts on Tuesday and the young fellow was bound over to appear at the next term of circuit court.

Settled the Case.—The case against the LaCrosse Mutual Aid association brought by Burt Brown was settled on Wednesday by the defendent paying Mr. Brown $15 and half the costs already incurred in the suit.

A Powerful Play.

—One of the most powerful plays ever seen in this city will be produced at the Grand Opera House Saturday night when the clever company that have been receiving unlimited praise from press and public in other cities will be seen here in the successful play, "Sheridan Keene, Detective." This is one of the most interesting plays ever written, and it contains a very pretty story cleverly told, plenty of good healthful comedy, and lots of startling situations. The scenery and mechanical equipments are superb, and the production is in many respects, equal to any seen on the metropolitan stage.

BODY IN FURNACE.

New York, Sept. 27.—The headless and nude body of a man was found today at 38 West Twenty-ninth street, a building occupied by a Chinese restaurant. Six arrests have been made.

According to the police, some persons went to the station house nearest the place this morning and complained of a bad smell from the building. They said that there was a terrible odor. Several detectives traced the odor to the basement of the building and found the body. The head was in a furnace. Blood was all over the place. Close by under a pile of lumber Thomas Tobin, a waiter, was found feigning sleep, according to the police. There was a fire in the furnace which the police say was extinguished with a few pails of water. Then with a long bar they pulled the charred head of a man out. Tobin is under arrest.

Police Captain Sheehan went to the upper part of the building, which is known as the Empire hotel, and arrested four men and a woman witness. The building is a three-story, shabby-looking brown stone structure close to Broadway.

It is said that a suit of clothes, a vest, with a mackintosh and a shoe, were found in the furnace.

Blood stains were found in the cellar, which lead to the belief that a murder was committed there and the body taken to the furnace, which is near.

It is said that one of the men arrested as witnesses, named McAnerny, has given the police some valuable information and has hinted that he saw part of the tragedy. The dead man is said to have been a patron of the place.

The odor of the burning flesh was perceptible, it is said, a block away.

Result of a Quarrel.

According to Capt. Sheehan, McAnerney is the bartender in the place. The captain says McAnerney told him that Tobin, the dead man, who was known about the place as Capt. Jim of Long Island, a woman known as Turner and he, McAnerney, were sitting in a room drinking at about 2 o'clock this morning when Tobin and "Capt. Jim" had a quarrel. Their trouble became very bitter and Tobin left the room, returning in a few minutes with a cleaver with which he struck Capt. Jim on the head, after which he dragged the man downstairs to the cellar, where he hacked the body to pieces. Capt. Sheehan did not learn the cause of the trouble.

The murdered man is believed by the police to be James B. Craft, of Glen Cove, L. I. A dispatch from that place says Craft lived on a farm there. He was supposed to be well-to-do.

KILLED HIS WIFE.

New York, Sept. 27.—Harry Rose, stage manager at the Garrick Theater, shot and instantly killed his wife at their apartments in the Royal on West Thirty-third street today. After committing the murder Rose walked to a station, and handing the revolver he had used to the sergeant said: "I have shot my wife."

The woman was formerly an actress, her stage name having been Belle Berger. Rose admitted that the crime was the result of jealousy. He told the police that he had been married fourteen years.

"Three days ago," he said, "I came home and found a man with my wife. It was the first time I had ever suspected her in all our married life.

"This man is a rich man," he went on. "She admitted to me this morning that she loved him and had ceased to love me. Now I am square."

A colored servant in the employ of the couple made the following statement:

"There was no one in the flat with Mrs. Rose last night. Mr. Rose stayed out all night. Mrs. Rose retired early, but a little later than I did.

"This morning Mrs. Rose had her breakfast in bed about 8 o'clock. Mr. Rose came in at half past 8. He had a few words with Mrs. Rose and then went out, banging the door after him as if in anger. When Mrs. Rose was dressing ready to go out, Mr. Rose came back. I was in the kitchen. After a few minutes I heard Mrs. Rose half shrieking say:

"'You would not harm me, Harry, would you?', and Mr. Rose answered: 'No.' Then there was quiet for twenty or thirty seconds, followed by four reports from a revolver. Mr. Rose left the flat and I went in and found Mrs. Rose lying on the floor."

Coroner Scholer was notified of the murder and he went to the Royal. There he found Mr. and Mrs. Charles Zimmerman. Mr. Zimmerman is a partner in the Philadelphia firm of Nixon & Zimmerman

Mrs. Zimmerman is the sister of the dead woman. The man mentioned by Rose in the case is known to the Zimmermans, but they say they knew nothing of his relations with Mrs. Rose. Mr. Zimmerman said he understood his sister-in-law had met the man at the Saratoga races this summer. To the coroner, Rose told practically the same story he had before told.

Coroner Scholes held him without bail. Rose said his wife's right name before marriage was Lizzie Berger and that her mother lives in this city. Rose was born in Chicago and is 40 years of age.

MESSMER'S NAME NO LONGER CONSIDERD.

Rome, Sept. 27.—The candidature of Rt. Rev. Sebastian G. Mehrmer, bishop of Green Bay Wis., for the archbishopric of Manila, is, it is asserted in Vatican circles, no longer being considered, because of his hostility to the negotiations between Gov. Taft and the Vatican on Philippine matters. The Vatican is in receipt of numerous protests against the anti-Catholic propaganda in the Philippines. It is claimed that the Catholics ought to be allowed entire freedom of religious teaching among a community whose only form of worship is Catholic.

The Cocoanut Crop.

Cocoanut trees grow in profusion on the Philippine islands. Despite the fact that the crop is periodically affected by heavy typhoons, the trade has increased immensely in the last twelve years. There are by careful computation about 300,000,000 cocoanut palms in the world in full bearing.

—Atchison has a real miser, who, although worth $100,000, makes most of his meals on parched corn.

TO BREAK THE STRIKE.

Expect that Strikers will be Kept Quiet by Soldiers and that Move will be Successful.

Philadelphia, Sept. 26.—The Philadelphia & Reading Company is expected to resume operations at all its anthracite mines in Schuylkill county this week. A number of mines will be opened in a day or two. This would be a big entering wedge, and if the Schuylkill mines can be opened and operated successfully the backbone of the strike will be broken.

It is said upon authority that a conference was held in the Reading Terminal building between President Baer and Judge Campbell, counsel for the Reading Company, and after the interview Brig. Gen. Schall, commanding the First brigade of the National Guard, which is expecting orders to go to the mine region, was acquainted by telephone with the results of the conference. The troops are in readiness to move and can start for the mines at a moment's notice. The moment the order to move comes special trains will be found in readiness at the terminal station of the Reading railroad.

Expects to Succeed.

At the general offices of the Philadelphia & Reading Company no authorized statement could be procured as to the intentions of the company. An official connected with the general management of the mines, however, gave assurance that the company will have no difficulty in resuming work in the Schuylkill mines with practically a full force of men, and added that, as the men are ready to go to work, they will be given the opportunity this week.

"We have assured ourselves," said he, "that the men throughout the Schuylkill valley are tired of this enforced idleness and are really anxious to resume work before cold weather sets in. Two things prevents these men from following their inclinations. First, the liability to injury to themselves, and second, the indignities those who are depending upon them may be subjected to.

"The presence of state troops in the anthracite region has had a quieting effect upon those who are inclined to tyrannize over other men, and gradually the strike is disintegrating, and the more this is manifested the greater will be efforts of the lawless element to check it.

"State troops alone can be relied upon to check this, and it is gratifying to notice that many of the soldiers, while absolutely in accord with the strikers, are loyal to their oath to the state."

Will Not Declare Martial Law.

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 26.—Gov. Stone was asked if he would declare martial law in the coal regions. He said:

"Without discussing the power of the governor to declare martial law, it will be wholly unnecessary to resort to that remedy.

"The National Guard has been sent into the coal regions to suppress tumults, riots and mobs where the civil authorities are unable to suppress them.

"There is now a surplus in the treasury and the state is prepared to maintain a large army in the field for an indefinite time."

No Sign of Settlement.

Lebanon, Pa., Sept. 26.—There is no sign of settlement of the strike at the American Iron and Steel Company's plant. The modified offer of the striking employes includes the discharge of the Southern negroes brought here to take their places and to this President Sternberg has so far refused to accede. It is rumored that Pinkerton detectives have arrived to investigate the promiscuous shooting. There are now about 1250 men and boys at work at the plant.

The men who remain out number about 800. Soldiers are guarding the works and all is quiet.

Quiet in Lackawanna Region.

Scranton, Pa., Sept. 26.—Quiet reigns in the Lackawanna region today. There was no repitition of yesterday's disturbances. As an effect of yesterday's rioting twenty-five of the nonunion men employed at the Delaware & Hudson Company's Grassy Island, Eddy Creek and Olyphant No. 2 collieries quit work today. Twenty-one men employed at Johnson No. 2 colliery of the Ontario & Western Company also quit. They told their foremen that they were afraid to continue working.

FURTHER INDICTMENTS.

Final Session of the St. Louis Grand Jury —Rottenness in Municipal Assembly.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 26.—The June grand jury met this afternoon for its final session, several witnesses being present to testify.

It is said that the report of the body will be sent to the court next Monday and several indictments are expected as a result of the findings.

The investigations of the jury, aided by Delegates J. K. Murrell's disclosures, have resulted in the indictment of nineteen delegates and former delegates, and the arrest of all but six of the number who are fugitives from justice.

MARRY COUPLES GRATIS.

Hammond, Ind., Mayor Has Novel Matrimonial Scheme.

Hammond, Ind., Sept. 26.—For the next thirty days the mayor of this city, A. F. Knotts, will marry Hammond young men free of charge. He will also give them every other help that lies within his means to start a home for themselves. He makes no conditions save that the men must live in Hammond. Their brides may come from any part of the country. He has made special office hours for the ceremony, but is uncertain as to whether his proclamation may do more than shame Hammond's bachelors into matrimony. This novel matrimonial plan is in line with other ideas that the mayor has received from his studies in social economy. Ministers and judges do not believe that his scheme will be successful.

BREWER SEVERELY BURNED.

Supreme Court Justice Hurt by Igniting Brush with Gasoline.

Burlington, Vt., Sept. 26.—Justice David J. Brewer of the United States supreme court was severely burned about the face and hands at his summer home at Thompson's Point. Justice Brewer lingered longer at the point than the other cottagers and was cleaning up some brush about his cottage, Liberty hall. He used a small amount of gasoline to make the brush burn better, and was in the act of lighting the pile with a match when the accident occurred. His wounds were promptly attended to, and with good nursing he hopes to be out in a few days without scars.

RAILROAD WRECKS.

Paris, Sept. 27.—Twenty-six persons have been killed and a score of people have been injured as the result of an accident to an express train running from Lille to Paris. The train left the rails while crossing the switch at Arleux, where it did not stop, and while going at great speed.

The locomotive and tender were upset and the carriages were piled up and smashed to pieces. The bodies of sixteen men, two women and two girls, all French, were taken out of the wreck. About fifty persons were injured and many of them who are suffering from broken limbs and fractured skulls are not likely to survive.

Airbrakes Would Not Work.

Rawlins, Wyo., Sept. 27.—At least four and perhaps several other persons were killed by a freight wreck in the Union Pacific yards at this place shortly after 1 o'clock this morning. The names of the dead so far as now known are:

PAUL W. DAYTON, coal passer, residence not known.
JAMES WELSH, fireman, Rawlins.
JOHN PATNOE, engineer, Rawlins.

The bodies of the first three have been recovered, but that of Engineer Patnoe is still under his engine. The engineer was pinned down by the end of the tank resting on his legs, and for several hours he was conscious and carried on a conversation with members of the rescuing party, but he was finaly overcome by heat from the engine and the burning cars about him. It will be necessary to raise both the tank and the locomotive to get at his body.

It is known that several tramps were aboard the ill-fated train and as none have been seen about the wreckage it is feared they were either killed outright or were burned to death.

Th Rawlins fire department succeeded in extinguishing the fire and saved about one-half of the fourteen cars that were piled up.

The accident was caused by the failure of the airbrakes to work on the eastbound fruit special and no one is held responsible.

The train came into the yards at lightning speed and crashed into a switch engine before the crew of the latter had time to get out of the way.

Ties on the Track.

Sioux City, Ia., Sept. 27.—The lives of several hundred passengers were endangered in Union county, South Dakota, by two attempts to wreck Milwaukee excursion trains. These trains left Sioux City thirty minutes apart, and were crowded with passengers. Four miles east of Elk Point the special for Canton struck a pile of ties. No damage was done and the train proceeded. The special for Mitchell, thirty minutes later, struck another pile of ties at almost the same place, and one tie was wedged in the pilot. No motive is known for the act and there is no trace of the miscreants.

Goes Over an Embankment.

Washington, Ind., Sept. 27.—A work train on the Southern Indiana railway with fifty-three men on board was wrecked one mile northwest of Elnora last night. The locomotive, tender, coach and caboose turned over an embankment six feet high. None of them was killed outright but seven are badly injured.

Locomotive Runs Wild.

Livingston, Mont., Sept. 27.—With the engineer gone and the fireman sleeping in his cab, a lone wild Northern Pacific engine tore down the mountain side a mile west of here yesterday and at the foot of the hill struck another engine with terrific force. Engineer Owen, in charge of the latter, was so badly injured that he died eight hours afterward. His fireman, James Hose, lies at the point of death. The sleeping fireman of the runaway was not awakened until thrown from the cab by the collision.

KIDNAPED DAUGHTER.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 27.—A 10-year-old girl was kidnaped from the Illinois Industrial Training School for Girls at Evanston by her father yesterday. A search of six months for the girl, a dash away from the institution and a long chase by the Evanston police were features of the affair. The parents of the child had been divorced and the mother took her to Evanston secretly to prevent the father gaining possession of her.

The girl was Edythe Deahl, and her parents are said to be wealthy people living in Ohio. Her mother obtained a divorce from her father, Herman Deahl, in March, and was given possession of the child. Fearing that the father would kidnap the girl, Mrs. Deahl took her to Evanston and placed her in the training school. Then the father began a search to locate his daughter. He learned of her presence in Evanston a few days ago, and late yesterday appeared at the office of the school. He told the matron who he was and asked to see the girl. The girl was brought to him in the parlor, while the matron kept watch over the pair from a room across the hall. Suddenly Deahl picked the girl up in his arms, dashed out of the door and started away with her. The matron telephoned to the police and a patrol filled with policemen started after Deahl. After a long chase Deahl jumped into a buggy and made his escape with the girl.

WHITECAPS BEAT WOMEN.

Gov. Durbin Orders Summary Action Against Lawless Gang.

Nashville, Ind., Sept. 27.—Edna Colson and Elizabeth Rush were brutally beaten at Maple Heights, near Bloomington, by a gang of self-styled "regulators," who have whitecapped twenty-four persons in Brown and Monroe counties within the past year. The governor and other state officers have taken notice of the outrages and are taking steps to furnish protection and break the gang up.

The attorney general said he had written to a former victim who had appealed to him for protection, that if he was threatened again to shoot and shoot to kill and he would defend the shooter from the charge of murder.

RENTS HAWARDEN INN.

Gladstone, Mich., Sept. 27.—[Special.] —Hawarden Inn, a Gladstone hostelry known throughout the peninsula, has been rented for a term of five years by L. E. Granger of Lansing, Mich., a hotel man of experience. The inn is being remodeled throughout and will now have a barber shop, bar-room and news stand in connection, besides a Turkish cafe. Particular effort will be made to cater to summer resort patrons.

UNTIL THE MINERS WIN.

Strike Leaders Say that Struggle will Continue Indefinitely.

MEETING AT PITTSBURG

President Mitchell Declares Cause of the Anthracite Workers will be Sustained to the End.

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 27.—President James Mitchell and Secretary-Treasurer W. B. Wilson of the United Mine Workers of America arrived in this city shortly before 9 o'clock today and went at once into conference at the Hotel Henry. President Mitchell stated that nothing of importance would be transacted at the meeting. "We are here to go over routine business only," he said.

When asked if other parties would take part in the meeting he said: "No. We will probably be here until tomorrow evening, unless we get through before."

Concluding, he said: "The cause of the strike in the anthracite mines will be sustained until the end. If I have anything to say it will be given out later."

Secretary-Treasurer Wilson said: "The strike has been on for twenty weeks, and will be continued until the miners win."

It is reported here that the meeting will be more important that the officers will admit, and further, that a number of labor leaders will be in the conference before it is over.

Negotiations Futile.

Lebanon, Pa., Sept. 27.—The strike at the plant of the American Iron & Steel Company was not settled today as was expected. The men submitted modified terms to the company. These were considered at a meeting of this company in Reading until late last night, after which General Manager Lord returned to Lebanon. He met a committee of the men today and told them their proposition had been neither rejected nor accepted. The modified demands of the men were as follows: "That the negroes be withdrawn; that puddlers be paid $4.50 a ton; an increase of 3 per cent. be given to the men in the finishing department; no discrimination to be made against any former employes."

Nonunionists Chased Away from Work.

Shenandoah, Pa., Sept. 27.—A mob of several hundred people at Centralia this morning intercepted the men who have been going to work at Mount Carmel by trolley. The men all returned to their homes. A little while later a Lehigh Valley passenger train pulled into the station and the mob crowded into the cars looking for nonunion men. A few who were waiting at the station for the train to take them to work at Packer No. 2 colliery were chased home.

Held Up Coal Train.

Shenandoah, Pa., Sept. 27.—About midnight last night it was reported to Gen. Gobin that the strikers held up a coal train that was being taken away from Pott's colliery at Locustdale and drove off the engineering crew. Today the general sent a company of infantry to the colliery under command of Provost Marshal Farquhar and with the soldiers to protect it the train was taken away without interference.

Plan Big Coal Convention.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 27.—The common council adopted resolutions inviting the people of all the cities and towns depending upon the Pennsylvania fields for their coal supplies to appoint representatives to meet in this city to consider ways and means to force a resumption of the coal production, either by pressure of public opinion or by government intervention, which should be demanded if other measures fail.

Try to Buy Unions.

Scranton, Pa., Sept. 27.—District President Nichols issued a statement in which he charges that an ex-mine foreman named Michael Grimes is "at the head of a movement inaugurated by the coal companies to bribe a number of Mine Workers' locals for $2500 apiece to vote to return to work." Mr. Nichols declares at the close of his statement that his "informants stand ready to prove their assertions in court." Mr. Grimes denies the Nichols statement, and the coal companies also say it is not true.

Water in the Mines.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 27.—An investigation by Capt. Baird, in charge of the state, war and navy department buildings, has resulted in the discovery that the largest anthracite mines are from one-half to seven-eights full of water, and that it will take three months to pump them out and have them in full operation after the strike is ended. So certain are the government officials that it will be impossible to obtain an adequate supply of anthracite coal for the coming winter that special permission has been obtained from the law officers to purchase soft coal.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 27.—General Manager Luther says it is true that several of the Reading's collieries are flooded, but these have been abandoned for a time at least. The officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad's anthracite companies report that their mines are in such condition that were the miners to go back to work on Monday the collieries would be able to produce three-fourths of their normal output, and that within a week they would be in perfect shape.

PILLARS OVERWEIGHTED.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 27.—The front portion of the nine-story office building under construction for Henry S. Willard on Fourteenth street, opposite the new Willard hotel, collapsed shortly after 8 o'clock this morning and a large crowd of people passing on their way to business had a miraculous escape from death or injury. The accident was caused by overweighting the two iron column supports for the front wall, the pillars being insufficient to sustain the weight of the 800 and 1000 pound stones which were being piled as a sill coping on the sixth floor. These immense stones and a part of the iron framework fell to the ground, but fortunately the noise of the crash warned the workmen and the people in the street.

SEARCH FOR LOST WEALTH.

Fifty Thousand Dollars in Government Bonds Have Disappeared.

Belleville, Ill., Sept. 27.—Simultaneously with the death of Bartley Toomy of East St. Louis $50,000 in United States government bonds, his property, disappeared. Twenty years ago Toomy secured a patent upon a monkey wrench. He sold his rights for $75,000, and invested $50,000 in government bonds, which have since given him support. Being taken suddenly ill he was removed to the hospital, dying there of "palpitation of the heart." Friends instituted a search for the bonds, but they were nowhere to be found.

SHERIFF WOULD NOT TEAR HIM FROM ALTAR.

Houghton, Mich., Sept. 27.—[Special.] —Refusing to be dismissed by the bishop of the diocese, Rev. Father Sperlein, pastor of the Greenland and Rockland parishes in Ontonagon county, has hurled defiance and avers he will not be removed so summarily without a hearing. In replay to threat that if necessary a sheriff would be employed to dispossess him, the priest declares that when the officer arrives he will not dare to remove a priest, who will be found at the altar clad in his sacerdotal vestments. The parishioners are with Father Sperlein, who vows he will carry his case to the highest ecclesiastical authority before complying with the bishop's mandate.

Trouble arose about a month ago. At that time Father Sperlein left his charges to receive treatment in a Milwaukee hospital. He did not await to be relieved, but simply sent word to the Rt. Rev. Frederic Eis of Marquette, bishop of the diocese, that he had gone. This is contrary to the rules of the church, so the bishop sent Father Becker to take charge, at the same time informing Father Sperlein he had been dismissed. Father Sperlein refused to be dismissed and said that since possession is nine-tenths of the law he would return to his own as soon as the state of his health would permit. He not only went back to Rockland, but continued his duties as the priest of the parishes. Father Becker gave up the fight and returned to report to Bishop Eis, Father Sperlein continuing to hold the fort.

RULE RAILWAY SUPPLIES.

Forty-Million Dollar Trust in Process of Formation, with Q. & C. Company at the Head.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 27.—A $45,000,000 trust, including the manufacturers of practically all patented articles of railway equipment from car roofs to springs, doors and brake shoes and beams, is being formed through the efforts of Charles F. Quincy of this city, president of the Q. & C. Company, manufacturers of railway equipments, and a brother of President W. B. Leeds of the Rock Island road.

Q. & C. Company, Chicago.
Jones Car Door Company, Chicago.
American Brake Shoe and Foundry Company, New York.
Railway Steel Spring Company, New York.
Standard Railway Equipment Company, St. Louis.

The total amount of the six companies' annual output is in the neighborhood of $25,000,000, and the consolidation will be by far the most important, from a railway standpoint, ever effected in the country.

BOWLDERS HURLED TO A GREAT HEIGHT.

Output of Crater Falls Into Sea Two Miles Away—Hundreds of Victims Drowned.

London, Sept. 27.—A special dispatch from Rome, after confirming the reports that Stromboli has been in full eruption for some time, says:

"The night scene was grand, but terrifying. Lava streamed down the mountain sides seawards, whilst huge boulders were hurled from the crater to a great height, falling into the sea fully two and a half miles from shore.

"The director of the observatory at Mount Etna says there has been no earthquake in Sicily, but that probably there has been a submarine eruption between Stromboli and Sicily.

"One hundred and fifty corpses have been recovered at Modica. Hundreds of victims were drowned in the open country."

Proprietor and Two Other Men Arrested in Connection with $10,000 Fire at Stanwood, Mich.

Houghton, Mich., Sept. 27.—[Special.] —James McLaughlin, owner of a general store which burned at Stanwood several weeks ago, his brother, John McLaughlin, and William Warner of Red Bridge have been arrested, charged with arson. They were arraigned before Judge Brandt and their preliminary examination postponed.

The arrests are the culmination of an investigation of the origin of the fire. J. S. Carver of Detroit, special agent for the insurance companies involved, caused the arrests to be made. The insurance losses aggregated $10,000. Warner is alleged to have confessed that he was to get $100 for setting the fire and sensational testimony is expected at the trial.

MICHIPICOTEN GOLD FIELDS.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Sept. 27.—Interest in the Michipicoten gold district, about which little had been heard in the last three years, was revived when it was made public that one of the properties upon which exploration had been in progress several month had developed a marvelous showing.

This strike was made on the Mariposa location on the South Wawa lake, in which gold was found in several places. The company controls 400 acres of land on which are located seven claims. It is believed it will develop into one of the greatest gold mines in America. It is asserted that the gold bearing vein found on the Mariposa property is the mother vein of Michipicoten district. The ore is free milling and is easily mined. In close proximity to the Mariposa location is the Grace gold mine, owned by F. H. Clergue, which is also very rich.

SHAW'S OFFER DECLINED.

New York, Sept. 27.—Secretary Shaw's offer to purchase government 5 per cent. bonds at 105 has thus far evoked no response at this center.

Bond brokers continue to offer 105¼ and one house bought $50,000 at that price today. Deducting the ⅛ of 1 per cent. commission charged by the broker, the amount paid the seller was 62.50 more than the government would have paid him.

"We offer 105¼ for those bonds because we can find purchasers at a better price," said the broker who bought the $50,000 lot.

Discomforts of Submarine Vessels.

Men going down in the new submarines for the first two or three times become almost stupefied by the strong fumes of the gasoline used in propelling the vessels.

INDIA'S MENDICANT ARMY.

Three Million Fakirs Who are Fed as Holy Men.

India is the mendicant's paradise, for there they are regarded as holy instead of being considered a nuisance. The penances of these beggars take many and strange forms, one of the severest being the passing of the devotee's life in an iron cage, bound with fetters so heavy as to prevent him standing upright. Others hold one arm above their heads till it becomes withered, while others bind ropes and chains so tightly round their bodies that the bonds grow into the flesh and cannot be removed. A form of penance which savors of the ridiculous is that in which the fakir ties his hands and feet together and rolls head over heels for long distances; in some cases, it is said, thousands of miles are traveled in this way. Although there are over 3,000,000 fakirs in India alone, a beggar never starves, except voluntarily in self-punishment, so afraid are the natives of incurring the wrath of their multitudinous gods if the holy men are not cared for.—Exchange.

Magnetic Islands.

Sailors have long told tales of magnetic islands which lure ships on to wreck by affecting their compasses. An island not far away from civilization, near the coast of Europe, and known for centuries to the geographers, has been discovered to have this quality. This is the island of Bornholm, which belongs to Denmark, and lies in the Baltic sea near the shore of Prussia. The power of attraction which comes from this island alters considerably the reading of compasses on passing ships. It is in effect a vast magnet, whose influence is perceptible for a distance of about ten miles.

In all her life Carol Richmond had never seen such an expression of wild, ungovernable joy as swept over the features of Mrs. Randall when she uttered those four words, so simple, and yet containing a wonderful amount of knowledge of the poor lady.

First of all she could trace amazement and incredulity upon the face of the widow, but this quickly gave way to other feelings as her mind began to comprehend the true state of affairs.

Then a cry broke from her lips, a cry so full of delirious joy that it pierced Carol's heart, and she realized then what was the relationship between them.

"My child! my child! Oh, how could they be so cruel as to tell me all had died? I see it now! He would not let me have even one little grain of comfort and hope, but must doom me to complete despair. But the Comforter came—he could not keep Him away—and I found peace. You have looked on your mother as dead, and few there are who know different, but she stands before you, Carol, seeking your pity, your love. Will you come to me, or have you learned to hate the mother that bore you? Speak to me, my child; my heart trembles in anticipation. Heaven help me."

There was not the least hesitation. With a low, exultant cry of "My mother," Carol sprang forward and clasped her arms about the neck of the widow. The strange feelings she had experienced at sight of Mrs. Randall were all explained now, and could be accounted for on very natural grounds.

They embraced with all the fervor of those who loved, though they had been parted so long that it was as if Carol had never seen her mother.

Then they sat down to talk, first of the strange chain of fate that had led to this meeting, and then of the past. Carol heard her mother's story as told in the simplest manner, and then she found no blame could be attached to her. That her father had been blinded by jealousy there could not be the least doubt in the world.

Of late Carol had begun to see her father in a new light that was not as agreeable as it might have been. Formerly she had loved him, and been petted by him as one would expect an only child to be, but all had changed on that day when he found her seated by the side of Roger Darrel in the forest.

He had then shown what an ungovernable temper he possessed, and this had not improved since. Then had come his strange conduct in relation to her marriage with Captain Grant, who also had a hold upon him for some act done in the past.

Last of all she now heard of his contemptible conduct in the past, and her sympathy was wholly with her mother, whom she exonerated from all blame.

These two had each looked on the other as dead for many years back, and to think of their meeting here and recognizing one another by means of the picture of him who should have been the connecting link between them, but who, instead, was the source of misery and discard!

The world would never again look so dreary to the lonely woman, and Carol had found one whom she could confide in, now that even her father had turned against her.

The time passed quickly, and midnight had come almost before they were aware of it. They were still talking about the past and present, and even the future, when they were astonished by a knock at the door.

Instantly all was alarm, for they could conjecture nothing else than that pursuit had been made by the enraged bridegroom and some of the wedding guests, and that they had finally come to the very place where the missing bride had been hidden away.

The elder lady proved herself fully equal to the emergency. She sprang up and hastily placed a large crock over the candle. Then Carol felt herself hurried into a closet.

A minute later she heard the widow boldly open the front door. Before doing so the lady had armed herself with a pistol, for she knew not what desperate need there might be.

The moon had arisen since the time of their arrival at the mill, being in its last quarter, and it was easy to see the figure of a young man standing outside.

"Well, sir, what is it you wish?" demanded the widow, with some severity, and at the same time managing to show the weapon with which she was armed, without appearing to do so intentionally.

The other seemed in no wise abashed, and but for the fact that the moon was at his back she might have seen the smile upon his face, as though he readily recognized the little device so extremely feminine.

"I seek Carol Richmond, but do not think I come from her father. I have no love for him in the first place, for he bitterly wronged my father, though my mother paid him back in full, and made him curse her name. I am not what I seem. Will you tell Carol that Nora Warner is here, and would speak with her."

"Nora Warner? Surely I should know that name; and are you her child? Will strange things never cease? Never mind who I am or what I know, but your mother was once a bosom friend of mine. How did you know Carol was here?"

"That matters not at present. I knew it, and I must see her upon matters of vital importance concerning her happiness. Since last I met her I have found out many things that will alter the whole of her life, and probably bring peace and happiness where wretched sorrow now lives. Do not keep me from her, I entreat you, madam. That fiend has set the hounds from the asylum on my track again, and at any minute they may spring upon me. Then it would be too late, and she must suffer."

There was wild entreaty in the tones of the girl, and, although the reference to the asylum had startled the lady for a moment, she believed the other to be sincere, and turning, took several steps toward the closet in which Carol had been shut.

At this juncture her ears were saluted with savage oaths and a cry of alarm from the disguised girl, followed by the sharp report of a pistol.

Two brutal looking men had sprung from the neighboring bushes upon her.

They were the keepers of the mad house.

CHAPTER XI.

After his duel with the wife he had so foully wronged, Captain Grant had written to Doctor Grim, and in answer the madhouse doctor had gone, with a couple of his men, to recapture the patient who had so miraculously escaped, and whose flight fortune had undertaken to hide in several ways, for the very girl with whom she exchanged clothes either committed suicide or else was accidentally drowned.

Nora Warner had hastily drawn a pistol and fired, but her aim was rendered uncertain owing to the excitement and the deceptive moonlight, so that her bullet only inflicted a flesh wound upon one of the men's arms instead of ending his life. Before she could do more they were upon her, like a couple of mad panthers.

Both of them were brutal men, as might be expected from the business they carried on. They knew that the person against whom they were pitted was but a weak woman, yet their orders had not been of a merciful nature, and in the bushes near by stood a gaunt figure clad in a long cloak and slouched hat—the infamous mad-house doctor himself—who would discharge a man from his employ should he show a sign of mercy when he had received no orders in that line.

When, therefore, Nora Warner struggled in their fierce grasp, as though she would break away, the men used violent measures. One of them clutched her delicate throat in a fiendish manner. Her hat had come off, and the long ringlets, which had been suffered to remain on her head during her long confinement in the asylum, blew about in the night breeze.

"Carol, where is Carol?" she huskily cried; "I must see her before they take me away—see her and tell her."

"I am here, Nora Warner. What would you say to me?" she asked, eagerly.

"I came to see you—to tell you that it was all—that he—Roger Dar—good—find out. Help me—I am choking—dying!"

"In the name of heaven take your hand from her throat, you wretch. Don't you see you are killing her? Help! help!" and in her excitement Carol sprang at the keeper, seeking to release the one whom he was choking into insensibility.

"Keep back!" he roared, thrusting her aside, "and thank your lucky stars it ain't you we've come after."

He was one of your smooth-tongued villains—a scoundrel of the first water—and yet he was always pretending to be so tender hearted that he often deceived those who did not know him.

It was second nature with him, and, while torturing the poor souls committed to his fiendish care, he was wont to apologize to them because the red-hot iron was so cold, the end of the lash worn off a trifle, the thumb screws aged, and all such cold-blooded attempts at ferocious wit.

This was the wretch who stood before the two women, and suavely begged their pardon for their having witnessed such a spectacle.

"My men have generally to deal with such desperate madmen that they dare not give one-half a chance for fear of their lives. They know, also, that this woman is a desperate character. Perhaps they have gone a little too far, but better that than that she should have been struck upon the head, which is the way we often have to deal with them."

"But Nora Warner is not mad. By what right do you drag her away from here?" demanded Carol, recovering her voice when she found she had at least a polished scoundrel to deal with.

"You are no judge of that, Miss. Learned men have so decided. These insane creatures could deceive anybody. They have deceived me for fully three weeks at a time, but in the fourth, at the full of the moon, they proved themselves as mad as March hares. I would stake something that this one now has been gaining your sympathy by relating a long rigmarole about a cruel husband. There, I can see by your face that it is the truth. She tells every one that, when in truth she has the best of husbands, who provides her a princely home and all the comforts of life. But I must tear myself away, ladies. There is my card. If ever you should wish a place of retirement for some poor demented relative who is better there than in the world, remember yours sincerely, Timothy Grim, M. D."

The affable doctor lifted his hat to the ladies, and Carol responded by tearing his card in halves and hurling it from her, which was a plain way of showing her dislike of the doctor, who smiled in his grim way.

She and her mother went in again, and the door was barred. The young girl was lost again in a new whirl of amazement and nameless horror. Was Nora Warner really insane, as the doctor had said? Somehow or other she could not believe it, even though many things seemed to point that way.

Even if Roger Darrel were ignorant of the cruel, heartless manner in which his wife was treated, would that lessen his responsibility any?

He must surely have been aware of the nature of the place in which she had been put, and even a simple mind ought to be able to read the character of the villainous mad-house doctor.

Neither of them seemed to think of rest, and it was near dawn when some noise in the unoccupied part of the ruined mill reached their ears.

A few minutes later, while they stood listening, in dread suspense, and half suspecting that the insane asylum doctor had returned to bear them away to his den of infamy, so as to hide all evidence of his iniquity, the widow drew Carol to the window.

There they could plainly see a man walking rapidly away from the mill. What had he been doing there? Once he turned and looked back, but they had no light in the room, and, besides, his attention seemed directed toward the main part of the old mill.

CHAPTER XII.

Had he been given any chance to stake his belief to the others, he would have sworn that the soldier duelist would come back no more; that his words of parting and promise to be with them again in a few minutes after he had convinced the foreign detective—if such the stranger was—of the mistake he had made were but empty braggadocio, and that in reality he was in the power of a man who had hunted long for him, and would not be apt to have the wool pulled over his eyes by his game.

Fancy the old man's consternation and amazement, therefore, when, after the lapse of a short time, the adventurer coolly stepped through the open window leading out upon the veranda.

"You see I convinced the fool he had made a big mistake, as I told you I would, and he has gone on to Richmond. Some one misled him, but it is all right now," said the Captain.

Lawrence Richmond noticed several things that excited his curiosity. In the first place the Captain was whiter than he had ever seen him before, and seemed to be trembling somewhat. Then again he had a handkerchief bound around his left hand, and it seemed to have been bleeding too much for him to have scratched it on a thorn in passing.

The Captain did not seem disposed to renew his assault upon the old man. Indeed, what had passed since then seemed to have quieted his spirits in a wonderful manner, and he was even ready to believe the story of Lawrence Richmond in regard to his suspicion that Roger Darrel had been the one who had committed this daring abduction.

The news seemed to affect the Captain, for apparently he hated Roger with an intensity such as is given by the tiger for its prey or its foe, but he did not remain at the house more than a couple of hours.

"There is no use of our lingering here, crying over spilt milk. When we are ready for the ceremony again we will meet once more," and with this the valiant Captain left the house.

An Apt Retort.

George Thompson was an Englishman, and a leader in the movement for the emancipation of the slaves in the West Indies. In telling of his visit to America in 1834-5, Samuel J. May says in his "Recollections" that Thompson was often insulted in the streets by persons who held opposite opinions to his own, and was subjected to many indignities, most of which he bore with equanimity.

Meetings at which he spoke, or at which he was expected to speak, were broken up by mobs. Rewards were offered for his person or his life. All this he endured for the most part with fortitude and sweet serenity. He seemed less apprehensive of his danger than his friends were. Sometimes he overawed the men who were sent to take him by his dignified, heroic bearing, and at other times dispelled their evil intentions by his pertinent wit, one instance of which will suffice.

At one of the last meetings he addressed in Boston, some Southerners who chanced to be present cried out:

"We wish we had you at the South! We would cut your ears off, if not your head!"

"Would you?" Mr. Thompson replied, promptly. "Then would I cry out all the louder, 'He that hath ears to hear, let him hear!'"

Didn't Even Hesitate.

A well-known actor who had been visiting out-of-town friends over Sunday, not long ago, hurried down to the little station on Monday morning, with the intention of taking a certain train into the city. After making a few inquiries of the colored porter who was attending to his duties about the platform, he finished by saying:

"Yes, suh, de very nex' train stops at dis place fo' shuh, suh," was the answer, at which the actor sat down contentedly to read his morning paper. A few minutes later the distant shriek of a train whistle was heard and he jumped up, grasped his satchel and stood ready to board the approaching train. To his surprise and annoyance, the train, which was a fast express, rushed by through a cloud of whirling dust. He looked after the disappearing train through his dust-filled eyes, then turning to the darky, who stood close by with mouth and eyes big and round with astonishment, he exclaimed:

First Domestication of Fowls.

During the reign of Charles I. of England everybody wore boots and spurs, whether he ever mounted a horse or not.

Mustard in Grain Fields.

The plant referred to scarcely needs description, as it is so common, although the accompanying illustration will impress the reader with its identity. The flowers are yellow and the leaves soft, somewhat resembling those of rape, cabbage, turnips, etc.; in fact mustard belongs to the same family of plants as those named. It is one of the most serious of all the weed pests. This is due to the fact that it ripens its seed before most of the cereals, so that the ground is again seeded down for another year. But this is not all. The seeds are so oily in their nature that they have been known to remain in the ground for a period of twenty-five years when buried so deeply as to prevent germination, and yet after this time have grown vigorously. It is because of this characteristic that it is specially important to prevent wild mustard from seeding. In fields where the plants are few in number the labor expended by way of pulling them up by root would be most profitable.

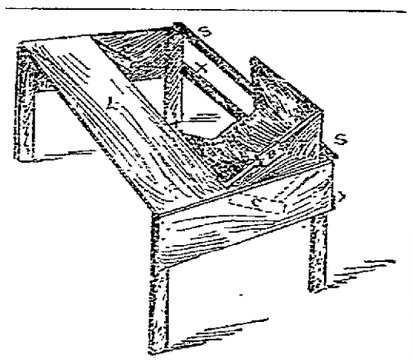
Where it is not practical to pull out mustard, owing to the large amount present, it may be advisable to make the cereal crop into hay rather than allow it to ripen. If some such plan as this is not adopted where fields are badly infested with mustard it may be necessary in the near future to allow the land to lie idle and adopt the summer fallow system in order to get rid of the pest. This would be an instance where an ounce of remedy would be worth many pounds of cure.—Iowa Homestead.

Table for Handling Grapes.

I have seen large, heavy tables for this work in many grapehouses, upon which the grapes were emptied from the trays to be sorted, trimmed and packed into baskets. I do not favor this method of treating grapes. I think the less they are handled the better. The packing table shown makes it possible to take the grapes out of the tray stem by stem as wanted by the packer and thus avoid the emptying out of the grapes. The table is so constructed that a tray fits into it tipped up sufficiently to make it convenient to take the clusters from it. In the illustration half of the tray is cut away in order that the construction of the table may appear more plainly.



GRAPE PACKING TABLE.

The little block (B) on the headpiece of the tray answers a twofold purpose—it serves as a handle in place of the hand holes and it keeps the trays from dropping off one from the other when they are being piled up in the storeroom or when hauling on the wagon sled.—F. Grenier, in Farm and Fireside.

Sowing Clover in Corn.

The farmer who sows clover and finds in the spring that it was winter killed considers that he has lost time, labor and the value of the seed. This is not so, for the growth the clover makes during the late summer and fall has added enough fertility to the soil to materially assist in paying for the time and labor involved. As a matter of fact, there ought not to be much labor spent in seeding the clover beyond the work of putting in the seed, particularly if the work is done at the last cultivation of the corn. Under almost any weather conditions, except severe and prolonged drouth, it may be considered wise to make a seeding of clover, crimson or red, at the last cultivation of the corn. If it goes through the winter, one adds so greatly to the fertility of the soil that they can afford to take some chances.

Shows Lack of Phosphate.

When cattle chew leather, wood or old bones it indicates a lack of phosphate or lime in their food, which is required to supply bone material. A teaspoonful of bone meal given daily with their grain will correct the habit and supply the deficiency which induces it. If the disposition to eat bones is indulged in when cows are in grass the deficiency then evidently exists in the soil, and the pasture will be greatly benefited by a top dressing of bone dust. Two or three hundred pounds to the acre, sown broadcast, will repay attending expenses in a better yield and in quality of milk and butter.

The Farmer's Telephone.

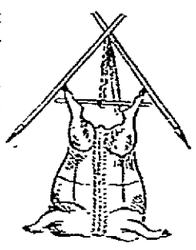
A surprising thing is the development of the telephone system among the farmers here on the prairies, says a correspondent in Nebraska. An independent telephone company has been extending its lines from town to town and village to village. The result is that farmers living from five to ten miles from town are connected and within speaking communication with doctor, storekeeper, bank, grain buyer, etc. Farmers telephone into town in the morning for the price of grain, and if they like it they drive in with a load or two. For their telephones the farmers pay from $1 to $1.50 a month, and as time-savers they are said to be worth from ten to twenty times their cost. At the rate the telephone system is now being developed it will not be more than a couple of years till nearly every farmer in Nebraska is on the wire. With cheap telephones, rural free delivery and consolidation of district schools into central buildings, where there are several rooms, as many teachers and grading pupils, modern life in the rural regions is not what it once was.

Evaporated or Dried Potatoes.

"Dried potatoes" is the name of a new product evolved by the South Carolina Agricultural Experiment Station. The potatoes are boiled, peeled and evaporated in a cannery, and will remain in perfect condition for years. The preserved potato becomes fit for eating after being soaked in warm water for an hour. Like many other new ideas, this promises to be a big thing, and its development may have a great effect on the vast potato fields of northern Maine. It is reported that an acre of potatoes yielded 357 bushels, which made 105 bushels of the dried product, nearly a pound to 3½ pounds of the raw product. Although the report we have does not say anything about it, probably the sweet potatoes can be subjected to the same process.—American Cultivator.

Cutting Up a Hog.

After the hog has been killed and cleaned, cut down on each side of the backbone with a sharp hatchet, then with a few cuts with the knife at the lower part, loosen the leaf lard, pull it upward and take it out. Begin at the breast bone, and with the aid of a knife take out the ribs. Run a knife down between the lean and the fat meat of the backbone. By the aid of splits spread the hog to its full width and allow it to hang until it has thoroughly cooled. The accompanying diagram will show just how the carcass is cut. If the animal is a very heavy one, cut the sides apart, then take off the shoulder, then the side meat and finally the ham. By taking it down in pieces in this manner I can handle a heavy hog myself.—E. Esterley, in Farm and Home.



Plowing by Steam.

An exchange tells of an experiment in plowing by steam near Lenawa Junction. The field was about eighty rods long, containing a little over thirty acres. The engine was attached to a four-gang plow, which turned furrows about sixteen inches wide and seven inches deep, and it laid them over very even and smoothly. It took just seven minutes to make the trip of eighty rods, with one short stop. The outfit is claimed to turn over an acre in an hour, and uses one hundred pounds of soft coal to the acre.—Exchange.

Farm Notes.

If you do not have enough manure for a large field use it on a small plot, and endeavor to make as much as possible by concentrating the manure and work to a limited area. Manure may be wasted by attempting to make it do service on a larger space than it will profitably cover, as well as entailing more labor than the crop can compensate for.

Sheep are one of the best kinds of stocks to keep in orchards. After a little practice they will pick up fallen fruit quicker than hogs; and this is often very important, as the codling moth worm generally leaves the apple soon after it drops. But, with either sheep or hogs, sufficient food must be supplied or the trees will be barked. The food thus given goes, however, where it will do the most good, in the production of the largest and best fruit.

There is quite a difference in the advantages of budding and grafting. The proper time for budding is any period when good buds can be procured and the bark will run on the stocks. Peaches and roses are always budded, but grafting is used on apples, pears and grapes. Budding is sometimes done in order to change the tops of quite young fruit trees. Dry weather is not favorable to budding, and as a rule budding is not as successful as grafting.

Bones may be dissolved by the use of unleached wood ashes, especially if they are broken or ground. The proportions for a fertilizer, used by some farmers, are one barrel of raw bone flour, three barrels dry wood ashes, fifty pounds of gypsum and ten gallons of water. The materials are placed in a heap upon the floor and stirred with a hoe while the water is added. The mast is kept moist, and in two or three weeks will be ready for use. Five barrels of this mixture is considered an efficient and cheap dressing for an acre of ground.

WILL NOT RESIGN.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26.—Secretary Shaw has not resigned and has no intention of resigning. The President said to the secretary yesterday morning:

"I see by the papers that you and I do not agree upon financial questions. But we can't disagree, for you are my financial physician, and I leave the treasury to you, as I leave my lame leg to the surgeons. If there is necessary an operation for the financial boil the papers are talking about you are the man to decide what is necessary. I rely implicitly on your judgment and leave that situation entirely in your hands. I know nothing about it. But I hope you won't give up the case and resign."

The secretary of the treasury replied that he had no intention of quitting his post, and feeling the President's pulse, remarked that it was as steady as the money market, which he regarded as satisfactory.

Money Stringency Relieved.

New York, Sept. 26.—Secretary Shaw further relieved the money stringency of the country to the possible extent of $20,050,000 by deciding to anticipate the payment on government bonds of interest maturing between October 1 and the end of the fiscal year.

If the situation demands Secretary Shaw may place an additional $20,000,000 in government depositories to cover the difference between the par value and the market value of the government bonds given as security for deposits. This will be done only as a last resort.

Treasury Circular Issued.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26.—Secretary Shaw today issued the following circular carrying out his announcement of yesterday regarding the prepayment of the interest on bonds of the United States:

In pursuance of authority contained in Sec. 3689 of the revised statutes of the United States, public notice is hereby given that the interest maturing on the several interest dates between and including November 1, 1902, and July 1, 1903, on the registered and coupon bonds of the United States will be prepaid with a rebate of two-tenths of 1 per cent. per month on the amount prepaid under the following conditions:

Owners of registered bonds desiring prepayment must present their bonds to the treasurer or some assistant treasurer of the United States, who will stamp upon the face of the bonds the fact of such prepayment, and return them to the owners with the interest for the periods above mentioned, less the rebate. National banks owning bonds deposited with the treasurer of the United States to secure circulation or deposit may obtain prepayment upon application to the treasurer of the United States. The bonds so held upon which interest is is prepaid will be stamped as above indicated. Coupons maturing upon the dates included in this circular may be presented for payment at the office of the treasurer of the United States or any assistant treasurer. In calculating the amount of rebate to be allowed any fractional part of a month will be reckoned as a full month and the rebate for such fractional part of a month calculated as a full month will be retained by the United States. Prepayment under this circular will begin Wednesday, October 1, 1902, and continue until November 30, 1902, but prepayment of interest on registered bonds of the loans of 1904, 1908 and 1925 will not be made while the books of those loans are closed.

The secretary of the treasury has made public announcement that he will buy 5 per cent. bonds of 1904 at 105 flat. There are $19,400,000 of these bonds outstanding.

Secretary Shaw believes that 105, the price he offers to pay for government 5s of 1904, is reasonable and just, and that, although the current quotations are slightly in excess of that figure, he said today that he regarded such excess to be the result of inflation. At the price he offers a private investor would realize about 1.75 per cent. for the time the bonds have yet to run.

The amount of 5s of 1904 now outstanding is $19,410,350.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26.—The condition of President Roosevelt's injured limb is considered satisfactory by his physicians. There has been no appreciable variation in his temperature since yesterday, and after the examination of the wound this morning by Drs. Rixey and Lung it was announced that the President was progressing favorably. The inflammation around the wound is slowly subsiding. This morning the President sat up on a lounge in his room, read the papers and attended to some executive business.

None of the members of the cabinet called before noon and no visitors were admitted to his room. The President is obeying strictly the injunctions of the physicians for absolute rest and quiet, although the inactivity is exceedingly irksome to him.

Much of the time of Secretary Cortelyou and the white house force is employed in explaining to committees in the places which the President was to have visited on his Western trip the keen regret which the President experienced on being obliged to abandon his journey. To some of these letters the President is giving his personal attention.

Dreary, rainy weather outside yesterday and today has in no wise affected the President's spirits and he is as cheerful as possible in his enforced confinement.

CENSUS OF PHILIPPINES.

President Roosevelt Signs Order Pursuant to Act Passed by Congress.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 28.—President Roosevelt has signed the order providing for taking a census of the Philippines in accordance with the terms of the Philippine act passed at the last session of Congress and upon the certificate of the Philippine commission that the insurrection has been suppressed.

INDICTED FOR MURDER.

New York, Sept. 26.—That Louis A. Disbrow will have to stand trial was definitely settled when the Suffolk county grand jury presented an indictment charging the prisoner with murder in the first degree. Disbrow is accused of the murder of Clarence Foster, but no mention is made of the death of Miss Sarah Lawrence. Disbrow was arraigned. "I plead not guilty," he said, in a loud, clear voice.

Camps in Huron Bay District.

Houghton, Mich., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—Several lumber camps have been established in the Huron bay district, near L'Anse. Wall Bros. have opened two camps there and will cut 10,000,000 feet of timber this winter. Morrison & Williams also have started camps in that region and will get out several million feet of timber.

Marshfield's Street Fair.

The street fair given at Marshfield last week was a great success as long as the weather was at all favorable, that is in point of attendance, as there was a large crowd both Thursday and Friday. On Friday it was estimated that there were eight thousand strangers in the city. the streets being crowded with the merry makers from early morning until late at night.

The lady balloonist gave two fine ascensions on Thursday and Friday, the air being very still and favorable for events of this kind. The ascensions were something like 5,000 feet in height so far as could be judged.

There were some fine exhibits of fruit and vegetables in booths on the streets, probably as nice as could be found in any town in the state. Besides these there were the usual street attractions in the way of tent shows, which were well attended at all times.

The parade given on Friday was one of the finest things of the kind ever seen in the city of Marshfield and would rival anything of the kind usually given in much larger cities. The people seemed to take an especial pride in this feature, and vied with each other to see which could turn out the most handsome equipage. This feature of the fair received much praise from out of town people, and all seemed to appreciate that they were seeing something out of the ordinary.

The second regiment band was on deck at all times to furnish music, and this organization did its share toward livening up the occasion. Besides this there were numerous other musical organizations on hand at the different attractions that lent their mite to the general disturbance.

But notwithstanding that there was a large crowd in attendance at all times and everybody seemed to enjoy himself to the utmost, the merchants, the men who staked the whole affair, reaped very little benefit. The trade at the stores was nothing unusual and some said hardly as great as customary, so that outside of what a street fair does to advertize a town there can be said to be no benefit. And taken all together, the advertising amounts to very little, as the class of people that attend street fairs are not the kind that are looking for business openings or farms. If the merchants of a city are willing to put up several thousand dollars for the sake of giving the people a roaring good time, it cannot be done in any better way than by a street fair. It is simply a three day Fourth of July celebration without the fireworks.

Strenuous Buzz Saws.

A correspondent of one of our exchanges gives the following lucid and interesting description of the pleasures of northern Michigan:

"Northern Michigan is where they yank a big wet log into a mill and saw it into dollars as quick as a railroad man can draw his salary out of the pay car. The log is held on the carriage by means of iron dogs, while it is being worked into lumber. These dogs are not like those we see women holding on their laps; they are another breed of dogs.

"The managing editor of the mill lays out the log in his own mind and works in the shingles and stuff so as to use the goods to the best advantage. At one of these mills not long ago a man backed up to get away from the carriage and thoughtlessly backed against a large saw that was revolving at the rate of 2000 times a minute. The saw took a large chew of tobacco from the plug he had in his pistol pocket, and then began on him. They gathered him out of the sawdust and put him into a nail keg and carried him away; he did not speak again. Life was extinct. Whether it was the nervous shock or concussion of the cold saw against his liver that killed him no one ever knew. We should never lean on a buzz saw when as it says in the scriptures, "it moveth itself aright."

High School Notes.

Last Wednesday morn ingthe pupils of the Howe High school were favored with an address on "The Use of Good English—Its Value and How to Acquire It," by Theo. W. Brazeau. This was an unusually helpful and inspiring talk and was much appreciated by all. The practical value of good English was forcibly illustrated by examples of legal difficulties which constantly arise on account of inaccuracies in the wording of legal documents. The value of using good English in everyday life was also discussed—as a mark of culture—as a stamp of good breeding and education. A number of ways in which the use of good English both in speaking and in writing were discussed. The value of forming the habit of using the dictionary to learn the meaning of a word which is unfamiliar and not to lazily pass it by without making the effort to find out its meaning was emphasized. The importance of habitually using words which are appropriate and really express what we mean, and avoiding words which exaggerate was illustrated by examples

Miss McKercher has prepared a list of forty-two works by the best authors as a reading course for the junior and senior classes. Each member is expected to read a book each semi-term, or six books for the entire year. A course of library readings has also been prepared for all the grades from the 6th on. This is to encourage outside reading of a good class of literature.

The Misses Fern and Beulah Miller and Miss Susie Granger, members of class of 1902, were among the visitors this week. Miss Fern and Miss Susie have their schools engaged for the coming year, and will commence teaching in about a week.

Miss Marion Urquhart of Medford, who will attend the state university this year, and Miss Lizzie McCamley of this city were high school visitors last week.

Miss Grace Mundt of Green Bay and Miss Martha Gattslaff of this city visited the high school Monday afternoon.

A Trip to the Dells.

Following is the log kept by a valiant crew of sailors who recently completed a trip to the Dells. A careful perusal will show that they encountered many hairbreadth escapes and had withal a very enjoyable trip. The personnel of the crew was as follows: Captain, E. H. Loomer; pilot Joseph Whitney; common seamen, Ira Bassett, J. Menier, H. Differt.

Tuesday. Started Sept. 15. 1902. Left Nekoosa at 8 o'clock. Passed Wakely's ferry at 8:30. Took water at the Seven Mile creek. At 9:30 Pilot Whitney caught a fish near Lynn creek. Passed the Ten Mile creek. Couldn't find a landing here, so camped about one and one-half miles below and had dinner. Caught a bass near camp. Broke camp at 1:30. By 2:30 we passed the Bayou. Stopped at Lewis' bend and bought some eggs, potatoes, milk and water. Passed Fourteen Mile creek at 4 o'clock. A large muscallonge caught at the Yellow banks by Capt. Loomer, who fell in and was pulled out by Pilot Whitney. Camped for the night.

Wednesday. Got up at 4 o'clock. Mr. Menier sucked a rotten egg. By cooking coffee Capt. Loomer burned the snoot and handle off the coffeepot. Rained at 5:30. Pilot Whitney caught two pike after breakfast. Started at 8 o'clock. Bass caught near Goodness' bend and at Bass prairie by Pilot Whitney. Mr. Bassett caught bass near Barnum. Stopped at Barnum while Capt. Loomer mailed a letter. Had dinner 2½ miles below Barnum where Pilot Whitney killed a bear thirty years ago. Started at 1:15. Passed Slab slough and the Yellow banks by 3:15. Camped near Spring creek at 6 o'clock.

Thursday. Mr. Bassett stepped in the eggs and was scolded by Capt. Loomer who was cook. In order not to waste the eggs he sucked them. Had breakfast at 5:30. Started at 6:30. Stopped at Petenwell rock. Capt. Loomer mailed letter at Necedah. Mr. Bassett, Mr. Menier and Mr. Differt climbed the rock. Had dinner near the bridge which crosses the river near the Petenwell rock. Started again at 12:30. Passed Roche a Cri creek and Roche a Cri rocks at 4 o'clock. Camped near Germantown at 5 o'clock.

Friday. Had coffee at 4 o'clock in the morning. Two bass caught after breakfast by Mr. Differt. Started at 7 o'clock. Passed the Yellow river and White creek slough at 10 o'clock; Castle rock and White creek at 10:30; Pine Bluff at 11:30. Had dinner at Lemonweir creek, which is near the head of the Big Dells. Left at 1:15. Dutchman's rapids was filled up so we passed through the Dutchman's slough at 2:30. Sighted the McOwen rock at 3:30. Camped at the head of Little Dells at 4:30.

Saturday. Nobody drowned so far, crew all safe. Coffee at 5 o'clock. Passed through Witches' Gulch by 8 o'clock. Passed Steamboat rock at 8:30. Stopped at the Cold Water canon and had picture taken. Passed Nudge rock and Devil's Elbow at 10:15. Passed the ruins of the old Dells House. Dinner at Drinker's sawmill. Packed up our goods and shipped them. Capt. Loomer sold his boat. Stayed in Kilbourn about two hours and then left for home. Pilot Whitney, Mr. Menier and Mr. Bassett went back to Grand Rapids while Capt. Loomer and Mr. Differt went to Milwaukee.

OUR GLOVE SALE!

September 29 to October 4, 1902.

Which we advertised for last week we were obliged to postpone on account of our manufacturer disappointing us, by not shipping the goods as promised. We now however have received the goods and have a display of them in our show window. Also samples of the skins from which they are manufactured. This is the greatest opportunity for buying high class Kid Gloves ever offered in the city, and are goods which have a guarantee behind them. All we say to you is to call and see the line while we have them here (as explained last week there is several hundred dollars worth of these goods sent to us for a short time on consignment) and we can only keep them a few days.

OUR NEW FALL STOCK.

In addition we wish to say that our Fall Stock of goods are open and ready for inspection We have gotten together the finest line of Winter goods ever opened in the city. This being our First Fall Opening we want to make it a memorable one to everyone who calls on us and we have spared no pains to make this store the most attractive of any in the city, not alone in appearance but in the quality and styles of all lines of merchandise, See!

CLOAKS and JACKETS

Our Ladies' "ready to wear" garment department has no pier. Jackets, Capes, Raglans, Skirts, Shirtwaists, Collarettes, Boa's, Scarfs, Wrappers, and Flannelette Night Robes.

Our line of Dress Goods, the Ladies tell us is the finest in the city. To this we just added this week, the most beautiful line of fancy Fall Waistings the market affords. We have them in all colors and grades, ranging in price from $1.25 to per yard down to 15c. Our new line of Ladies' Suitings in five yard lengths are the proper things in fancy mixtures and diagonal weaves, from $1.25 per yard to $2.00. Only one suit of a kinc in this lot.

Fine Wool Blankets from $2.50 to $8.00 a pair in white and colors. Also have the cheaper grades

Just received our second shipment of Zebalines and Venetian Suitings 40 inch goods, all wool at 50c per yard.

Respectfully Yours,

Heineman Merc. Co.

Man and His Horse.

Every man should, (for himself, his family and his horse) keep on hand some antiseptic healing dressing that will quickly relieve pain; subdue local inflammation; heal scratches, chafes, chaps, cuts and open wounds; cure bruises, burns, scalds, frostbite, galls and sores; relieve strains, sprains, swellings, muscle soreness, stiff or lame back or neck, rheumatism, neuralgia, the little hurts of childhood, and the accidents and ails of every day life.

Such a remedy is Greene's Infallible Liniment, an honest medicine made to sell on its real merits and give such satisfaction as to make friends and keep them. It is equally good for man or beast. Once introduced into the home, the stable, the gymnasium or the training quarters, it becomes a standby to be used with confidence. A bottle of it is its own best advertisement and all the proof of its utility and merit required. All who use it speak well of it.

"Greene's Infallible Liniment has done me a world of good. I shall always have a supply on hand for use." W. A. Lange, ex-fielder C. B. B. Club.

"I consider Greene's Liniment valuable for muscle soreness, sprains, bruises, wounds, galls and scratches. It is economical because only a little is required. My experience justifies me in giving it strong endorsement." Albert H. Merrill.

Mr. Wm. R. Wylie, Supt. Caton Stock Farm, Will County, Ill., writes:—"I have used nearly every liniment on the market but find yours is in a class by itself. It does all you claim for it."

Mr. Judd E. Bisbey, Chicago, says:—"I have kept your liniment in my house: it has in all instances proven satisfactory to my family and myself."

"Has given far better results than any liniment we ever used." W. H. Flagg, Palatine, Ill.

"I have used Greene's Liniment and like it. It will remove soreness and help lame horses." Vance Nuckols, Glenville, Ohio.

"There is no better article for general use than Greene's Liniment." George E. Mason, Chicago, Ill.

"I have used Greene's Infallible Liniment on sore tendons, wind puff and scratches with the very best results. I consider it one of the best liniments made and recommend it to all horsemen." J. H. Miller, LaCrosse, Wis.

Druggists keep it or will get it for you if you ask them to. Accept no substitute. There is no liniment that will take its place and do its work, no other like it or "just as good." The makers, J. W. Greene & Co., 17 Van Buren St., Chicago, Ills., to prove its worth, will send a large free sample in return for this advertisement and 10c. to cover cost of mailing. The regular price is 25cts., 50cts. and $1.00 a bottle.

Some of the democratic papers have been so mean as to intimate that the president's sore knee was merely an invention of the fertile imagination of some of the republican bosses as an excuse to get him off the track and put a stop to those speeches that were not exactly in accordance with the ideas of the republican party. We understand that the president had five doctors attending him and consider that he was mighty lucky to escape with his life.

in their hats before starting out to slaughter; "The supreme court has ruled that no person has the right to go upon the land of another against the latter's will or to so intrude upon the right of such other to the exclusive use of lands for any purpose merely because he possesses a state license to hunt."

—Among the salient points of merit possessed by "Sheridan Keene, Detective," which Managers Davidson and Loveland will present at the Grand Opera House, Saturday, Oct. 4 are the excellence of its scenic equipment, its brilliancy of dialogue, stirring situations and its technical accuracy; each scene being a photographically correct representation of its particular locality. The play itself is a literary gem of "purest ray serene" and must be seen to be appreciated.

Just now a large number of the republican sheets are devoting the greater part of their spare space to telling what a bold, bad man Dave Rose is. They don't say anything about their own candidate, but probably they think that everybody knows what he is without any thing said one way or another. Well, maybe they do. Still, he has proven quite a conundrum to a number of the members of his own party, and it might not be out of place to tell something about him.

During the past week the Grand Rapids lumber company sent several carloads of slabs to Berlin where the stuff is to be used for fuel, and the parties that purchased it reported that if the stuff proved satisfactory they would take a large quantity of the material. This certainly begins to look as if wood was going to soar heavenward in price along with anthracite coal and that the poor man would have to burn a mighty poor quality of fuel the coming winter and very little of that. The fact that the coal barons are losing several hundred dollars a day by the coal strike does not seem to be benefiting the poor people to any great extent.

The postoffice department has issued a new order to go into effect on Oct. 1st, with regard to the rural mail routes throughout the country. The most important sections of the order are as follows: Each box must be erected by the roadside, so that the the carrier can easily obtain access to it without dismounting from his vehicle. The same box must nor be used for more than one family, except in case of near relatives or those residing in the same house. Persons neglecting or refusing to comply with these conditions will be regarded as not desiring rural free delivery and the carrier will be directed not to serve them.

There is little doubt in the minds of all that the dog belonging to Clark Lyon, that caused such a sensation last week by running about the street and biting other dogs, was affected with rabies. The dog died on Thursday night and as no one saw him at the time it cannot be told whether he exhibited any of the symptoms of a dog dying with hydrophobia. The head of the animal was sent to Madison in order to discover if possible just what ailed the dog. During the past week some valuable bird dogs that were bitten were shot by their owners, among the number being dogs of W. G. Scott, Chas. Briere, Walter Dixon, Ed. Hayes and numerous others.

STRANGE CRIME AT NASH.

A MURDER MYSTERY.

Washburn, Wis., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—On Tuesday the examination of Emma Thomas, know in Ashland as Mrs. Cassody, charged with the murder of Michael Miller, superintendent of the Ashland & Siskiwit Railway and Lumber Company, will be held. The evidence against the woman is only circumstantial and there is much doubt as to whether the state will be able to hold her. She is in jail and cries continually that she wants to die. She denies her guilt and says that she is grieving for the dead man, whom she claims was the only person in the world she cared for. A locked door will probably prove the means of clearing the woman of the murder charge.

Found Dead in Bed.

Miller was accustomed to sleeping in the rear of the office of the company at Nash, near here. Some of his friends left him at 9 o'clock Sunday night. In the morning one of the employes of the company went to his room, and called to Miller to get up, but he did not respond. The door was broken in and Miller was found. A hasty examination revealed the tragedy. The community was aroused over the mysterious affair, and an examination was started. As a result of circumstances that seemed to surround the affair Emma Thomas was charged with the murder and was arrested.

Woman's Handkerchief Gives Clue.

When found Miller was lying in bed, undressed and on his stomach, with arms crossed beneath him, and a bullet hole just behind the left ear. There were no signs of a scuffle, and the bed was undisturbed. The door of the room he occupied was locked, and there appeared to have been no way in which anyone could have gained access to the room. For this reason the suicide theory was at first advanced. A woman's handkerchief, with nothing to indicate the owner, and a revolver which was afterwards identified as belonging to the Thomas woman, was found on the side of the bed.

Had Threatened to Kill Him.

Further investigation brought out the information that Miller had previously gone with the Thomas woman a good deal, and for the last year or two had endeavored to free himself from the woman's society, but she was persistent, and insisted that Miller should show her attention. Letters were found from the woman to Miller, and in one of them she threatened to kill him. A woman's footprint was also found leading from the office, and it was also learned that a carriage drove through Nash about 10 or 11 o'clock at night with a woman in it. At Ashland it was learned that the Thomas woman had hired a rig from the Anne livery at about 9 o'clock at night, and had returned it to the barn at 12 o'clock or thereabouts. Miss Thomas claims she can prove an alibi.

Locked Door May Clear Her.

Just how the person who committed the murder could have gotten in and out of the room occupied by the victim is a mystery. When the door was forced it was locked and the window was closed and locked. The sheriff thinks that Miller admitted the woman to his room and that when he had gone to sleep she killed him and then opened the door and passed out of the room, the spring lock closing as she retreated. Another theory is that the woman had a key to the room and entered by the use of it while the victim slept and then fired the shot and retreated.

Since being brought to the jail Miss Thomas has been suffering from nervous prostration, and is in a very weak condition. She persistently refuses to touch food, and is melancholy and wants to die. She is being closely guarded.

PLAN A NEW LINE.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—An electric railway line to run from this city northeast to Oshkosh, Fond du Lac, Berlin and intervening points is planned by a company which filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state today. The incorporators are mainly men living along the projected route, but the real backer of the enterprise is Henry Knox of Chicago, manager of the Janesville, Beloit & Rockford electric line, and the road is to become part of the system which is expected to cover Southeastern Wisconsin. The name of the company incorporated today is the Madison & Northeastern Railroad Company, and the route proposed is from Madison via Sun Prairie, Columbus and Beaver Dam to Waupun, with lines from Waupun to Fond du Lac, Waupun to Oshkosh via Rosendale, Waupun to Berlin via Ripon and Dartford—a total of about 130 miles. The capital stock is $25,000 and the incorporators named are Charles Schericker, Sun Prairie; Frank Stegerwald, East Bristol; H. E. Kipler, Sun Prairie; George C. Holtz, H. R. Cook, Henry J. Hopp, Columbus; R. Bailey, Waupaca; A. L. Hutchinson, Wequawega.

TWO NEW BANKS FORMED.

Depere, Wis., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—A national bank with a capital stock of $50,000 is being organized here by A. G. Wells, C. G. Wilcox, B. F. Smith and C. W. Jackson of the city and H. S. Smith of Appleton.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—The State Bank of Reeseville, Dodge county, filed articles for examination with the state treasurer. Bank Examiner Bergh has given his approval. The bank is capitalized at $25,000 and is to open for business October 1. The incorporators are F. J. Venie, M. F. Venie, A. C. Baker and L. J. Bennett.

WEST SUPERIOR JEWS DEMAND JUSTICE.

They Claim They are Being Persecuted and an Organization is Formed to Protect Themselves.

West Superior, Wis., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—The Hebrews of this city will band together to demand justice from the Gentiles. Recently there has been considerable litigation in which Hebrews have been prosecuted, and they claim it is a matter of persecution largely. One of the rabbis said today that his people had stood the persecutions and the insults of the Gentiles as long as they could without retaliating and now they will mass their numbers to give strength to their plea. The Hebrew voters here number nearly 500 and this leverage will be the first one brought to bear.

KENOSHA FARMER BECOMES MILLIONAIRE.

Kenosha, Wis., Sept. 27.—From an obscure farmer to a rich landlord is the story of the past week in the life of James O'Brien of the town of Brighton, in this county, who sailed yesterday for Ireland accompanied by an American attorney to take possession of property left to him by his uncle, John O'Brien. It is said that the property is worth $8,000,000. James O'Brien is a member of one of the oldest families in Kenosha county. Carney O'Brien, his father, came to this county in 1842. He left behind in Ireland one brother, John O'Brien, who started in life with a little estate in the county of Cork, which had come to him from his father. He lived frugally and acquired a large fortune.

SAFES ARE BLOWN OPEN

Racine, Wis., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—Safe blowers were active in this city yesterday morning. Two places were broken into and the safes were opened with nitro glycerine. At one place the entire office and building was badly wrecked by the explosion.

The Gunther sauerkraut factory in the southern portion of the city was entered at about 2 o'clock. The safe was blown open with a large charge of nitro-glycerin. People in the neighborhood were awakened by the explosion and saw two men running away. The men secured $30 in cash and a draft for $102. The front of the building was wrecked and the office was set on fire and badly damaged. The loss will amount to $1000.

Some time between midnight and 6 o'clock this morning burglars entered the office of the Standard Oil Company in the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway yards and blew open the safe. They found no money and got nothing for their trouble.

ASKS MORE ALIMONY.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—Mrs. Clotilde von Trott of Milwaukee applied to the supreme court today, through her attorney, W. B. Rubin, for an allowance of temporary alimony, which will enable her to carry her appeal from the judgment in Judge Tarrant's court in her divorce suit against her husband, August von Trott, a well-known Milwaukee druggist. She secured her divorce and a judgment for permanent alimony which, with the allowance for attorney fees and costs, together with furniture, amounts to about $4100. The value of his estate is fixed by the court at $14,000 and his income from his drug business and rent of a flat building at $1000 per year. She is not satisfied with the amount allowed her, and her appeal to the supreme court is for a larger judgment, and in the meantime she asks for a temporary allowance which will enable her to fight the case in the supreme court.

George E. Williams opposed the motion for Mr. Von Trott. The court took the motion under advisement.

HIGH PRICE FOR BARLEY.

Chilton, Wis., Sept. 26.—As a result of competition between Knauf & Tesch of this city and William Rahr & Sons of Manitowoc, who control the malt houses here, Calumet county barley is commanding a higher price in Chilton than can be obtained for it in Milwaukee. The price was buoyed up to nearly 60 cents a bushel.

Over 13,000 bushels were brought in yesterday. Of this quantity Knauf & Tesch bought 5000 bushels and the malt house obtained 8000 bushels.

VICTORY FOR BREWERS.

West Superior Loses Action in Which Effort Was Made to Force Local License Payment.

West Superior, Wis., Sept. 26.—[Special.]—If the city wants to force brewers having local agencies here to pay local license it must have recourse to the city ordinances rather than the state laws. That is the decision of Judge Haily of the municipal court. The Schlitz Brewing Company's agent was arrested here early in August, together with agents for several other brewing companies.

NEARLY BLEEDS TO DEATH.

Racine, Wis., Sept. 26.—A peculiar case of blood poisoning, which puzzles the medical profession, was brought to the attention of Dr. Hahn a few days ago. Dr. Hahn was summoned to the home of J. W. Burke, who was suffering from nose bleeding. The man had become so weak from the loss of blood that he was compelled to give up his position in the boiler shops of the Case Company. Yesterday it was found that blood poisoning had set in in the man's head and the only way of saving his life would be by an operation. The cause of the frequency of the bleeding has been assigned to a tenderness caused by the growth of a small tumor in the nose and poisoning contracted from the iron around which Burke constantly worked.

HAS HER HUSBAND ARRESTED.

Charges Made by Mrs. Brunschweiler Cause a Sensation.

Appleton, Wis., Sept. 26.—The arrest of George W. Brunschweiler, proprietor of the Appleton Paper Box Factory and a prominent insurance man, on a charge of assault and battery preferred by his wife, Ida S. Brunschweiler, caused a sensation in the city. The defendant gave bonds for his appearance later. Brunschweiler was formerly active in the work of the Congregational Church here. He and his wife have been living apart lately.

GIRLS ROUT BURGLARS.

Servants Save ex-Senator Levi Withee's Valuables.

La Crosse, Wis., Sept. 26.—The bravery of two servant girls prevented the theft of several thousand dollars worth of valuables from ex-Senator Levi Withee's palatial residence by burglars. Two men were ransacking the house when the girls rushed down stairs with a loud clatter. One was armed with a poker and the other with a knife. Both men fled and escaped. Four accomplices guarded the house outside.

BOY SAVES SIX LIVES.

Lad Realized Danger and Brought Boat to a Stop Just in Nick of Time.

Oshkosh, Wis., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—John Tolman, a 13-year-old lad, saved the lives of five persons besides himself by his presence of mind. Had he not quickly realized the situation before him and taken action, in a few seconds more W. W. Tolman's gasoline launch, Lucy F., would have been crushed beneath the seven cars of a freight train on the Wisconsin Central railroad that were backed off the railroad bridge Sunday evening while the draw was open to allow the Tolman yacht to pass through. Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Hasbrouck, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Tolman, Miss Lucy F. Tolman and the captain, John Tolman, were in the launch. Lacking its regular engineer Mr. Tolman, owner of the boat, operated the engine and the wheel was entrusted to his 13-year-old son. The bridge had opened to let the launch pass, when Master Tolman saw the freight train backing up the north approach. In another moment the cars would have landed on the yacht, but the boy signaled for the reverse of the engine. The boat stopped within 100 feet of the bridge and in another instance the cars came tumbling into the river.

HEROINE SURPRISES FRIENDS BY MARRYING

Kenosha, Wis., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Miss Sarah Bacon and Arthur S. Higley were married yesterday. The wedding was a great surprise to all. Miss Bacon is the best known school teacher in Kenosha county, and she gained renown a few months ago by saving her children from a burning schoolhouse. At the time of the accident to the school a hard storm came up and the little school was struck by lightning. The teacher, with great presence of mind, carried the little children from the house and all escaped serious injury. Since that time the services of Miss Bacon have been in great demand and she has been offered schools in several parts of the state. She consented to accept a position at Paddocks Lake, and was to have taken her examination yesterday. When she came to town, however, she announced that she would not accept the position, and a few moments later a court order was issued for the marriage of the young woman to Mr. Higley. Mr. and Mrs. Higley will make their home at the village of Salem.

ATTENDANCE LARGE.

More Than 3000 Students will be Enrolled at the University of Wisconsin.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—The attendance at the Wisconsin University this year will be greater than ever before, but definite information as to the number of students is not yet obtainable. Register Hiestand's estimates that the increase in attendance will be about 10 per cent. over last year, which means about 2400 students at the opening. The agricultural students, who come later, will swell the total to over 2000.

Little will be done in class work this week beyond the assignment of lessons.

The chief anxiety is among students who have not yet made up the "cons" resulting from the spring examinations, which stand in the way of their promotion to another class and which have not yet been made up. A few of the football candidates are, according to report, included in this number, but none of the stars are in danger, according to report.

Frat Men Busy Rushing.

The busiest students this week are the "frat." men, who are appointed to look out for new material for their respective societies. Parties of half a dozen from each fraternity will meet all incoming trains with stylish rigs in which the prospective members are given a ride around town and to the fraternity house, where he is duly impressed with the advantages of the particular society which has caught him. Wealth, social standing or athletic ability are the chief gifts which make the candidate sought for.

Annual "Walk Around" at Lawrence.

Appleton, Wis., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—The annual "walk around," an event which has been a feature in Lawrence University social circles during the past twenty-five years, will take place at the Alexander gymnasium next Friday evening. At this affair it is aimed that every student in the institution shall become personally acquainted with the other.

Large Attendance at Beloit.

Beloit, Wis., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—Beloit College reopened with chapel exercises yesterday afternoon. The registration of students has not been completed, but a larger attendance than last year is assured. The freshman class will number nearly ninety.

President Eaton Back.

President Eaton is back after a year's absence. He addressed the students yesterday and expressed his pleasure at again being in charge of the institution.

Prof. C. W. Person has returned from a three months' stay in Berlin, where he went to study, and T. L. Wright, who was acting dean last year, arrived today from Europe. E. B. Woods of the college class of 1901 will have charge of the library this year.

NEW ROAD FOR STATE.

New York, Sept. 25.—The Chicago & Grand Trunk has very comprehensive plans for making that line a transcontinental system. Charles M. Hays, general manager of the road, has been quietly perfecting a programme of extension to the West since he left the service of the Southern Pacific and resumed his old place with the Grand Trunk system. Mr. Hays returned four weeks ago from London, where his plans were submitted to the Grand Trunk board, and it is said that they have received the approval of the plan to extend the Grand Trunk through Wisconsin and Minnesota to St. Paul, thence northwest into Manitoba, and from there practically paralleling the Canadian Pacific. The manner in which the new line in Wisconsin is going to make its way across that state is not apparent.

CHARGED WITH ASSAULT.

Racine, Wis., Sept. 25.—[Special.]—John Kosterman and his son John Kosterman, Jr., were today arrested charged with assaulting, with intent to do great bodily harm, Herman Eggert, who is now in a local hospital in a serious condition, is the complainant. All of the parties are prominent farmers of this county, and it is alleged that they got into a fierce fight over the pasturage of somecattle. The Kostermans have been held in $500 bonds.

Radium for X-Rays.

Radium, the most active of the three new elements emitting invisible radiations, has been proved by Prof. George F. Parker to be a cheap and efficient substitute for X-ray apparatus for photographing internal parts of the body. When the hand was placed between the metal and the sensitive plate a picture showing the bones was taken in half a minute. Aside from this valuable property radium rays act like Roentgen rays in producing phosphorescence and discharged electrified bodies. Radium is one of the greatest puzzles on account of its anomalous expenditure of energy without appearing to lose any or to receive any from the sunlight or any other source.

GOOD RHYMES GONE WRONG.

When the English tongue we speak
Why is "break" not rhymed with "freak?"
Will you tell me why it's true
We say "sew" but likewise few;"
And the maker of a verse
Cannot cap his "horse" with "worse?"
"Beard" sounds not the same as "heard;"
"Cord" is different from "word;"
"Cow" is cow, but "low" is low;
"Shoe" is never rhymed with "foe."
Think of "hose" and "dose" and "lose;"
And of "goose"—and yet of "choose."
Think of "comb" and "tomb" and "bomb;"
"Doll" and "roll;" and "home" and "some"
And since "pay" is rhymed with "say,"
Why not "paid" with "said," I pray?
We have "blood" and "food" and "good;"
"Mould" is not pronounced like "could."
Wherefore" done," but "gone" and "lone?"
Is there any reason known?
And, in short, it seems to me
Sound and letters disagree.

A gentleman whose liberality in no way corresponded to his means found out one day that there was some ale in his cellar almost spoiling, and decided to get rid of it without delay.

The next morning when he was rambling over his estate he came across a party of workmen. Addressing the man in charge, he ostentatiously presented the ale to the men, and said they could go and fetch it as they liked.

A few days afterward he happened to meet the foreman again and immediately proceeded to extract from him in some way a suitable acknowledgment of the bounty recently bestowed.

"Well, Williams," said the donor, with the air of a man who had granted an unspeakable favor, "did you and your men have that ale?"

"Oh, yes sir, thank you, we had it," was the reply.

"That's right, and how did you like it?"

"Oh, sir, it was just the thing for us," was the vague response.

"Ha, that'll do then. But what do you mean by 'just the thing?'"

"Well, sir," said William, "if it 'ad been a little better we shouldn't a 'ad it, and if it 'ad been a little worse we couldn't adrinked it."—New Yorker.

During a voyage, on the sudden stoppage of the machinery, the vessel having run aground, considerable alarm took place, especially among the female passengers.

"What is the matter? What is the matter? For heaven's sake, tell me the worst!" exclaimed one more anxious than the rest.

After a short pause a hoarse voice from the deck replied:

Rev. R. Perry Bush of Chelsea, who was present in a ministerial capacity at the opening of the convention of the Massachusetts Embalmers' Association at the Quincy house last Wednesday, consented, in the absence of Mayor Collins, who was to address the body, to speak a few words of greeting. He related an instance of a stuffy undertaker and a funeral.

"As I entered the church," said Mr. Bush, "I was greeted by the undertaker in charge of the funeral, who said: I want you to stand there,' pointing to half-way up the pulpit steps.

"'I prefer to stand either at the top or the bottom,' I replied. 'Then I can see my audience.'

"'You stand where I tell you,' was the retort. 'I am running this funeral.'

"'But you are not running me,' I answered, 'and I will give you just one minute to withdraw your order or get another minister.' And I took out my watch and commenced to count off the seconds. At the thirtieth he said: 'Well, stand where you darn please!'

'And I did," exclaimed Mr. Bush.—Boston Herald.

It was Harriette's seventh birthday and she had been promised a party, but as her mother was sick on that day all the company she had was two little girls of her own size. One of her presents was a birthday cake with seven candles on it. After the children had eaten all the cake Harriette went very quietly to her mother and said:

"Mamma, when is it time to eat the candles?"—Cecelia Colby in Little Chronicle.

The Night Before Christmas, in The Darkest Hour. A Contented Woman In Old Kentucky, being desirous of going to the theater, called on her friend, Sis Hopkins, whereupon the two decided to visit Rudolph and Adolph with a view to inducing them to accompany them.

As they were about to leave the house there was a rap at the door and in walked Francesca da Rimini, Irwin's Majestics and the Utopians, who had been at the Palm Garden, and also had dropped in for a friendly visit.

"Let's organize a party and all go together," said Francesca da Rimini, after the intentions of the others had been made known to the newcomers.

"Very well," acquiesced A Contented Woman, apparently satisfied with any arrangement which might please the others, "where shall we go?"

They talked the matter over, naming the various attractions, but could arrive at no decision.

"I have it," finally spoke up Sis Hopkins, "let's go to see A Modern Magdalen 'Way Down East!"

And they did.

He moved about uneasily.

"Don't be afraid," she murmured; "you can surely trust papa."

"Oh, Arthur!" she cried, throwing her arms about his neck, appealingly, "you certainly ought to; nobody else in town will."—New York Daily News.

"Some people object to releasing prisoners on a roster because of the fact that the renegades are turned loose upon other communities. That reminds me of the Irishman who, after reaching America, was full of homesick brag in which nothing in America even approached things of a similar variety in Ireland. In speaking of the bees of the ould sod he grew especially roseate and said:

"'Whoy, the baze in that counthry is twice as big as in this. Indade, they're bigger than that. They're as big as th' shape ye have in this counthry!'

"'Bees as big as sheep?' said his incredulous listener. 'Why, what kind of hives do they have to keep them in?'

"'No bigger than the ones in this counthry,' was the reply.

"'Then how do the bees get into the hives?' he was asked.

The carriage builders of London are now ending what has proved to be the most prosperous season they have ever known. Nearly every coronered coach-house required to be refurnished with a state coach, so long had it been since any great pageant had been performed. A state coach is rather an affair of crochets in any case; and some curious letters have passed between peers and their carriage builders in regard, among other things, to the size of the emblazenings on the panels. The raciest letter, however, quoted as in the possession of one coach builder, refers to an ordinary carriage. It was written on behalf of a great lady by an aide-de-camp: "Lady —— will be much obliged if you will kindly varnish her. She thinks only one side wants doing, but will be glad if you will send and see." He had merely omitted the important word "carriage."—London Chronicle.

An attorney from Houston, Tex.,—J. D. Bryant—tells this story of Judge Roy Bean, justice of the peace in the Lone Star state, who is known better as "The Law West of the Pecos River:"

He held a coroner's inquest on a Mexican who had been found dead near the Pecos river. The jury brought in a verdict of accidental death. The crowd was dispersing when the judge called them back.

"There is another matter to attend to," he said. "On this man's body was found $50 and a six-shooter. It is contrary to the laws of Texas and to the peace and dignity of the state to carry concealed weapons. Therefore I confiscate the revolver and fine the deceased $1. The costs in the case are $49, which just settles the estate."—New York Times.

A good story is related of Henry Clay Dean, the famous orator of a generation or so ago. Mr. Dean was generally referred to as "Henry Clay Dean of Iowa," even long after he had established a home in Missouri. He explained his change of habitation in this way: "You see, they passed a nefarious prohibition law in Iowa, and there's your whisky gone. Then they abolished capital punishment, and there's your hanging gone. And now the whole population seems to be drifting toward Universalism, and there's your hell gone. I can't live in a state that has neither hell, hanging nor whisky."

THE ACCOMPANYING NOTE.

How Gardener Made Embarrassing Situation for Patron.

A young man, whose gallantry was largely in excess of his pecuniary means, sought to remedy this defect and to save the money required for the purchase of expensive flowers by arranging with a gardener to let him have a bouquet from time to time in return for his cast-off clothes. So it happened that one day he received a bunch of the most beautiful roses, which he at once dispatched to his lady love. In sure anticipation of a friendly welcome, he called at the house of the young woman the same evening, and was not a little surprised at a frosty reception.

After a pause the young woman remarked in the most frigid tones: "You sent me a note today."

"A note—I?"

"Certainly, along with the flowers."

"To be sure, I sent you flowers; but"—

"And this note was with the bouquet. Do you mean to deny it?"

A Catch in the Back.

Grand View, Iowa, Sept. 29th.—Mrs. Lydia Parker, of this place, says:

"I was troubled with backache all the time for years. When I would stoop over a catch would take me in the back and I could not straighten up for some time.

"I tried everything I could think of but got no relief till I sent and got Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I used one box and part of another before the trouble all left me, but now I am well and strong and I have not been troubled with my back for some months.

"I believe my cure is a permanent one and I am very grateful indeed to Dodd's Kidney Pills for what they have done for me.

"I would most heartily recommend them to anyone suffering with lame back, for I believe they will cure any case of this kind."

Sacred Birds.

This involves no irreverence to sport, but merely recapitulates a few of the birds which in different countries have been and are invested with a sort of popular reverence. In Paris the sparrow, all objections notwithstanding, remains the pet of the populace, and legislative protection is only just beginning to safeguard the swallow. In Alsace, Basle and Germany the stork sits enshrined in popular respect, not to say superstition, while in Egypt the sparrow-hawk holds sway and atones for his predatory instincts by acting as a licensed scavenger.—Paris Nature.

A Hard Struggle.

When you have a bad back, a back that's lame, weak or aching, it's a hard struggle sometimes to find relief and cure, but it's a harder struggle when the dangers beset you of urinary disorders, too frequent urination, retention of the urine with all the subsequent pains, annoyances and suffering. There are many medicines that relieve these conditions, but you want a remedy—a cure. Read this statement; it tells of a cure that lasted:

Veteran Josiah Heller, place of residence 708 South Walnut street, Urbana, Ill., says: "In the fall of 1899 I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Cunningham's drug store in Champaign, and after taking the remedy conscientiously I made a public statement of the results. I told how Doan's Kidney Pills relieved me of kidney trouble, disposed of my lame back and the pains across my loins, beneath the shoulder blades, etc. During the interval which has elapsed I have had ocasion at times to resort to Doan's Kidney Pills when I noticed warnings of another attack, and on each and every occasion the result obtained was just as satisfactory as when the pills were first brought to my notice. At this time I just as emphatically endorse the preparation as I did several years ago."

A FREE TRIAL of this great Kidney medicine which cured Mr. Heller will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, price 50 cents per box.

Eccentricities of the Ostrich.

At the ostrich farm at Coronado, Cal., it takes a bale of alfalfa hay cut up and a sack of barley to feed fifty-three birds. The chicks are as inquisitive as a monkey, and will snap a button off your coat if an opportunity offers. The old males are fighters and can split fence-boards with a kick; but when they get real mad they lie down and twist their necks and flap their wings like a skirt dancer. Young chicks a few weeks old are worth in the market $25 each.

New Use for Old Shoes.

In France old shoes are bought up in quantities by rag dealers and sold to factories, where they are taken apart and submitted to long processes which turn them into paste, from which the material is transformed into an imitation leather, appearing much like the finest morocco. Upon this material stylish designs are stamped and wall papers, trunk coverings and similar articles are manufactured from it.

For High-Speed Railway Trains.

Machinery for a train that may revolutionize the railway transportation of the world is being built at the General Electric Works at Lynn, Mass. It is soon to be tried in Illinois, where the track is almost completed. The engineers estimate that the train will make 90 to 100 miles an hour.

RUDOLPH.

Last Friday night a number of people gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Close to celebrate their wooden wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Close received many useful presents. Refreshments were served and all reported a jolly time.

Thomas Sharkey has sold his farm of one hundred and twenty acres to a party from abroad and it is Mr. Sharkey's intention to go to Alberta, British America, in the near future where he expects to make his future home.

Chris Hassell recently sold several acres of land to parties from Winona and we understand they intend to erect a planing mill and run a lumber yard thereon. Rudolph certainly is coming right to the front.

Albert Scott, who is working in the woods at Mosinee, was home the latter part of last week, returning on Sunday. While here he was the guest of his best girl.

Mrs. Shadduck, who has been at Merrill taking care of her sister, Mrs. C. Crotteau, who has been seriously ill, returned home last week.

Mrs. Fred Phillips of Milwaukee arrived last Thursday to take care of her mother, Mrs. P. Keyzers, who is very ill.

Miss Laura Lavaque is in Chicago this week, the guest of her sisters and brother and also taking in the sights.

Mrs. Maro and daughter of Minnesota are visiting with friends and relatives in this burg this week.

Mrs. Will McKinley of Wausau arrived here Monday to visit for some time with relatives and friends.

Mrs. J. Kirkland of Grand Rapids was in this vicinity Sunday, visiting with friends and relatives.

Miss Lydia Rayome of Merrill was the guest of her parents Thursday and Friday of last week.

Miss Josie Morgan and Louis LeBrecke were guests of Miss Morgan's parents over Sunday.

Mrs. John Dagle is in Merrill this week, the guest of her sister and other relatives.

A Typical South African Store.

O. R. Larson, of Bay Villa, Sundays River, Cape Colony, conducts a store typical of South Africa, at which can be purchased anything from the proverbial "needle to an anchor." This store is situated in a valley nine miles from the nearest railway station and about twenty-five miles from the town. Mr. Larson says: "I am favored with the custom of farmers within a radius of thirty miles, to many of whom I have supplied Chamberlain's remedies. All testify to their value in a household where a doctor's advice is almost out of the question. Within one mile of my store the population is perhaps sixty. Of these, within the past twelve months, no less than fourteen have been absolutely cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. This must surely be a record. For sale by Johnson & Hill Co. and Wood County Drug Co.

BABCOCK.

There were several couples of our young people attended the show and dance at Pittsville on Saturday evening. Among those who went were Messrs. Desper, Griffith and Sullivan and Misses Lina Griffith, Meda Lombard and Maud Gardner.

There was a very enjoyable dancing party at the home of E. O. Warren on Friday night. It was a surprise party but Mr. and Mrs. Warren were equal to the occasion, and no one could complain with the way that they were entertained.

M. F. Ward has sold his stock of general merchandise to a Mr. Good, a new comer in this vicinity. While we shall miss Merritt, we predict a large trade for his successor.

Ethel O'Reilley spent Saturday and Sunday with her friend Gertie O'Leary who has recently moved to Tomah.

Miss Mabel Sullivan returned on Saturday from Lindon, where she had been visiting for two weeks.

Amos Griffith and Misses MacDaniels and Eva Miller were Grand Rapids visitors on Saturday.

Husband and Wife Disagree.

Husband and wife often disagree about some matter that concerns each other and frequently the husband finds that his wife's judgment is the best, the case of Mr. John W. Young of Lincoln, Ill., is however an exception, he says: "My wife and I both had a severe cold and we decided to get some kind of medicine. I bought for myself a bottle of Harts' Honey and Horehound and taking it as directed was well in a short time. She wanted another kind and with the result that she still has a bad cough. I advised her to take Harts' Honey and Horehound and think she will have to do so if she gets well this winter." Sold by Sam Church Druggist.

SHERRY.

Jake Drollinger, who spent a few months in North Dakota, returned home last week. He says Wisconsin is good enough for him.

A bright little girl has come to adorn the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Parks, born on Tuesday, Sept. 30.

From Well Known Publisher

Our readers will be interested in the statement of Mr. John Edmonds Editor of the Daily and Weekly Courier at Lincoln, Ill. He says: I have long been a sufferer from constitutional constipation and have used Re-Go Tonic Laxative Surup. I found it an agreeable medicine and just the thing for men engaged in sedentary pursuits. I take pleasure in recommending Re-Go Tonic Laxative Syrup as safe and effective, without any griping and nauseating effects common to similar remedies. Sold by Sam Church Druggist.

SIGEL.

Henry Schultz, the son of Fred Schultz, died on Friday night after an illness of some time from pleurisy. The young man was twenty-one years of age. The funeral occurred on Sunday from the Sigel Lutheran church, Rev. Baese officiating.

Old People Have Their Troubles.

Mr. Francis Little of Benton Harbor, Mich., is over eighty years of age. Since 1865 he has been troubled more or less with indigestion and constipation and has tried almost everything in use for those ailments. Last August he began using Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablers and was soon feeling much better. In a recent letter he says. "I have used three boxes of the Tablets and now think I am well." These Tablets improve the appetite and invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. For sale by Johnson & Hill Co. and Wood County Drug Co.

CRANMOOR.

More Indians have been gathered in this part of the world this cranberry season than for many years or perhaps ever before. Some of them retain the old appearance and dress but the majority have made strides in education and civilization.

His Life in Peril.

"I just seemed to have gone all to pieces," writes Alfred Bee, of Welfare, Tex., "biliousness and a lame back had made life a burden. I couldn't eat or sleep and felt almost too worn out to work when I began to use Electric Bitters, but they worked wonders. Now I sleep like a top, can eat anything, have gained in strength and enjoy hard work." They give vigorous health and new life to weak, sickly, run-down people. Try them. Only 50c at John E. Daly's drug store.
